AT BATON ROUGE

Anti-Tax Solons Set For Starring Roles This Week

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE—Gov. Earl K. Long's leaders and anti-tax legislators are billed for star roles on the Louisiana political stage this week when the war of the gas gathering tax is expected to begin.

With the House reconvening Sunday at 7 p.m. and the Senate coming back in the following night, the House Ways and Means Committee will conduct the first hearing on the gas gathering tax Monday at 9 a.m.

Three bills, including one sponsored by the Louisiana Teachers Association, and a two-cent increase in the gas gathering tax will be aired in the hearing.

All three bills were introduced to increase state funds from which to supplement a 1956 teacher pay raise.

While the legislature escaped a fight on the tax during the past week. Long's 1958-59 fiscal budget of $595-million, lowest in recent years, was released.

The budget gave legislators, most of whom have voiced approval of keeping the teachers at their present pay scale, ample reason to believe that the pot of gold is not to be found at the end of the state rainbow.

Picture Cloudier

Meanwhile, the picture became even cloudier when state treasurer A. P. Tugwell reported a state deficit of $10-½ million.

At the same time, the United School Committee announced plans to continue its support of the LTA bill. Thus, the legislature's work has been cut out.

Observers expect the fireworks to begin when the Ways and Means Committee conducts its first hearing Monday morning. But officials presenting testimony, either pro or con, on the gas gathering tax will have to be brief, for they have been allowed only 30 minutes each.

The controversial gas gathering tax, which, as one newsman put it, is "an awfully dry subject but still a highly important one," is rather complex to cover in a mere half hour.

It was first levied in Louisiana in 1940 for a two-year period at one-half cent per 1,000 cubic feet. Renewed in 1942 and 1944, the rate was doubled and the tax made permanent in 1948.

Still standing at one-cent per 1,000 cubic feet, the administration is seeking to increase it to three-cents per 1,000 cubic feet, bring an additional $40-million in-

Sen. Ellender Advocates Cut In Aid Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La) advocated Saturday night another cut of at least a half billion dollars in President Eisenhower's $3,942,000,000 foreign aid program.

He said the Senate Foreign Relations Committee did not dig nearly deep enough when it recommended a 235 million dollar slash in the President's request for military assistance and defense economic supports to enable allies to maintain military forces.

Soviet Control

But Ellender, in an interview, applauded the recommendation of the Foreign Relations Committee that more financial and economic assistance be channeled to countries like Poland and Yugoslavia to help bolster their resistance to Soviet control.

"That is a step in the right direction," the senator said. "I have argued all along for greater emphasis on efforts to weaken Russian control over satellites and other eastern European nations like Yugoslavia."

The committee amendment, attached to the foreign aid bill on recommendations of Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass), would permit assistance to any country in the world except Russia, Red China and Communist North Korea if the President determines it is in the interest of U. S. security and will help reduce the recipient's dependence on Russia or Red China.

Two State Men Said Missing

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Two Harahan, La., men were reported missing Saturday night after an unmanned motorboat crashed into the shore of Lake Pontchartrain in St. John the Baptist Parish.

The Coast Guard said families of Leo Ohler, 28, and Winston Crochet, 17, reported they were overdue home after a fishing trip. Their car was found at West End where apparently they had launched a boat.

Two pairs of men's shoes and two rods and reels were found in the runaway boat.

French Forces Attack Troops, Tunisia, Says

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — French forces in southern Tunisia opened fire Saturday night on Tunisian troops, official Tunisian sources reported.

President Habib Bourguiba promptly called a special session of his Cabinet to deal with the situation.

The Tunisian sources said French troops stationed at Remada attempted to break through barricades placed around French positions several months ago after an increase in tension between France and Tunisia.

The informants said French units opened fire and Tunisian troops shot back. There was no report on casualties.

Reports reaching Tunis said the exchange was continuing.

Tunisia has demanded that France immediately withdraw all French troops still in this former protectorate.

French-Tunisian relations in the past have neared the breaking point over the troop withdrawal demands and other issues. France has long accused Tunisia of aiding the nationalit rebel in neighboring Algeria.

Services

Many services of importance are scheduled for today. The first one will be held in Hasley Cemetery at 7 a.m. to honor the memory of the dead in all wars. It is being held under auspices of the Hudson-Leehy post of the V.F.W. of West Monroe and the public is invited. The program will be of impressive nature and will not require more than 45 minutes.

Distress

A case of family distress has come to light out at Swartz. A man who served his country faithfully in war and today is partially handicapped has left his family comprising his wife, and six children, ages two years to 14, in an effort to find a job calculated to support them. As reported through a neighbor, this was no case of desertion by the head of the family. The father, feeling that his presence, with no prospect of a job in sight, would likely make aid for the family withheld, decided it was best that he leave, and use every effort in the search of badly needed employment.

Automotive Big 3 Hikes Worker Pay

Raise Will Benefit Salary Employees, Non-Union Men

DETROIT (AP) — The automotive big three Saturday announced pay increases for 173,000 salaried employes and non-union hourly paid workers.

Ford, Chrysler and General Motors have contracts with the United Auto Workers which provide cost of living allowances and an improvement factor pay increase to UAW members. The companies traditionally make the same benefits to employes not represented by a union.

Ford granted 45,000 workers a $10.40 quarterly cost of living increase and a 2½ per cent improvement factor pay boost, effective June 1.

Statement

A Ford statement explaining the improvement factor increase said those covered by the announcement will receive the 2½ per cent or $10.50 a month, whichever is greater.

Under the cost of living distribution, eligible salaried workers get a $5.20 quarterly adjustment for each .5 upward change in the cost of living index. The May 22 index will provide a $10.40 increase to a total of $128.40 for the June-August quarter.

General Motors said the pay increases would apply to 10,000 nonunion hourly paid workers and 94,000 salaried workers. The raises are effective May 29 and June 1, respectively.

Ouachita Here Falling After Record Crest

The Ouachita River began falling here yesterday after cresting at more than 10 feet above flood stage. Flood dangers continued downstream.

The stage at 7 a.m. was 50.42 feet here, a drop from 50.44 a day earlier. The crest here set a new record of .02 of an inch over one set in 1945.

Most critical areas along the river came from Catahoula and Caldwell Parishes.

The Red Cross has answered calls for aid in the Jonesville area. Disaster representatives from the Atlanta, Ga., office of the Red Cross set up headquarters at Jonesville and began taking assistance applications from persons driven from their homes in nonlevee areas. Six more evacuation tents were set up, bringing the total to 86.

Virtually Marooned

More than 10 families at nearby Enterprise were virtually marooned by water.

The levees were holding along the river.

The Caldwell Parish emergency committee at Columbia appealed to the state for an emergency livestock feeding program. The group estimated 70,000 acres of farmland and 10,000 head of cattle were affected by the floodwaters.

At Jonesville, where the Ouachita joins the Tensas and Little rivers to form the Black River, the water stage was 52.8 feet, with flood stage 50 feet.

Evacuation from low, unprotected areas around Jonesville is an almost annual occurrance along with spring floods.

Action On Gov't Air Safety Is Seen

WASHINGTON (AP)—The loss of 61 lives in military-civilian air collisions this year appeared today to have virtually assured prompt congressional action on a new federal air safety agency.

"So far there is no visible opposition," Sen. A. S. Monroney (D-Okla) said of a bill drastically overhauling present airway controls.

"We have far more support than we thought we would have," Monroney added in an interview. He is chairman of the Senate Aviation subcommittee.

Some 33 senators of both parties already are backing the Monroney bill to establish an independent federal aviation agency with broad powers to enforce a nationwide and unified air traffic control.

Senate Hearings

Two days of emergency Senate hearings on the military-civilian crashes developed wide support from operators of commercial airlines, airline pilots, and key government officials.

"About the only probable opposition may come from Secretary of Commerce Weeks and Undersecretary of Commerce Rothschild," Monroney added.

At present the Civil Aeronautics Administration, which operates the nationwide airways system, is part of the Commerce Department. The Civil Aeronautics board, which determines air routes and safety rules among other functions, is an independent agency.

Monroney would put them both in the proposed new agency, which would be headed by a single administrator directly responsible to the president and Congress.

Tax Foes Will Challenge 3 Legislators

BATON ROUGE (AP) — House Speaker Robert Angelle said Saturday opponents of a natural gas gathering tax raise are preparing to challenge three teacher legislators when the tax comes up for a flood vote.

The constitution and House rules ban voting by any member when he has a personal interest.

Angelle said he has been informed of the opposition move, which he said is expected to be aimed at Reps. Sydney Sylvester of St. Landry Parish, Carroll Dupont of Terrebonne and E. H. Haynes of Natchitoches.

Teacher

Sylvester and Dupont are high school principals and Haynes is a teacher.

Each would be affected in pay by any legislative teacher pay question. All three supported the unsuccessful 1956 natural gas tax measure backed by Gov. Earl Long.

The challenge may arise on a point of order, with a demand for a ruling by Angelle. What will Angelle do? "I'll cross that bridge when and if I come to it," he said.

Angelle, one of Long's administration spokesmen, also said unnamed tax foes had asked him how he would rule should the House pass a half-cent tax raise, and the Senate then sent it back for House approval after upping it to a two-cent boost.

Bare Vote

Would Angelle rule only a bare 51-vote House majority was necessary for concurrence, or a 68-vote concurrence because of the two-thirds rule.

"I'll cross that bridge when and if I come to it," Angelle reiterated.

The tax turmoil starts Monday in Rep. Jesse McLain's House Ways and Means Committee. It will conduct the public hearings and committee decision in preliminary steps before a floor vote is ready.

Four Suspended By Cornell U. Following Riots

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—Cornell University Saturday suspended four students accused of inciting riots in which President Deane W. Malott was spattered with eggs and his house stoned.

One student was the son of a Cornell professor.

The suspensions are to be reviewed Tuesday by the Men's Judiciary Board, a student disciplinary group that will submit recommendations to the faculty's student conduct committee. The students could be expelled.

Four Named

Frank C. Baldwin, dean of men, identified the four as:

J. Kirk Sale, a senior, of Ithaca, son of Prof. William Sale.

Richard Farina, a junior, of Brooklyn.

Robert M. Perry, a junior, of Bay Harbor, Fla.

David W. Seidler, a junior, of Great Neck, L.I.

The riots began Friday, reportedly over student belief that the school planned to ban unchaperoned parties in off-campus student apartments.

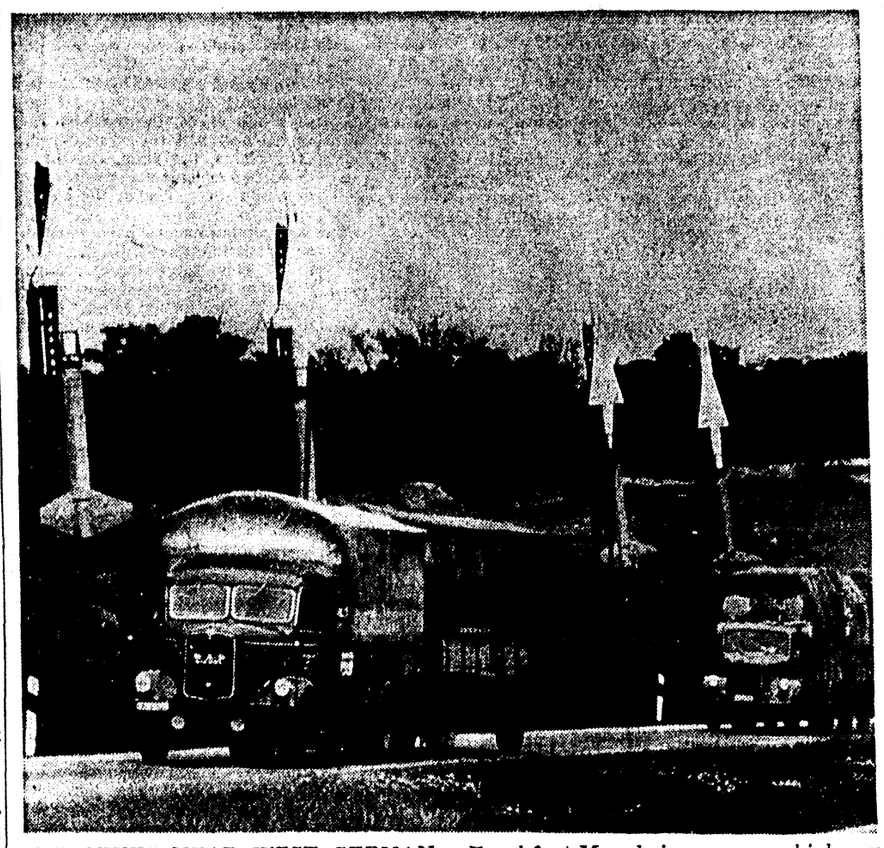

They erupted again early Saturday when students threw a smoke bomb and rocks at Malott's home. The demonstration followed a torchlight parade in which 2,000 students participated.

The students, mostly men, brushed aside pleas of student leaders and converged on Malott's house. Observers said they shouted insults and obscenities and demanded that Malott resign.

They are "Prehistoric Indian Settlements of the Changing Mississippi River Delta," by Dr. William G. McIntire, assistant professor of anthropology and geography at LSU, and "The archeology of Coastal North Carolina," by Dr. William G. Haag, LSU professor of anthropology.

Scientific Talks With Reds Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower called on Russia Saturday to start scientific talks at Geneva in three weeks on ways of policing a nuclear weapons test ban.

The State Department instantly backed up the President's proposal by naming three top flight U. S. scientists to meet with a Russian team and probably representatives also from Britain, France and Japan. The Red Chinese might sit in on the Soviet side.

Eisenhower's proposal was made to Soviet Premier Khrushchev in a letter delivered in Moscow by the U.S. Embassy Saturday morning and then released by the White House. Radically differing from many other Eisenhower-Khrushchev letters, this one was free of accusation and criticism. Eisenhower seemed to try hard to make his proposal agreeable to Khrushchev.

He said the talks could begin in three weeks, produce a progress report in 30 days and a final report within 60 days. Khrushchev in a letter May 9, agreeing to such talks, had warned against stalling.

Saying the experts from "our side" will be chosen on the basis of special competence, Eisenhower added:

"We assume that the experts on the side of the Soviet Union would be similarly chosen on the basis of special competence, so as to assure that we get scientific, not political, conclusions."

The three experts announced by the State Department to represent the United States are:

Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, a Nobel prize winner and director of the University of California Radiation Laboratory. Lawrence in the past has associated himself with Dr. Edward Teller and AEC Chairman Lewis Strauss in favor of continuing atomic and hydrogen weapons tests.

21 Persons Hurt As Steamer Rams Into Ohio Lock

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The excursion steamer Avalon, carrying about 1,100 Ohioans on a pleasure cruise, rammed into a lock on the Ohio River Saturday. At least 21 persons were hurt.

Police said no one was killed. Those hurt apparently suffered minor injuries.

The ship's bow was punctured above the water line, but the vessel brought the injured to a Pittsburgh dock under its own power.

The accident occurred at the Emsworth Dam about six miles west of Pittsburgh.

Special Train

Officers said the pleasure boat was carrying members of the Midwestern Historical Railway Museum Assn. of Cleveland, Ohio. They had come to Pittsburgh on a special train and boarded the Avalon for a leisurely cruise of the rivers.

Lockmaster Elmer Graber said the Avalon was moving through the dock when its starboard bow crashed into the lower gates. He

Cloudiness Seen For Twin Cities

Considerable cloudiness is predicted for Louisiana today with scattered thundershowers near the coast and isolated mostly afternoon thundershowers elsewhere. No important temperature changes are forecast.

The outlook for Arkansas today is much the same with partly cloudy skies and isolated afternoon and evening thundershowers. No important changes in temperatures. Highest temperature today is predicted at between 85 and 90 degrees.

La. Education Board Opposes Solon's Plan

BATON ROUGE (AP)—The State Board of Education today joined Louisiana State University in opposition to a plan for a single board of higher education.

The two boards, in their third joint meeting, cut a five-point pattern to fit future graduate programs.

The Education Board, in a statement of its role in higher education in Louisiana, did not mention by name Sen. Red McCullough's plan for a single board of higher education.

But the closing sentence of the statement said, ". . . The needs of the people of the state relative to higher education can best be served by the Louisiana State Board of Education as presently authorized by the Constitution and the laws of Louisiana."

Assault

The LSU board of supervisors previously launched an all out assault on the plan by McCullough's joint legislative committee on higher education.

Adoption of the statement of policy for future graduate programs came after sharp debate over a phrase in the second point. It said, "the graduate programs that have been established in colleges under the jurisdiction to ascertain needs and in conformity with carefully formulated qualitative standards and criteria."

"You haven't sold me that all these graduate programs are needed," snapped Mrs. Margaret

De Gaullists Vow To Fight To The Death

PARIS (AP)—Insurgents in Algeria and Corsica struck sharp new blows at Premier Pierre Pflimlin's beleaguered government Saturday.

Two avowed French De Gaullists and an Algerian leader who has served in French cabinets set up a three-man supreme junta in Algiers. They swore to fight to the death for the return of Gen. Charles de Gaulle to power.

Insurgents seized government buildings at Ajaccio, on Corsica where Napoleon Bonaparte was born, and set up a public safety committee of the type that took over power in Algeria last week.

Announcement of the developments in Algeria came shortly after a lawmaker friend of Pflimlin and wartime De Gaulle aide flew to Algiers to confer with insurgent leaders.

Personal Mission

Pflimlin did not say he had dispatched the lawmaker, Assembly Deputy Jean Louis Vigier, to Algiers and Radio Algiers insisted the Vigier trip was a personal mission, not an official one.

Several hours after Vigier went into a mystery conference, the supreme junta was announced.

The new three-man group is composed of Jacques Soustelle, once close to De Gaulle; paratroop Brig. Gen. Jacques Massu, who set off the cries of "De Gaulle to power" last week and set up the first committee of public safety; and Cherif Sid Cara, who is a member of the French Assembly and has been secretary of state for Algerian affairs in two recent cabinets.

The official reason given for formation of the triumvirate was "coordination of political and military activities."

Reports from Algiers said a communique declared the body was set up "under the high authority of Gen. Raoul Salan" who authorized the communique. Salan is the commander of French troops in Algeria who was given supreme power by Pflimlin when the crisis broke there.

It was not immediately clear in Paris whether the three-man junta

Cardinal Takes Turn For Worse, Rites Rendered

ROME (AP) — Samuel Cardinal Stritch took a sudden turn for the worse Saturday and was given viaticum — the Roman Catholic Church's sacrament of Holy Communion for the dying.

Dr. Filippo Rocchi, one of the cardinals's three Italian doctors, said it was very unlikely the prelate could live through the night.

The 70-year-old archbishop of Chicago and proprefect of the Vatican's Congregation for Propagation of the Faith suffered heart damage and was placed under an oxygen tent. Prayers for the dying were recited for him. He had been given extreme unction, the last rites of the church, on Monday when he suffered a paralyzing stroke.

Last Rites

He also had been given the last rites after amputation of his right arm—on April 28 just after he arrived to take up his new duties at the Vatican. He had appeared to be making satisfactory recovery from that operation.

Tax Foes Will Challenge 3 Legislators

BATON ROUGE (AP) — House Speaker Robert Angelle said Saturday opponents of a natural gas gathering tax raise are preparing to challenge three teacher legislators when the tax comes up for a flood vote.

The constitution and House rules ban voting by any member when he has a personal interest.

Angelle said he has been informed of the opposition move, which he said is expected to be aimed at Reps. Sydney Sylvester of St. Landry Parish, Carroll Dupont of Terrebonne and E. H. Haynes of Natchitoches.

Teacher

Sylvester and Dupont are high school principals and Haynes is a teacher.

Each would be affected in pay by any legislative teacher pay question. All three supported the unsuccessful 1956 natural gas tax measure backed by Gov. Earl Long.

The challenge may arise on a point of order, with a demand for a ruling by Angelle. What will Angelle do? "I'll cross that bridge when and if I come to it," he said.

Angelle, one of Long's administration spokesmen, also said unnamed tax foes had asked him how he would rule should the House pass a half-cent tax raise, and the Senate then sent it back for House approval after upping it to a two-cent boost.

Bare Vote

Would Angelle rule only a bare 51-vote House majority was necessary for concurrence, or a 68-vote concurrence because of the two-thirds rule.

"I'll cross that bridge when and if I come to it," Angelle reiterated.

The tax turmoil starts Monday in Rep. Jesse McLain's House Ways and Means Committee. It will conduct the public hearings and committee decision in preliminary steps before a floor vote is ready.

Four Suspended By Cornell U. Following Riots

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—Cornell University Saturday suspended four students accused of inciting riots in which President Deane W. Malott was spattered with eggs and his house stoned.

One student was the son of a Cornell professor.

The suspensions are to be reviewed Tuesday by the Men's Judiciary Board, a student disciplinary group that will submit recommendations to the faculty's student conduct committee. The students could be expelled.

Four Named

Frank C. Baldwin, dean of men, identified the four as:

J. Kirk Sale, a senior, of Ithaca, son of Prof. William Sale.

Richard Farina, a junior, of Brooklyn.

Robert M. Perry, a junior, of Bay Harbor, Fla.

David W. Seidler, a junior, of Great Neck, L.I.

The riots began Friday, reportedly over student belief that the school planned to ban unchaperoned parties in off-campus student apartments.

They erupted again early Saturday when students threw a smoke bomb and rocks at Malott's home. The demonstration followed a torchlight parade in which 2,000 students participated.

The students, mostly men, brushed aside pleas of student leaders and converged on Malott's house. Observers said they shouted insults and obscenities and demanded that Malott resign.

Scientific Talks With Reds Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower called on Russia Saturday to start scientific talks at Geneva in three weeks on ways of policing a nuclear weapons test ban.

The State Department instantly backed up the President's proposal by naming three top flight U.S. scientists to meet with a Russian team and probably representatives also from Britain, France and Japan. The Red Chinese might sit in on the Soviet side.

Eisenhower's proposal was made to Soviet Premier Khrushchev in a letter delivered in Moscow by the U.S. Embassy Saturday morning and then released by the White House. Radically differing from many other Eisenhower-Khrushchev letters, this one was free of accusation and criticism. Eisenhower seemed to try hard to make his proposal agreeable to Khrushchev.

He said the talks could begin in three weeks, produce a progress report in 30 days and a final report within 60 days. Khrushchev in a letter May 9, agreeing to such talks, had warned against stalling.

Saying the experts from "our side" will be chosen on the basis of special competence, Eisenhower added:

"We assume that the experts on the side of the Soviet Union would be similarly chosen on the basis of special competence, so as to assure that we get scientific, not political, conclusions."

The three experts announced by the State Department to represent the United States are:

Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence, a Nobel prize winner and director of the University of California Radiation Laboratory. Lawrence in the past has associated himself with Dr. Edward Teller and AEC Chairman Lewis Strauss in favor of continuing atomic and Hydrogen weapons tests.

21 Persons Hurt As Steamer Rams Into Ohio Lock

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The excursion steamer Avalon, carrying about 1,100 Ohioans on a pleasure cruise, rammed into a lock on the Ohio River Saturday. At least 21 persons were hurt.

Police said no one was killed. Those hurt apparently suffered minor injuries.

The ship's bow was punctured above the water line, but the vessel brought the injured to a Pittsburgh dock under its own power.

The accident occurred at the Emsworth Dam about six miles west of Pittsburgh.

Special Train

Officers said the pleasure boat was carrying members of the Midwestern Historical Railway Museum Assn. of Cleveland, Ohio. They had come to Pittsburgh on a special train and boarded the Avalon for a leisurely cruise of the rivers.

Lockmaster Elmer Graber said the Avalon was moving through the dock when its starboard bow crashed into the lower gates. He

Cloudiness Seen For Twin Cities

Considerable cloudiness is predicted for Louisiana today with scattered thundershowers near the coast and isolated mostly afternoon thundershowers elsewhere. No important temperature changes are forecast.

The outlook for Arkansas today is much the same with partly cloudy skies and isolated afternoon and evening thundershowers. No important changes in temperatures. Highest temperature today is predicted at between 85 and 90 degrees.

La. Education Board Opposes Solon's Plan

BATON ROUGE (AP)—The State Board of Education today joined Louisiana State University in opposition to a plan for a single board of higher education.

The two boards, in their third joint meeting, cut a five-point pattern to fit future graduate programs.

The Education Board, in a statement of its role in higher education in Louisiana, did not mention by name Sen. Red McCullough's plan for a single board of higher education.

But the closing sentence of the statement said, ". . . The needs of the people of the state relative to higher education can best be served by the Louisiana State Board of Education as presently authorized by the Constitution and the laws of Louisiana."

Assault

The LSU board of supervisors previously launched an all out assault on the plan by McCullough's joint legislative committee on higher education.

Adoption of the statement of policy for future graduate programs came after sharp debate over a phrase in the second point. It said, "the graduate programs that have been established in colleges under the jurisdiction to ascertain needs and in conformity with carefully formulated qualitative standards and criteria."

"You haven't sold me that all these graduate programs are needed," snapped Mrs. Margaret

De Gaullists Vow To Fight To The Death

PARIS (AP)—Insurgents in Algeria and Corsica struck sharp new blows at Premier Pierre Pflimlin's beleaguered government Saturday.

Two avowed French De Gaullists and an Algerian leader who has served in French cabinets set up a three-man supreme junta in Algiers. They swore to fight to the death for the return of Gen. Charles de Gaulle to power.

Insurgents seized government buildings at Ajaccio, on Corsica where Napoleon Bonaparte was born, and set up a public safety committee of the type that took over power in Algeria last week.

Announcement of the developments in Algeria came shortly after a lawmaker friend of Pflimlin and wartime De Gaulle aide flew to Algiers to confer with insurgent leaders.

Personal Mission

Pflimlin did not say he had dispatched the lawmaker, Assembly Deputy Jean Louis Vigier, to Algiers and Radio Algiers insisted the Vigier trip was a personal mission, not an official one.

Several hours after Vigier went into a mystery conference, the supreme junta was announced.

The new three-man group is composed of Jacques Soustelle, once close to De Gaulle; paratroop Brig. Gen. Jacques Massu, who set off the cries of "De Gaulle to power" last week and set up the first committee of public safety; and Cherif Sid Cara, who is a member of the French Assembly and has been secretary of state for Algerian affairs in two recent cabinets.

The official reason given for formation of the triumvirate was "coordination of political and military activities."

Reports from Algiers said a communique declared the body was set up "under the high authority of Gen. Raoul Salan" who authorized the communique. Salan is the commander of French troops in Algeria who was given supreme power by Pflimlin when the crisis broke there.

It was not immediately clear in Paris whether the three-man junta

Cardinal Takes Turn For Worse, Rites Rendered

ROME (AP) — Samuel Cardinal Stritch took a sudden turn for the worse Saturday and was given viaticum — the Roman Catholic Church's sacrament of Holy Communion for the dying.

Dr. Filippo Rocchi, one of the cardinals's three Italian doctors, said it was very unlikely the prelate could live through the night.

The 70-year-old archbishop of Chicago and proprefect of the Vatican's Congregation for Propagation of the Faith suffered heart damage and was placed under an oxygen tent. Prayers for the dying were recited for him. He had been given extreme unction, the last rites of the church, on Monday when he suffered a paralyzing stroke.

Last Rites

He also had been given the last rites after amputation of his right arm—on April 28 just after he arrived to take up his new duties at the Vatican. He had appeared to be making satisfactory recovery from that operation.

Anti-Tax Solons Set For Starring Roles This Week

to the state coffers in fiscal 1958-59.

Of that amount, approximately $30 million would be dedicated to the teacher's salary schedule, which was increased by the legislature in 1956.

In a statement released late Thursday following a closed - door meeting, the United School Committee warned that unless the legislature provides money for the teachers, the average educator's pay check will be reduced $990 per year.

Solons Pressured

While the legislature is being pressured daily to vote either for or against the tax, it has realized that the 1956 pay raise may have created an expensive poke which could occur every two years.

Under act 3 passed by the legislature in 1956 to put the pay schedule into effect, the teachers received only half their raise then.

By rights, the state was scheduled to supplement the full schedule this year, bringing the salaries up to the authorized schedule. Anti-tax lawmakers have pointed out that the gas gathering tax would only solve the problems this year with another battle for more teacher money coming back when the legislature goes into session two years from now.

Three bills calling for the tax have been dropped in, regardless.

Rep. Ben. F. Holt, a strapping Long leader from Rapides parish, is responsible for two bills, one a joint resolution and the other an act.

Under his plan, the proposed teachers increase would go into effect for two years, from August 1, 1958 through July 31, 1960, providing funds to maintain the present salary level of teachers, school bus drivers, and other school personnel through July 31, 1956.

Full Schedule

The full schedule would be paid after 1960 under Holt's bill, provided it was approved by the people in a constitutional vote this November.

Holt's bill, last weekend, was termed a compromise between the administration and the teachers. It was reliably reported that the teachers would accept

But, as one reporter said, "nothing this legislature does shocks us."

Despite the so-called Holt compromise bill, the LTA introduced its own gas gathering tax bill. It was sponsored by Rep. Wayne Gaudin and Rep. A. T. Sanders, Jr., both of East Baton Rouge, Rep. J. Allen Daigre, Iberia, Rep. Carroll L. Dupont, Terrebonne, Rep. Feray Clark, Vermillion, Rep. Bert A. Adams, Vernon, and Rep. E. H. Haynes, Natchitoches.

This bill would dedicate all proceeds of the tax increase, effective for the next fiscal year, to the special teacher's salary fund for implementing the salry schedules provided by the 1956 legislature.

With the administration introducing its own bill by Holt, the scene became confusing when the LTA bill was dropped in by several Long men.

To make matters more difficult for the lawmakers, the United School Sommittee stuck to the LTA bill and is conceding that the state is broke.

Plans Announced

While the lawmakers relaxed over the week, state treasurer Tugwell announced plans to borrow enough money to make up for the $10-½ million state deficit.

Groups fighting the gas gathering tax believe that Louisiana is unique in levying the tax. They point out that there are states levying a severance tax on gas, which is similar to a gas gathering tax.

Rates on severing of gas in Louisiana and neighboring states show the pelican state is highest. It cost an average of $11.40 in taxes per 1000 cubic feet to take gas in Louisiana.

In Texas, the rate is $7; Mississippi, $6.84; Oklahoma, $5.25; and Arkansas, $5.85.

According to information available here, the increased gas gathering tax would have a positive effect on Northeast Louisiana.

For instance, the Louisiana Power and Light generating plant at Sterlington would pay out an additional $124,373.74 annually. Louisiana Power and Light, in its over-all system, would take on a $919,719.76 increase.

Cleco, a central Louisiana organization which serves some areas around Monroe, would pay out an increase of $400,000 while International Paper Company would be hit too.

The Louisiana Mill at Bastrop would sustain a $92,194 increase and the Bastrop Mill would pay out an additional $65,774.

Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation and Commercial Solvents would not be excluded either. Robert H. Evans, vice-president, of Olin Mathieson at West Monroe, will appear at the committee hearing Monday morning.

Meanwhile, several other ideas are being voiced around the capitol as methods to obtain money for paying the teachers their raise.

Built Solid

Sources close to the state House believe the legislature may settle for a one-cent increase in the tax. Other sources, who have checked with individual legislators, believe the blockade against any tax increase is built solid, since it takes a two-thirds vote to pass a tax in the House.

In addition, Rep. T. T. Fields of Farmerville, who had much to do with the proceedings of the past week, went home Thursday with a firm belief that he has a good chance of passing what he terms as "package tax deal."

Fields has told the Morning World that his proposition would not "cost anybody too much but still would settle the issue of locating funds for making the pay raise."

But at present, the issue is a toss-up. The legislature, which to date has been coasting, has introduced tax bills totaling $92-million, despite the demands for more teacher money and a broke budget.

Lawmakers will travel a rocky road to satisfy the public whose money has been buried in a hole.

supplanted the Committee of Public Safety for Algeria and the Sahara set up during the week to coordinate efforts of city and province committees.

Sid Cara and Massu were the top men on the committee.

The action on the Mediterranean island of Corsica apparently stemmed from widespread calls of the Algerian committees for citizens in France proper to set up similar groups and pave the way for De Gaulle's return to power.

The Ministry of Information in Paris announced that the Ajaccio insurgents seized the government buildings there after a demonstration. The committee of public safety went into session immediately, the ministry said.

All telephone communications between France and Corsica were severed. Corsica, a 3,367-square-mile island with a population of nearly 300,000, lies almost due south of Genoa, Italy.

A junta spokesman told a news conference in Algiers that Vigier had flown back to France without seeing Salan or Soustelle. He did not say specifically that Salan and Soustelle had refused to see Vigier.

The Vigier visit had been described in Paris as the first direct contact between the Paris government and the insurgent regime in Algiers. Radio Algiers denied that was so.

tive vice president of Bell Telephone Laboratories and since 1952 a member of the President's Science Advisory Committee.

Dr. Robert F. Bacher, chairman of the Division of Physics, Mathematics and Astronomy at California Institute of Technology and a member of Eisenhower's Science Advisory Committee.

The appointment of Lawrence could mean that the President and his science chief, Dr. James R. Killian Jr., were deliberately including in the group a scientist whose skepticism about banning atomic tests and making the ban effective has already been publicly established.

Lawrence and Teller said in November, 1956, that it was an unfortunate misconception to believe that methods of detecting nuclear tests were infallible. In June 1957 Lawrence, Teller, Strauss and Dr. Mark M. Mills of the University of California appeared at a news conference at the White House after advising Eisenhower to continue testing in the interest of developing cleaner, smaller, and more varied U.S. nuclear weapons. Lawrence then said he thought tests should be continued.

The new Eisenhower letter to Khrushchev does not commit the United States to suspend tests nor would it commit the Soviet Union. What Eisenhower has called for is a round of practical discussions on the use of detection equipment so that in any future talks about test suspension the Soviet, American, and other governments will have available about the same kind of information on what enforcement steps would be needed.

Eisenhower's message specifically mentioned inclusion of French and British experts. The message had been cleared with Britain and France as well as with other NATO allies before it was sent. Officials then passed the word that Japanese have had great experience in earth shock measurements and in studying radioactivity in the air and a Japanese expert might well be among those "on our side."

Scores of the passengers were hurled to the decks of the boat. They tumbled over deck chairs but there was no panic.

An unidentified nurse aboard helped treat and soothe the injured. Many of those aboard were reported elderly.

The boat pulled out of the locks, then slowly began the trip back to Pittsburgh. Police ambulances worked in relays to take the injured to hospitals.

Mrs. Anna Rafter, 40, of Cleveland was one of the passengers knocked to the deck.

"There was no panic," she said. "There was no screaming. I saw people helping the others who were on the deck and who seemed hurt.

"You didn't sell me not only as a board member but also as a reporter," said Mrs. Dixon, managing editor of the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate. "If you can't sell me how can you expect to sell the public."

LSU board member Thomas Leigh of Monroe joined in, "LSU is the graduate institution and should remain so. I can't go along with a statement of ascertained need. The initial steps were enacted by the Legislature over the objections of a large portion of the State Board of Education."

Education board member Alfred Roberts of Lake Charles summed it up, "the child has been born. We believe it is legitimate. We would like to have the LSU board accept it as such."

Leigh replied, "I'm just not ready to accept its paternity."

After some discussion, the two boards agreed to insert after the words "ascertained needs," the following qualification, "as determined by the State Board of Education."

Another key portion of the statement provided:

"Any future expansion of graduate programs and faciliaties should be in response to additional needs as determined by the two responsible boards, in accordance with standards and criteria developed by these boards."

LSU board member Louis Gottlieb of Baton Rouge said, "If we've accomplished that, we've accomplished the purpose of these meetings."

Kill Each Other

Clarence N. Sayen, president of an organization of 15,000 commercial airline pilots, told senators that under existing CAA regulations "you can kill each other perfectly legally."

He agreed with Sen. Frederick G. Payne (R-Maine) that when two aircraft approach at speeds of 300 to 600 m.p.h. or more the pilots have only a fraction of a minute to avoid disaster.

Sayen said this virtually eliminates safe visual flying under the present "see and be seen" system for slow aircraft.

Lt. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada, chairman of President Eisenhower's airways modernization board, agreed that present and future speeds of aircraft require a single traffic control and vastly improved equipment.

The retired Air Force general said that eventually controls may be performed by automation, already under development.

Quesada announced Friday night that effective Saturday the armed services are placing emergency restrictions on military jet flights at altitudes under 20,000 feet. Quesada described the voluntary flight curbs as a temporary action designed to minimize the risks of air collision.

Most commercial and civilian aircraft now operate below 20,000 feet, and under the plan announced by Quesada military jets using civilian airways at those levels must fly under CAA control.

Monrony's bill would make the President's air coordinating committee headed by Quesada a part of his proposed new agency. He plans detailed hearings on the legislation early next month.

While the lawmakers relaxed over the week, state treasurer Tugwell announced plans to borrow enough money to make up for the $10-½ million state deficit.

Groups fighting the gas gathering tax believe that Louisiana is unique in levying the tax. They point out that there are states levying a severance tax on gas, which is similar to a gas gathering tax.

Rates on severing of gas in Louisiana and neighboring states show the pelican state is highest. It cost an average of $11.40 in taxes per 1000 cubic feet to take gas in Louisiana.

In Texas, the rate is $7; Mississippi, $6.84; Oklahoma, $5.25; and Arkansas, $5.85.

According to information available here, the increased gas gathering tax would have a positive effect on Northeast Louisiana.

For instance, the Louisiana Power and Light generating plant at Sterlington would pay out an additional $124,373.74 annually. Louisiana Power and Light, in its over-all system, would take on a $919,719.76 increase.

Cleco, a central Louisiana organization which serves some areas around Monroe, would pay out an increase of $400,000 while International Paper Company would be hit too.

The Louisiana Mill at Bastrop would sustain a $92.194 increase and the Bastrop Mill would pay out an additional $65,774.

Olin Mathieson Chemical Corporation and Commercial Solvents would not be excluded either. Robert H. Evans, vice-president, of Olin Mathieson at West Monroe, will appear at the committee hearing Monday morning.

Meanwhile, several other ideas are being voiced around the capitol as methods to obtain money for paying the teachers their raise.

Built Solid

Sources close to the state House believe the legislature may settle for a one-cent increase in the tax. Other sources, who have checked with individual legislators, believe the blockade against any tax increase is built solid, since it takes a two-thirds vote to pass a tax in the House.

In addition, Rep. T. T. Fields of Farmerville, who had much to do with the proceedings of the past week, went home Thursday with a firm belief that he has a good chance of passing what he terms as "package tax deal."

Fields has told the Morning World that his proposition would not "cost anybody too much but still would settle the issue of locating funds for making the pay raise."

But at present, the issue is a toss-up. The legislature, which to date has been coasting, has introduced tax bills totaling $92-million, despite the demands for more teacher money and a broke budget.

Lawmakers will travel a rocky road to satisfy the public whose money has been buried in a hole.

La. Education Board Opposes Solon's Plan

Can't Sell

"You didn't sell me not only as a board member but also as a reporter," said Mrs. Dixon, managing editor of the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate. "If you can't sell me how can you expect to sell the public."

LSU board member Thomas Leigh of Monroe joined in, "LSU is the graduate institution and should remain so. I can't go along with a statement of ascertained need. The initial steps were enacted by the Legislature over the objections of a large portion of the State Board of Education."

Education board member Alfred Roberts of Lake Charles summed it up, "the child has been born. We believe it is legitimate. We would like to have the LSU board accept it as such."

Leigh replied, "I'm just not ready to accept its paternity."

After some diseussion, the two boards agreed to insert after the words "ascertained needs," the following qualification, "as determined by the State Board of Education."

Another key portion of the statement provided:

"Any future expansion of graduate programs and faciliaties should be in response to additional needs as determined by the two responsible boards, in accordance with standards and criteria developed by these boards."

LSU board member Louis Gottlieb of Baton Rouge said, "If we've accomplished that, we've accomplished the purpose of these meetings."

Retired Farmer Dies After Wreck

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — A 74-year-old retired farmer died at a hospital here Saturday soon after he was injured in a two-car collision 5 miles east of here on highway 6.

He was Tom Boatright of Oxford. He was riding in an auto driven by his son, Ernest Boatright. The other car was driven by Tom White of Oxford. Neither driver was seriously hurt.

Kill Each Other

Clarence N. Sayen, president of an organization of 15,000 commercial airline pilots, told senators that under existing CAA regulations "you can kill each other perfectly legally."

He agreed with Sen. Frederick G. Payne (R - Maine) that when two aircraft approach at speeds of 300 to 600 m.p.h. or more the pilots have only a fraction of a minute to avoid disaster.

Sayen said this virtually eliminates safe visual flying under the present "see and be seen" system for slow aircraft.

Lt. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada, chairman of President Eisenhower's airways modernization board, agreed that present and future speeds of aircraft require a single traffic control and vastly improved equipment.

The retired Air Force general said that eventually controls may be performed by automation, already under development.

Quesada announced Friday night that effective Saturday the armed services are placing emergency restrictions on military jet flights at altitudes under 20,000 feet. Quesada described the voluntary flight curbs as a temporary action designed to minimize the risks of air collision.

Most commercial and civilian aircraft now operate below 20,000 feet, and under the plan announced by Quesada military jets using civilian airways at those levels must fly under CAA control.

Monrony's bill would make the President's air coordinating committee headed by Quesada a part of his proposed new agency. He plans detailed hearings on the legislation early next month.

CROWDED

CENTRAL FALLS, R. I. (UP) — Central Falls is the state's smallest community, but if all Rhode Island were as thickly populated as this town is, it would have 17,000,000 residents. In 1950, 23,000 persons inhabited Central Falls, crowding 17,841 people per square mile. Rhode Island's total land area is 1,057 square miles.

ADVICE ON STEPS

AMES, Iowa (UP) — Uneven steps and steps that are out of proportion are the leading reasons for falls in the home, according to Norval Wardle, extension safety specialist at Iowa State College. A prime role for safe stairways is to have a clear walkway the full length of each tread, Wardle said. Stairways of more than three steps need handrails.

Sid Cara and Massu were the top men on the committee.

The action on the Mediterranean island of Corsica apparently stemmed from widespread calls of the Algerian committees for citizens in France proper to set up similar groups and pave the way for De Gaulle's return to power.

The Ministry of Information in Paris announced that the Ajaccio insurgents seized the government buildings there after a demonstration. The committee of public safety went into session immediately, the ministry said.

All telephone communications between France and Corsica were severed. Corsica, a 3,367-square-mile island with a population of nearly 300,000, lies almost due south of Genoa, Italy.

A junta spokesman told a news conference in Algiers that Vigier had flown back to France without seeing Salan or Soustelle. He did not say specifically that Salan and Soustelle had refused to see Vigier.

The Vigier visit had been described in Paris as the first direct contact between the Paris government and the insurgent regime in Algiers. Radio Algiers denied that was so.

Dr. Robert F. Bacher, chairman of the Division of Physics, Mathematics and Astronomy at California Institute of Technology and a member of Eisenhower's Science Advisory Committee.

The appointment of Lawrence could mean that the President and his science chief, Dr. James R. Killian Jr., were deliberately including in the group a scientist whose skepticism about banning atomic tests and making the ban effective has already been publicly established.

Lawrence and Teller said in November, 1956, that it was an unfortunate misconception to believe that methods of detecting nuclear tests were infallible. In June 1957 Lawrence, Teller, Strauss and Dr. Mark M. Mills of the University of California appeared at a news conference at the White House after advising Eisenhower to continue testing in the interest of developing cleaner, smaller, and more varied U.S. nuclear weapons. Lawrence then said he thought tests should be continued.

The new Eisenhower letter to Khrushchev does not commit the United States to suspend tests nor would it commit the Soviet Union. What Eisenhower has called for is a round of practical discussions on the use of detection equipment so that in any future talks about test suspension the Soviet, American, and other governments will have available about the same kind of information on what enforcement steps would be needed.

Eisenhower's message specifically mentioned inclusion of French and British experts. The message had been cleared with Britain and France as well as with other NATO allies before it was sent. Officials then passed the word that Japanese have had great experience in earth shock measurements and in studying radioactivity in the air and a Japanese expert might well be among those "on our side."

An unidentified nurse aboard helped treat and soothe the injured. Many of those aboard were reported elderly.

Gibbs Gives Points For Opposing Bill

Ouachita parish representative Lawrence Gibbs yesterday issued a statement detailing his opposition to a bill introduced in the Legislature last week which would amend the law establishing the Monroe Utilities Commission.

The statement:

"First let me say it has been my policy to cooperate with city, parish and state officials when it is to the best interest of the people. To the contrary, I have reserved the right to oppose them when it is not to the best interest of the people. These are my written reasons furnished the public as to the bill handed to me to support in this session of the legislature. I have found several objectionable items that I would like to bring before the public and ask you for your valued wisdom in this matter. I am of the belief that on a matter as important as this that the entire legislature group of this parish should have been contacted on the matter before it was sent to Baton Rouge and asked to be introduced and voted upon. I was never contacted or asked to discuss the matter at any time prior to its introduction. I find the following objections: section 2 paragraph C under title composition, qualifications; appointment; terms of office; and removal of members of the commission.

"No member of the commission shall have any interest in any contract or purchase order of the city of Monroe, La. or the City of Monroe Utilities commission, whether for services or materials; except any contract or purchase order awarded to a member of the commission; a corporation or partnership in which he may or may not be interested, or any independent contractor or supplier on the lowest competitive sealed bid tendered pursuant to public advertisement. Any violation of this provision shall subject such member to the penalties provided by the criminal laws of the state of La."

"Thus section 2 paragraph C would show an interest in contract by members of the commission and would let them do business with the commission while being a member of same. Section 5 paragraph F is objectionable in this manner; such contracts or purchase orders in an amount not exceeding 10,000 dollars may be awarded to the lower of at least two responsible bidders on written bids in formally solicited, received and filed by the commission without public advertisement," (quoting the bill). All other contracts or purchase orders shall be awarded only pursuant to public advertisement for competitive bids to the lowest responsible bidder, in the manner otherwise provided by law; except that the commission shall have authority to dispense with the requirement of performance bond in its discretion, on contracts not exceeding 25,000 dollars. In any situation declared to be an emergency by unanimous vote of the commission, and so recorded in its minutes, the commission may contract for supplies, materials, or services in any amount without competitive bidding. (quoting the bill).

"I do not believe that the awarding of contracts up to $10,000 on informally solicited bids is wise. The commission has enough power in the original bill to do this up to $5,000 because of the costs of some of the equipment they may have to purchase. And to dispense with the requirement of performance bond on contracts up to $25,000 is not a safe guard to the public. The commission should have the right to issue certificates of indebtedness not to exceed at any time a sum of $500,000 provided that the authorization for such issuance is obtained from hardships on individuals or businesses on the fringe area. I don't think they should have the power to discriminate in their rates. I find section 2 paragraph G and F not in line with keeping the Utilities Commission out of politics. I am concerned in this manner.

"Any ten qualified electors and property tax payers of the city of Monroe may petition either the commission council of the city of Monroe or the City of Monroe Utilities Commission for the removal of any member of the commission upon the filing of specific written charges. Proceedings upon such petitions shall conform to the procedure specified in subsection 2 (F) of this act; And to take up paragraph F, it states; No member of the commission shall be removed from office for any reason until he shall have been informed of the particular charge against him, and shall have been given reasonable opportunity to demand and receive an open hearing; to require the charge against him to be proven; and to appear with counsel and offer any relevant evidence to refute such charge, all before the council or the commission, as the case may be. Any member removed may appeal his removal to the district court of competant jurisdiction, where the matter shall be tried de novo, and whence further appeal shall lie to the commission cognizant appellate court in the manner provided by law."

"In other words it gives the member of the commission who has been removed the right of appeal to the court, but takes away the provision contained in the old act for ten qualified electors and tax payers to file suits in the courts to remove members of the commission. I use the term courts 'plural' advisedly. There are one or two other small changes which should be made in this completely rewritten law to govern the utilities commission of the city of Monroe but I hope the reasons I have given are concrete enough for me to raise my objections in the interest of the commission itself and the people of the city of Monroe, who in the end, own the power plant and other related utilities."

Kennedy Sees Agreement On Measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman John F. Kennedy predicted Saturday that his Senate Labor subcommittee will reach agreement next week on a new labor reform bill carrying out recommendations of the Senate Rackets Committee.

The Massachusets Democrat told reporters he was hopeful the bill would steer a middle course between supporters or restrictive legislation and those who are against any new federal regulation of unions.

"It will be a bill that some on both sides may not like," Kennedy said. "Some will think it goes too far and some not far enough."

"If we get into punitive legislation," he said, "it will limit the chance of Congress passing the bill or the President signing it."

The Senate Democratic leadership has pledged to bring a labor bill to the floor next month. But chances of House action on any restrictive labor legislation in this election year are generally considered slight.

Kennedy's subcommittee Friday completed three weeks of public hearings on labor bills, mainly aimed at curbing abuses exposed by the rackets committee.

The rackets group in its interim report recommended legislation in five fields which would: Regulate and control pension, health and welfare funds; regulate and control union funds; insure union democracy; curb activities of middlemen in labor-management disputes, and clarify the "no man's land" in labor-management relations.

The Senate already has passed a bill to require reporting and disclosure of welfare funds. In the process, it shoved labor legislation into the foreground of this year's political campaign.

Report Reds Have Found New Island

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Times said today that Russians are reported to have discovered an island in what was believed to be an open sea area between Australia and Antarctica.

The Times said antarctic experts were surprised by the report because the location specified is in a region crisscrossed many times by exploratory ships and whaling vessels without noting an island.

The Times said the report of the finding came from Sir Douglas Mawson, Australia's noted antarctic explorer, in a letter to an American colleague.

Sir Douglas was quoted as saying that the Russian scientific exploration vessel Ob discovered the island in April in latitude 59.5 degrees south.

It was described as being 18 square miles and 450 miles from the nearest land—the Vincennes Bay area of Antarctica. Vincennes Bay is the site of an American station established for the International Geophysical Year studies.

Sir Douglas has exchanged occasional messages with the Russian expedition but it was not reported specifically how he was informed of the purported island discovery.

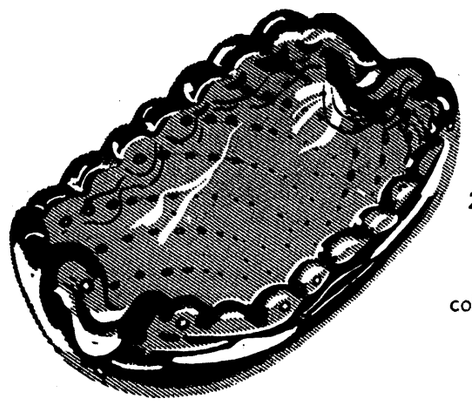

The Times said present charts of the area indicate an ocean depth of two miles where the island is supposed to be, but that the charts are based on meager information.

"If existence of the new island is confirmed," the Times said, "Australia will undoubtedly hasten to establish a station there, for strategic as well as scientific reasons."

Report Reds Have Found New Island

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Times said today that Russians are reported to have discovered an island in what was believed to be an open sea area between Australia and Antarctica.

The Times said antarctic experts were surprised by the report because the location specified is in a region crisscrossed many times by exploratory ships and whaling vessels without noting an island.

The Times said the report of the finding came from Sir Douglas Mawson, Australia's noted antarctic explorer, in a letter to an American colleague.

Sir Douglas was quoted as saying that the Russian scientific exploration vessel Ob discovered the island in April in latitude 59.5 degrees south.

It was described as being 18 square miles and 450 miles from the nearest land—the Vincennes Bay area of Antarctica. Vincennes Bay is the site of an American station established for the International Geophysical Year studies.

Sir Douglas has exchanged occasional messages with the Russian expedition but it was not reported specifically how he was informed of the purported island discovery.

The Times said present charts of the area indicate an ocean depth of two miles where the island is supposed to be, but that the charts are based on meager information.

"If existence of the new island is confirmed," the Times said, "Australia will undoubtedly hasten to establish a station there, for strategic as well as scientific reasons."

Secret 'Public' Meeting

A New Orleans newsman who is also chairman of a freedom of information committee has justifiably expressed shock at the secret joint session conducted by the Louisiana legislature. Robert Swezey, in voicing strong opposition to such a procedure, urged state lawmakers, "in the name of democratic and open government, to renounce this practice and to resolve against its repetition."

Mr. Swezey summed up the situation well when he said:

"Deeply concerned with freedom of information and the public's right to know, we are shocked by the Louisiana legislature's decision to shield its deliberations from the open view of the public and press.

"The unprecedented session behind closed doors violates the spirit and purpose of the state's public meeting law.

"The excuse that the legislature can accomplish more in this fashion is the same excuse that totalitarian governments use to justify secrecy and censorship. In this case the subject under discussion was state finances, a topic in which we as citizens have a particular and vital interest.

"It is impossible to have a secret meeting of so large a body. The results of such an attempt merely deprive the public of an opportunity for personal observation and to substitute a welter of confused and partisan reports on what happened at the meeting for the objective reports of newsmen."

Under state law in Louisiana no official action can be taken at a secret meeting by any governmental bodies, whether city, parish or state. This law was passed for the purpose of upholding the citizen's right to know and it was not intended that he be barred from any such meetings.

As Mr. Swezey says, no meeting of any such body of men could possibly be secret. Those who authorized the secret session were fully aware of this fact. They knew that a large proportion of this state's lawmakers are honest men who want to represent their constituents fairly and who want to keep them fully informed on matters of state and especially on matters of such vital interest as the state's financial situation and its need of taxes. This being true, there can, of course, be no real secrecy.

It remains a fact, however, that newsmen are the best trained people in the world in the matter of keeping the people informed. They know how to give the information in the most concise and comprehendable form. They have developed the ability to ferret out the things the people want to know and need to know and to separate these vital things from the general mass of information.

The worst thing about a secret meeting of any kind is that it indicates a desire on the part of the participants to keep something from the people which they should know. It shows either that the participants do not trust the people or that, for some reason, the people do not trust them. It shows a desire on the part of the participants to do something they think the people do not want done.

If legislators want to do any closet and buttonhole work they should do it outside the halls of the legislature. There is no objection to secret conclaves by a few individuals or groups for the purpose of "hashing over" what they want to do in the legislature. There is the strongest kind of objection to making a secret meeting out of an official session.

The financial affairs of the state of Louisiana are subject to public review. These affairs are placed before them chiefly by newsmen but each individual citizen has the right to look into these matters.

The danger in every secret "public" meeting is that each such meeting breeds a desire to keep more and more information from the public. We must fight constantly against this desire or we shall eventually find ourselves facing the same situation faced by all totalitarian nations—a situation in which the public knows nothing and in which all of their affairs, both public and private, are administered by the dictator and his minions.

When a secret meeting of any public body is held the greatest affront is not to the newsmen but to the people. Such a meeting is a direct rejection of the people's right to know. It should not be permitted.

Poetic Justice

Business Week reports: "Since the nation's makers of farm equipment began feeling the recession earlier than most in the hardgoods field, it's only poetic justice that they can now descry some hints of hope in their future." The article goes on to say that employment in the industry has been holding up well, that dealers have found keen farmer interest in new products, and that most of the manufacturers expect 1958 sales to equal last year's and that some even anticipate an improvement.

As a general rule, the dealers stock farm equipment in the first quarter of a year and make deliveries to the buyers in the second. So we will soon know whether or not this attitude of hopefulness is well-founded. However, it is difficult to see how the long-term trend in the industry can be anything but favorable. With today's inflated labor costs, mechanized farming is an absolute necessity—and that goes for the family farm, which remains the backbone of agriculture, as well as the big corporation-type farms.

Business Week tells of some of the improved machines. Combines are now offered which cut swaths 16 to 18 feet wide, as against last year's 14 to 16 feet. Planters and cultivators can work six rows at a time instead of four. So it goes down the list.

Farm machinery can't be judged by the price tag alone. The big factors are how much time, money and labor it can save the farmer in his operations. Judged by that sound criteria, the present offerings are A-1 buys.

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Curtsying To Prince Is Strange American Habit

THE KOWTOW

Among the games that are played by the Jet Society of New York is the worship of royalty, nobility and European imitations of such. In fact, when one is introduced to dukes, barons, counts and their varieties of spouses, it is wise to assume that much of it is American, particularly the ladyfolk.

Give the little girl a big hand! Of course! She has done well by herself and after several marriages, with or without usual sanctions, has achieved the distinction of a good table at the Colony or Le Pavillon. What more can a country girl ask for?

I heard a story the other day about a party given to some boy visiting here, whose ancestors once were kings. He is said to be charming and inoffensive, but the guests were required to curtsy to the poor fellow who must have wondered where these Americans got their manners, for according to no book of etiquette is it required for anyone to curtsy to him even in his own country where he holds no office.

What he needs to understand is that these queer people he met do not curtsy to him because he is perhaps a prospective monarch; they do it to please themselves. It is a bit of playacting, like wearing coronets at balls or kissing each other's cheeks in deep hatred and competition. It is like admitting courtesans into their homes at the risk of having their husbands whisked away by professional whiskers-awayers who measure a person's worth by the furs and diamonds he can buy and who have their lawyers get a report on his net worth, like a credit agency, before they give the first kiss. This is a business based on the ancient principle, "No tickee—no washee!"

In the same spirit, they play at being part of a European royal court right here in New York and their games would be very amusing were the times not so serious. For some of the foreigners who encounter these imitators of Madame Pompadour see only that much of our country and to them it is tawdry, wasteful, uncultured and materialistic. They return to their own lands full of ridicule, for they say: If the best American society is like that, what about the rest of it?

Unfortunately, they have not seen the best of American society nor can they among the merchandisers of New York, where so much seems to be for sale, that even the sellers are tarnished by the rule of caveat emptor!

There is a depth to American life or we could not have sustained our nation in freedom for three centuries and more upon a difficult continent. That depth is not to be found in the frothy playacting of the spenders who bear out, in their lives, the truth of the American aphorism: from shirtsleeves to shirtsleeves in three generations. Nowadays, this is being cut to two generations, for the children either revolt and go into the church, the Communist party or take to those escapist habits which I am here partially describing and which lead to decay.

In this country, for instance, there are thousands of young people, to say nothing of oldsters, who enjoy the peace and understanding of a profound cultural life equal to the best in European society. They have no associations with the Jet gang whose status is determined by a headwaiter. These cultured men and women are doing the constructive work of the nation. They understand the problems of their generation. They often can speak the languages of foreign visitors and know their countries well. They are not bores; nor are they pushing. They are builders; it is not necessary for them to reach out to be recognized. They are citizens of a republic and do not bend their knee to any man upon this earth. Many of them, however, are truthfully religious and fall upon their knees in prayer to God without apology or fear. They are intellectuals in the sense that they use their minds rather than by self-assertion of class affiliation as is so often true in Europe.

These are the Americans, in all parts of this vast country, that the foreign visitor could meet to his advantage, although they would never kow-tow to him, as they would not to any creature upon the earth. The kow-tow is for slaves.

Plans To Honor Unknown Soldier-Dead Of W. War II

EDITOR'S NOTE: For the second time in 37 years, America is preparing an unusual honor for the nameless dead of her wars. Next Friday, the Unknown Soldier of World War I will have company—the Unknowns of World War II and the Korean War. Here is what is planned for them.

By WILLIAM OWEN
Associated Press Writer

Somewhere on the now-peaceful North Atlantic, two ships bristling with the weapons of future wars are hastening to a reverent rendezvous with the past off the Virginia Capes.

The somber gray warships bear the bodies of three American fighting men who lost not only their lives but their identities on far-flung battlefields.

Two of them will join the Unknown Soldier of World War I in honored rest at Memorial Day services in Arlington National Cemetery across the Potomac from Washington.

They will be the Unknowns of World War II and the Korean War chosen at random by surviving heroes to honor symbolically all the unidentified dead of each conflict.

Picking the latest unknowns has been more complicated than was the selection of the Unknown Soldier of World War I. This time there was an extra war and an extra battle theater.

The Unknown of 1917 - 18 was chosen on a bright October morning in 1921 at Chalon-Sur-Marne, France. Sgt. Edward S. Younger placed a spray of roses on one of four caskets, stepped back, saluted and it was done.

Two World War II unknowns already have been selected—one from among 13 candidates disinterred from European-North African battlefield cemeteries, the other from among six candidates from the Pacific Theater. The destroyer Blandy is bearing the first body from Europe.

The second is en route to the Virginia Capes rendezvous aboard the missile cruiser Boston, accompanied by the Unknown of the Korean War chosen 10 days ago at the National Cemetery near Honolulu.

Final choice of a single World War II unknown will be made tomorrow aboard the missile cruiser Canberra by Navy hospitalman 3C. William R. Charrett of Ludington, Mo., a Medal of Honor winner. The candidate not selected will be buried with full honors at sea.

The two chosen warriors will be transferred to the Blandy Tuesday for the trip up the Potomac under escort by the Coast Guard ship Ingham.

There will be little arrival fanfare compared to the day in 1921 when the measured boom of cannon greeted the World War I Unknown's homecoming aboard the cruiser Olympia, Adm. Dewey's Spanish-American War flagship.

The Blandy will swing from the Potomac Anacostia River and quietly tie up at Pier One of the Naval Gun Factory.

The two caskets, each draped with an American flag, will remain on the after deck of the Blandy under honor guard through the night in quiet preparation for the homage of the nation.

The official welcoming ceremonies will start at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday. Four ruffles and flourishes, a hymn by the Navy band and the caskets, each preceded by a clergyman, will be brought down the Blandy's gangway.

The bodies will be borne to hearses through an honor military corridor, including the secretaries of defense, Army, Navy, Air Force and the Treasury. Then a 20 - mile - an - hour motorcade heads for the Capitol while Gun Factory cannon boom a 21-gun salute.

The caskets will be placed in state in the Capitol Rotunda, the World War II Unknown on the same black catafalque that held the body of the murdered President Lincoln, the Korean Unknown on an identical catafalque built for the occasion.

In 1921, when the casket of the Unknown Soldier had been set in place, President Harding's wife stepped forward to lay a white ribbon across the bier. Then the President pinned to it a silver shield set with 48 gold stars. He also awarded the Unknown the Unknown the Medal of Honor and the Distinguished Service Cross.

This time, the American People themselves will pay first homage. They will stream by the twin biers until 9 p.m., when the Rotunda will be emptied but for the round-the-clock honor guard.

The bodies will lie in state from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday with one brief interruption. At noon, they will change places of honor, with the Korean Unknown occupying the Lincoln catafalque.

On Memorial Day morning, while lines of people continue to pass the biers, veterans, patriotic and civic organizations will hold services and place their official wreaths, one every four minutes.

Then, at 1 p.m., May 30, the two Unknowns begin their last journey to the side of World War I's Unknown Soldier on the wooded hillside in Arlington National Cemetery.

The heavy boom of cannon, fired once a minutes, will punctuate the tread of marching feet and the roll of drums as the procession, three-quarters of a mile long, wends through Washington, across the Potomac to Arlington.

A motorcycle troop will lead. Then the escort commander, Maj. Gen. John G. Van Houten, commanding general of the Washington Military District. Then military units and bands, veterans' organizations, a special honor guard of high military men, the national colors and the clergy.

Then the Unknowns, their caskets secured to the traditional caissons drawn by two teams of six gray horses each.

And after them, President Eisenhower, who may have been general to one Unknown and president to the other.

In 1921, President Harding and Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of American Forces in Europe during World War I, walked abreast behind the caisson. Behind, in a carriage, rode the ailing, wartime ex-President Wilson, making his first public appearance in months.

Former President Truman, who could have held office at the time of the deaths of the current Unknowns, won't be at the Friday ceremonies. He has a prior commitment to attend memorial services that day for ex - President Roosevelt at Hyde Park, N.Y.

Vice President Nixon and about 200 Medal of Honor winners, serving as honorary pallbearers, will follow the President. Then the service secretaries, Supreme Court justices, the dean of the diplomatic corps, House Speaker Sam Rayburn, Cabinet members and state and territorial governors.

The procession will move down spacious, tree - lined Constitution Avenue, past the Washington Monument needle and the Lincoln Memorial, over Memorial Bridge to the National Cemetery.

Overhead, five medium bombers and 15 mighty F101 jets, possible prototypes of spacecraft the Unknowns may never have dreamed of, will roar a final tribute. Each flight will be minus one plane—the missing buddy formation.

Inside Arlington's great marble amphitheater, surrounded by the headstones and monuments of 97,000 dead, the funeral service will begin with the national anthem played by the Marine Corps Band.

Then, at about 3:15 p.m., will come the most solemn moment of the ceremony—two minutes of silence—a period deemed so sacred in 1921 that President Harding proclaimed it a nationwide observance. There are no plans for a similar observance this time.

Silence broken, President Eisenhower will place Medals of Honor, their blue and white ribbons standing out against a black pillow, on stands near the casket heads of the two Unknowns.

Then the President, walking behind the World War II Unknown, and the vice president, behind the Korean Unknown, will follow the caskets into the amphitheater plaza where the Unknown of World War I awaits in his crypt.

The caskets will be placed on rods across open crypts reserved for them in the northwest and southwest corners of the granite-floored plaza.

After commital services, conducted in turn by Catholic, Protestant and Jewish chaplains, cannon at nearby Lee Mansion will thunder out a 21-gun salute, the shots spaced at five-second intervals.

Three rifle volleys from a firing squad, the haunting echo of taps across Arlington's 405 acres of spring-green knolls and the solemn ceremonies will be over at about 4 p.m.

The crypts will remain open into Friday night until the last person who wants to has filed by. Then the caskets will be lowered into their crypts and, for the next two weeks, final touches will be added.

The inscription on the tomb of the World War I Unknown reads:

"Here rests in honored glory an American soldier known but to God." The simple marble slabs covering the new Unknowns will bear only the dates of the wars in which they fell.

EDWARD JAMIESON

Aid Bill Depends On Appropriations

The house of representatives has passed the authorization bill for foreign aid during the coming fiscal year with only a moderate cut under what Prsident Eisenhower requested. In fact, the vote by which the measure was approved —259 to 134 — was somewhat surprising.

That vote, however, is no definite indication of what the president will finally be voted to spend on the mutual security program during the next twelve months, starting July 1.

Even though the senate should agree to the house authorization of $2,958,000,000 plus $644,000,000 from last year, the real showdown will come when congress acts upon the actual appropriation measures designed to carry out the pending authorization bill.

There is no question but what members of both the house and senate plan a new look at the whole program before the appropriation bill comes to a vote, probably late in June.

Recent developments in the Middle East, France and Algeria, and in Latin America have created an unusual reaction among members of congress with respect to this government's foreign aid program.

There are those who feel that the so - called give - away program has been proved a failure insofar as winning friendship to the United States, and would like to either cut it out, or reduce it substantially during the coming year.

On the other hand, there are others who take the position that the critical situations, both in Latin America and the Middle East, with rumblings in other sections of the free - world, means that the United States should increase its mutual security appropriations.

Two of the most important members of the appropriations committees of congress, Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana and Rep. Albert Thomas of Texas, have both described the present program as a failure.

Ellender, pointing to the attacks in Latin America on Vice President Nixon and the burning of American libraries in the Middle East, declares that they prove "dollar diplomacy has obviously failed. The time has come for us to realize that the ills of the world cannot be cured by an overflowing dose of American dollars."

Thomas, a very influential member of the house committee, declares that it is time to stop the give - away program and if additional American financial aid is to be given foreign nations, it should be done on a business-like basis in the way of repayable loans, or similar business transactions.

In reply, House Republican Leader Joseph Martin declares that even before the new developments, President Eisenhower felt that his initial request of $3,297,000,000 was an absolute minimum and that now "he shudders to think how he could meet the world situation if there are any further cuts."

In between these views is that held by a substantial number of members that the federal government should use the heavy balance it has remaining from previous appropriations and programs, and cut back appropriations during this year, particularly since the nation faces a major deficit during fiscal 1959.

Minority members of the house foreign relations committee reported that as of June 30, there will be a total unexpended balance in the mutual security fund of $5,194,922,000. Added to this is a total of $1,861,887,000 in unexpended mutual security local currencies, or counterpart funds, and those derived from sale of surplus farm commodities to foreign countries for local currencies.

The committee estimates that an additional $1,469,406,000 will be added to the local currency funds during the coming year. Thus, it estimates that if the congress appropriates the amounts authorized by the house, the grand total of funds available for foreign aid of one type or another during the twelve months starting July 1 will be $12,129,307,500.

So don't pay too much attention to what the senate does with the authorization bill which has passed the house. It is what congress does on the actual appropriation bills later on that will really count.

President's Military Power Not Unlimited

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Arms and the Man . . . American Troops and the American President . . . Little Rock . . . Puerto Rico . . . Lebanon . . . Metropolitan France . . . What Does Mr. Eisenhower Think Concerning his Constitutional Duties as Military Commander - in - Chief?

Perhaps it is wrong to put this thought in the form of a question. If so, I blame it on some of the president's spokesmen. They have given the impression, in official testimony, as well as in informal conversation, that the military authority lodged in the White House is vague and limitless. It is claimed that the president's power to deploy troops can be applied to any assortment of annoyances which might beset the federal courts, the state department and the vice president.

But there is no authority for the notion that the chief executive can use his power without restraint. Alexander Hamilton had a lot to say about all this in Federalist Papers, 68 through 78.

"Energy in the executive is a leading characteristic in the definition of good government. It is essential to the protection of the community . . ." wrote Hamilton.

But he went on to point out that the title "Commander in Chief" over the armed forces is, in fact, a narrow and limiting job - description. To make this point, Hamilton compared, or rather contrasted, the office of president with that of a British king. "The one (the president)," wrote Hamilton, in part, "would have the right to command the military and naval forces of the nation; the other (the king), in addition to this right, possesses that of declaring war, and of raising and regulating fleets and armies by his own authority."

The President, to be frank about it, has already used troops in manners that displease his best friend and severest critic, the U. S. Senate. A question was recently raised in a press conference about the stalled confirmation of W. W. White to be assistant attorney general for civil rights. Mr. White is the Philadelphia lawyer who found "authority" for dispatching paratroopers to Little Rock to support a federal court order. The southern senators, of course, are against White: but so are many western liberals of both parties and, I suspect, quite a few senator - lawyers who are students of the constitution.

Then, there is the matter of deploying marines and paratroopers in Puerto Rico during the recent withdrawal of Vice President Nixon from his South American "good will" tour. The president's forceful action appealed to some of us, but the senate is still wagging its collective head in doubt and in some disapproval. Senator Mike Mansfield, the brains of the foreign relations committee, tells me that it was a slur and a usurpation upon the Puerto Rican National Guard. This unit was amply supported by federal re-enforcements in Puerto Rico, Cuba and the Panama Canal Zone. The statement that we were anticipating a call for help by the Venezuelan government is not widely accepted on Capitol Hill, for if the state department or the Central Intelligence Agency gets to "anticipating" or "mind reading" the intent of friendly governments, we are stretching the American Constitution past all elasticity.

Senator Mansfield is approximately half way through an enlightened critique of our foreign policy. He began the five - part serial in the senate on May 16 and will finish on June 1 at Billings, Montana, in commencement address. The Mansfield speeches are well worth following. They come from a thoughtful, informed Democrat who can question the administration's policies without attempting to pitch any political hay, or to seek headlines in sensationalism.

Looking past Little Rock and Puerto Rico, we see the possibility that Mr. Eisenhower will have other chances to use troops. So far, the Eisenhower doctrine has not been invoked. But all over the Middle East and throughout bleeding North Africa, American persons and property are in jeopardy. No shadow of doubt falls upon the President's duty to protect our people and their belongings. If this means landing Marine and paratroops, he must act boldly and with strength. To do otherwise would invite imitations of what has already happened to American prisoners in Red China and North Korea. There is an alternative, however, if it works fast. The dispatch of United Nations troops from smaller nations was very effective in the Suez War of 1956. But the president should not, and presumably will not, hesitate to use our own forces in our own interests.

And what about metropolitan France? We are now grotesquely entangled in the NATO and other treaties. It is common knowledge in Washington that the five American divisions in West Europe are there for two purposes, one well advertised; the other clandestine. Of course our troops will act to repel a Russian invasion from the east. But will they also act to maintain the integrity of NATO; that is, to uphold the status quo government of France?

They knew that a large proportion of this state's lawmakers are honest men who want to represent their constituents fairly and who want to keep them fully informed on matters of state and especially on matters of such vital interest as the state's financial situation and its need of taxes. This being true, there can, of course, be no real secrecy.

It remains a fact, however, that newsmen are the best trained people in the world in the matter of keeping the people informed. They know how to give the information in the most concise and comprehendable form. They have developed the ability to ferret out the things the people want to know and need to know and to separate these vital things from the general mass of information.

The worst thing about a secret meeting of any kind is that it indicates a desire on the part of the participants to keep something from the people which they should know. It shows either that the participants do not trust the people or that, for some reason, the people do not trust them. It shows a desire on the part of the participants to do something they think the people do not want done.

If legislators want to do any closet and buttonhole work they should do it outside the halls of the legislature. There is no objection to secret conclaves by a few individuals or groups for the purpose of "hashing over" what they want to do in the legislature. There is the strongest kind of objection to making a secret meeting out of an official session.

The financial affairs of the state of Louisiana are subject to public review. These affairs are placed before them chiefly by newsmen but each individual citizen has the right to look into these matters.

The danger in every secret "public" meeting is that each such meeting breeds a desire to keep more and more information from the public. We must fight constantly against this desire or we shall eventually find ourselves facing the same situation faced by all totalitarian nations—a situation in which the public knows nothing and in which all of their affairs, both public and private, are administered by the dictator and his minions.

When a secret meeting of any public body is held the greatest affront is not to the newsmen but to the people. Such a meeting is a direct rejection of the people's right to know. It should not be permitted.

Poetic Justice

Business Week reports: "Since the nation's makers of farm equipment began feeling the recession earlier than most in the hardgoods field, it's only poetic justice that they can now descry some hints of hope in their future." The article goes on to say that employment in the industry has been holding up well, that dealers have found keen farmer interest in new products, and that most of the manufacturers expect 1958 sales to equal last year's and that some even anticipate an improvement.

As a general rule, the dealers stock farm equipment in the first quarter of a year and make deliveries to the buyers in the second. So we will soon know whether or not this attitude of hopefulness is well-founded. However, it is difficult to see how the long-term trend in the industry can be anything but favorable. With today's inflated labor costs, mechanized farming is an absolute necessity—and that goes for the family farm, which remains the backbone of agriculture, as well as the big corporation-type farms.

Business Week tells of some of the improved machines. Combines are now offered which cut swaths 16 to 18 feet wide, as against last year's 14 to 16 feet. Planters and cultivators can work six rows at a time instead of four. So it goes down the list.

Farm machinery can't be judged by the price tag alone. The big factors are how much time, money and labor it can save the farmer in his operations. Judged by that sound criteria, the present offerings are A-1 buys.

GEORGE SOKOLSKY'S DAYS

Curtsying To Prince Is Strange American Habit

THE KOWTOW

Among the games that are played by the Jet Society of New York is the worship of royalty, nobility and European imitations of such. In fact, when one is introduced to dukes, barons, counts and their varieties of spouses, it is wise to assume that much of it is American, particularly the ladyfolk.

Give the little girl a big hand! Of course! She has done well by herself and after several marriages, with or without usual sanctions, has achieved the distinction of a good table at the Colony or Le Pavillon. What more can a country girl ask for?

I heard a story the other day about a party given to some boy visiting here, whose ancestors once were kings. He is said to be charming and inoffensive, but the guests were required to curtsy to the poor fellow who must have wondered where these Americans got their manners, for according to no book of etiquette is it required for anyone to curtsy to him even in his own country where he holds no office.

What he needs to understand is that these queer people he met do not curtsy to him because he is perhaps a prospective monarch; they do it to please themselves. It is a bit of playacting, like wearing coronets at balls or kissing each other's cheeks in deep hatred and competition. It is like admitting courtesans into their homes at the risk of having their husbands whisked away by professional whiskers-awayers who measure a person's worth by the furs and diamonds he can buy and who have their lawyers get a report on his net worth, like a credit agency, before they give the first kiss. This is a business based on the ancient principle, "No tickee—no washee!"

In the same spirit, they play at being part of a European royal court right here in New York and their games would be very amusing were the times not so serious. For some of the foreigners who encounter these imitators of Madame Pompadour see only that much of our country and to them it is tawdry, wasteful, uncultured and materialistic. They return to their own lands full of ridicule, for they say: If the best American society is like that, what about the rest of it?

Unfortunately, they have not seen the best of American society nor can they among the merchandisers of New York, where so much seems to be for sale, that even the sellers are tarnished by the rule of caveat emptor!

There is a depth to American life or we could not have sustained our nation in freedom for three centuries and more upon a difficult continent. That depth is not to be found in the frothy playacting of the spenders who bear out, in their lives, the truth of the American aphorism: from shirtsleeves to shirtsleeves in three generations. Nowadays, this is being cut to two generations, for the children either revolt and go into the church, the Communist party or take to those escapist habits which I am here partially describing and which lead to decay.

In this country, for instance, there are thousands of young people, to say nothing of oldsters, who enjoy the peace and understanding of a profound cultural life equal to the best in European society. They have no associations with the Jet gang whose status is determined by a headwaiter. These cultured men and women are doing the constructive work of the nation. They understand the problems of their generation. They often can speak the languages of foreign visitors and know their countries well. They are not bores; nor are they pushing. They are builders; it is not necessary for them to reach out to be recognized. They are citizens of a republic and do not bend their knee to any man upon this earth. Many of them, however, are truthfully religious and fall upon their knees in prayer to God without apology or fear. They are intellectuals in the sense that they use their minds rather than by self-assertion of class affiliation as is so often true in Europe.

These are the Americans, in all parts of this vast country, that the foreign visitor could meet to his advantage, although they would never kow-tow to him, as they would not to any creature upon the earth. The kow-tow is for slaves.

Plans To Honor Unknown Soldier-Dead Of W. War II

EDITOR'S NOTE: For the sectime in 37 years, America is preparing an unusual honor for the nameless dead of her wars. Next Friday, the Unknown Soldier of World War I will have company--the Unknowns of World War II and the Korean War. Here is what is planned for them.

By WILLIAM OWEN
Associated Press Writer

Somewhere on the now-peaceful North Atlantic, two ships bristling with the weapons of future wars are hastening to a reverent rendezvous with the past off the Virginia Capes.

The somber gray warships bear the bodies of three American fighting men who lost not only their lives but their identities on far-flung battlefields.

Two of them will join the Unknown Soldier of World War I in honored rest at Memorial Day services in Arlington National Cemetery across the Potomac from Washington.

They will be the Unknowns of World War II and the Korean War chosen at random by surviving heroes to honor symbolically all the unidentified dead of each conflict.

Picking the latest unknowns has been more complicated than was the selection of the Unknown Soldier of World War I. This time there was an extra war and an extra battle theater.

The Unknown of 1917 - 18 was chosen on a bright October morning in 1921 at Chalon-Sur-Marne, France. Sgt. Edward S. Younger placed a spray of roses on one of four caskets, stepped back, saluted and it was done.

Two World War II unknowns already have been selected—one from among 13 candidates disinterred from European-North African battlefield cemeteries, the other from among six candidates from the Pacific Theater. The destroyer Blandy is bearing the first body from Europe.

The second is en route to the Virginia Capes rendezvous aboard the missile cruiser Boston, accompanied by the Unknown of the Korean War chosen 10 days ago at the National Cemetery near Honolulu.

Final choice of a single World War II unknown will be made tomorrow aboard the missile cruiser Canberra by Navy hospitalman 3C. William R. Charrett of Ludington, Mo., a Medal of Honor winner. The candidate not selected will be buried with full honors at sea.

The two chosen warriors will be transferred to the Blandy Tuesday for the trip up the Potomac under escort by the Coast Guard ship Ingham.

There will be little arrival fanfare compared to the day in 1921 when the measured boom of cannon greeted the World War I Unknown's homecoming aboard the cruiser Olympia, Adm. Dewey's Spanish-American War flagship.

The Blandy will swing from the Potomac Anacostia River and quietly tie up at Pier One of the Naval Gun Factory.

The two caskets, each draped with an American flag, will remain on the after deck of the Blandy under honor guard through the night in quiet preparation for the homage of the nation.

The official welcoming ceremonies will start at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday. Four ruffles and flourishes, a hymn by the Navy band and the caskets, each preceded by a clergyman, will be brought down the Blandy's gangway.

The bodies will be borne to hearses through an honor military corridor, including the secretaries of defense, Army, Navy, Air Force and the Treasury. Then a 20 - mile - an - hour motorcade heads for the Capitol while Gun Factory cannon boom a 21-gun salute.

The caskets will be placed in state in the Capitol Rotunda, the World War II Unknown on the same black catafalque that held the body of the murdered President Lincoln, the Korean Unknown on an identical catafalque built for the occasion.

In 1921, when the casket of the Unknown Soldier had been set in place, President Harding's wife stepped forward to lay a white ribbon across the bier. Then the President pinned to it a silver shield set with 48 gold stars. He also awarded the Unknown the Unknown the Medal of Honor and the Distinguished Service Cross.

This time, the American People themselves will pay first homage. They will stream by the twin biers until 9 p.m., when the Rotunda will be emptied but for the round-the-clock honor guard.

The bodies will lie in state from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday with one brief interruption. At noon, they will change places of honor, with the Korean Unknown occupying the Lincoln catafalque.

On Memorial Day morning, while lines of people continue to pass the biers, veterans, patriotic and civic organizations will hold services and place their official wreaths, one every four minutes.

Then, at 1 p.m., May 30, the two Unknowns begin their last journey to the side of World War I's Unknown Soldier on the wooded hillside in Arlington National Cemetery.

The heavy boom of cannon, fired once a minutes, will punctuate the tread of marching feet and the roll of drums as the procession, three-quarters of a mile long, wends through Washington, across the Potomac to Arlington.

A motorcycle troop will lead. Then the escort commander, Maj. Gen. John G. Van Houten, commanding general of the Washington Military District. Then military units and bands, veterans' organizations, a special honor guard of high military men, the national colors and the clergy.

Then the Unknowns, their caskets secured to the traditional caissons drawn by two teams of six gray horses each.

And after them, President Eisenhower, who may have been general to one Unknown and president to the other.

In 1921, President Harding and Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of American Forces in Europe during World War I, walked abreast behind the caisson. Behind, in a carriage, rode the ailing, wartime ex-President Wilson, making his first public appearance in months.

Former President Truman, who could have held office at the time of the deaths of the current Unknowns, won't be at the Friday ceremonies. He has a prior commitment to attend memorial services that day for ex - President Roosevelt at Hyde Park, N.Y.

Vice President Nixon and about 200 Medal of Honor winners, serving as honorary pallbearers, will follow the President. Then the service secretaries, Supreme Court justices, the dean of the diplomatic corps, House Speaker Sam Rayburn, Cabinet members and state and territorial governors.

The procession will move down spacious, tree - lined Constitution Avenue, past the Washington Monument needle and the Lincoln Memorial, over Memorial Bridge to the National Cemetery.

Overhead, five medium bombers and 15 mighty F101 jets, possible prototypes of spacecraft the Unknowns may never have dreamed of, will roar a final tribute. Each flight will be minus one plane—the missing buddy formation.

Inside Arlington's great marble amphitheater, surrounded by the headstones and monuments of 97,000 dead, the funeral service will begin with the national anthem played by the Marine Corps Band.

Then, at about 3:15 p.m., will come the most solemn moment of the ceremony—two minutes of silence—a period deemed so sacred in 1921 that President Harding proclaimed it a nationwide observance. There are no plans for a similar observance this time.

Silence broken, President Eisenhower will place Medals of Honor, their blue and white ribbons standing out against a black pillow, on stands near the casket heads of the two Unknowns.

Then the President, walking behind the World War II Unknown, and the vice president, behind the Korean Unknown, will follow the caskets into the amphitheater plaza where the Unknown of World War I awaits in his crypt.

The caskets will be placed on rods across open crypts reserved for them in the northwest and southwest corners of the granite-floored plaza.

After commital services, conducted in turn by Catholic, Protestant and Jewish chaplains, cannon at nearby Lee Mansion will thunder out a 21-gun salute, the shots spaced at five-second intervals.

Three rifle volleys from a firing squad, the haunting echo of taps across Arlington's 405 acres of spring-green knolls and the solemn ceremonies will be over at about 4 p.m.

The crypts will remain open into Friday night until the last person who wants to has filed by. Then the caskets will be lowered into their crypts and, for the next two weeks, final touches will be added.

The inscription on the tomb of the World War I Unknown reads: "Here rests in honored glory an American soldier known but to God." The simple marble slabs covering the new Unknowns will bear only the dates of the wars in which they fell.

Aid Bill Depends On Appropriations

The house of representatives has passed the authorization bill for foreign aid during the coming fiscal year with only a moderate cut under what Prsident Eisenhower requested. In fact, the vote by which the measure was approved —259 to 134 — was somewhat surprising.

That vote, however, is no definite indication of what the president will finally be voted to spend on the mutual security program during the next twelve months, starting July 1.

Even though the senate should agree to the house authorization of $2,958,000,000 plus $644,000,000 from last year, the real showdown will come when congress acts upon the actual appropriation measures designed to carry out the pending authorization bill.

There is no question but what members of both the house and senate plan a new look at the whole program before the appropriation bill comes to a vote, probably late in June.

Recent developments in the Middle East, France and Algeria, and in Latin America have created an unusual reaction among members of congress with respect to this government's foreign aid program.

There are those who feel that the so - called give - away program has been proved a failure insofar as winning friendship to the United States, and would like to either cut it out, or reduce it substantially during the coming year.

On the other hand, there are others who take the position that the critical situations, both in Latin America and the Middle East, with rumblings in other sections of the free - world, means that the United States should increase its mutual security appropriations.

Two of the most important members of the appropriations committees of congress, Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana and Rep. Albert Thomas of Texas, have both described the present program as a failure.

Ellender, pointing to the attacks in Latin America on Vice President Nixon and the burning of American libraries in the Middle East, declares that they prove "dollar diplomacy has obviously failed. The time has come for us to realize that the ills of the world cannot be cured by an overflowing dose of American dollars."

Thomas, a very influential member of the house committee, declares that it is time to stop the give - away program and if additional American financial aid is to be given foreign nations, it should be done on a business-like basis in the way of repayable loans, or similar business transactions.

In reply, House Republican Leader Joseph Martin declares that even before the new developments, President Eisenhower felt that his initial request of $3,297,000,000 was an absolute minimum and that now "he shudders to think how he could meet the world situation if there are any further cuts."

In between these views is that held by a substantial number of members that the federal government should use the heavy balance it has remaining from previous appropriations and programs, and cut back appropriations during this year, particularly since the nation faces a major deficit during fiscal 1959.

Minority members of the house foreign relations committee reported that as of June 30, there will be a total unexpended balance in the mutual security fund of $5,194,922,000. Added to this is a total of $1,861,887,000 in unexpended mutual security local currencies, or counterpart funds, and those derived from sale of surplus farm commodities to foreign countries for local currencies.

The committee estimates that an additional $1,469,406,000 will be added to the local currency funds during the coming year. Thus, it estimates that if the congress appropriates the amounts authorized by the house, the grand total of funds available for foreign aid of one type or another during the twelve months starting July 1 will be $12,129,307,500.

So don't pay too much attention to what the senate does with the authorization bill which has passed the house. It is what congress does on the actual appropriation bills later on that will really count.

President's Military Power Not Unlimited

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Arms and the Man . . . American Troops and the American President . . . Little Rock . . . Puerto Rico . . . Lebanon . . . Metropolitan France . . . What Does Mr. Eisenhower Think Concerning his Constitutional Duties as Military Commander - in - Chief?

Perhaps it is wrong to put this thought in the form of a question. If so, I blame it on some of the president's spokesmen. They have given the impression, in official testimony, as well as in informal conversation, that the military authority lodged in the White House is vague and limitless. It is claimed that the president's power to deploy troops can be applied to any assortment of annoyances which might beset the federal courts, the state department and the vice president.

But there is no authority for the notion that the chief executive can use his power without restraint. Alexander Hamilton had a lot to say about all this in Federalist Papers, 68 through 78.

"Energy in the executive is a leading characteristic in the definition of good government. It is essential to the protection of the community . . ." wrote Hamilton.

But he went on to point out that the title "Commander in Chief" over the armed forces is, in fact, a narrow and limiting job - description. To make this point, Hamilton compared, or rather contrasted, the office of president with that of a British king. "The one (the president)," wrote Hamilton, in part, "would have the right to command the military and naval forces of the nation; the other (the king), in addition to this right, possesses that of declaring war, and of raising and regulating fleets and armies by his own authority."

The President, to be frank about it, has already used troops in manners that displease his best friend and severest critic, the U. S. Senate. A question was recently raised in a press conference about the stalled confirmation of W. W. White to be assistant attorney general for civil rights. Mr. White is the Philadelphia lawyer who found "authority" for dispatching paratroopers to Little Rock to support a federal court order. The southern senators, of course, are against White: but so are many western liberals of both parties and, I suspect, quite a few senator - lawyers who are students of the constitution.

Then, there is the matter of deploying marines and paratroopers in Puerto Rico during the recent withdrawal of Vice President Nixon from his South American "good will" tour. The president's forceful action appealed to some of us, but the senate is still wagging its collective head in doubt and in some disapproval. Senator Mike Mansfield, the brains of the foreign relations committee, tells me that it was a slur and a usurpation upon the Puerto Rican National Guard. This unit was amply supported by federal re-enforcements in Puerto Rico, Cuba and the Panama Canal Zone. The statement that we were anticipating a call for help by the Venezuelan government is not widely accepted on Capitol Hill, for if the state department or the Central Intelligence Agency gets to "anticipating" or "mind reading" the intent of friendly governments, we are stretching the American Constitution past all elasticity.

Senator Mansfield is approximately half way through an enlightened critique of our foreign policy. He began the five - part serial in the senate on May 16 and will finish on June 1 at Billings, Montana, in commencement address. The Mansfield speeches are well worth following. They come from a thoughtful, informed Democrat who can question the administration's policies without attempting to pitch any political hay, or to seek headlines in sensationalism.

Looking past Little Rock and Puerto Rico, we see the possibility that Mr. Eisenhower will have other chances to use troops. So far, the Eisenhower doctrine has not been invoked. But all over the Middle East and throughout bleeding North Africa, American persons and property are in jeopardy. No shadow of doubt falls upon the President's duty to protect our people and their belongings. If this means landing Marine and paratroops, he must act boldly and with strength. To do otherwise would invite imitations of what has already happened to American prisoners in Red China and North Korea. There is an alternative, however, if it works fast. The dispatch of United Nations troops from smaller nations was very effective in the Suez War of 1956. But the president should not, and presumably will not, hesitate to use our own forces in our own interests.

And what about metropolitan France? We are now grotesquely entangled in the NATO and other treaties. It is common knowledge in Washington that the five American divisions in West Europe are there for two purposes, one well advertised; the other clandestine. Of course our troops will act to repel a Russian invasion from the east. But will they also act to maintain the integrity of NATO; that is, to uphold the status quo government of France?

Electronic Brain Handles Problems

DALLAS (UPI) — Businessmen and university professors are taking turns feeding problems they can't handle to a million dollar electronic "brain" in a new sharing plan at Southern Methodist University.

Professors and graduate students put themselves on a signup sheet when they want to run research data through UNIVAC, the largest computer in the southwest.

When instructors and students are not using it, Reming - Rand rents it by the hour to private industry.

Students and instructors get free use of the Remington machine to help them with difficult research problems.

In return, Southern Methodist University constructed a special brick building, next door to a tennis court, to house the 5,000 tube giant and its control-board of plastic black buttons and colored lights.

SMU has been busy with its UNIVAC less than six months, but already other universities have decided they want a similar sharing arrangement—Texas A&M for one.

Paul Minton, associate professor of mathematics at SMU and one of the two SMU men in charge of UNIVAC, said, "basically, all the machine can do is add, subtract, divide and multiply."

But it can perform thousands of these simple operations at the speed of light-electronically. This great speed enables UNIVAC to gobble up mountains of statistical data and give in minutes answers that would take a man working with pencil and paper long weeks or months.

"UNIVAC solves a lot of large scale problems that no one has the time to get around to by himself," Professor Minton said.

By converting research data to mathematical formulas, he said, it's possible to use UNIVAC in problems of law, psychology, and even religion, in addition to obvious work in physics, engineering and mathematics.

If a tube goes out in the middle of a problem, Minton said, UNIVAC won't stop. Without warning, it will give a wrong answer.

"To prevent this it gets an elaborate checkup lasting more than an hour every morning before we start, and again at night," he said.

Youths Hurt In Crash Of Cycle, Truck

BASTROP (Special) —A graduating senior from Bastrop High School was seriously injured and his teenage companion home on leave from the service was badly bruised late yesterday afternoon in Bastrop when their motorcycle crashed broadside into a truck.

Samuel Seale, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Seale was the driver of the cycle. He was reported unconscious last night at the Bastrop Hospital. Authorities stated Seale suffered a concussion, and the loss of several front teeth. They were unable to make X-rays to determine further injuries because of his condition.

The passenger on the motorcycle, Sidney Moore, son of Mrs. Annie Moore, was reported suffering from shock, and was in a badly bruised condition. There were no broken bones, but he will be kept in the hospital several days for further examination.

The accident occurred on Commerce Street near the railroad tracks when a truck driven by Sam Andrews, of Ruston, pulled out onto the throughway from a side street. The driver of the cycle apparently applied his brakes and was unable to stop as the vehicle turned over once before striking the truck.

According to a relative of one of the boys, they had left the Field's residence and were on their way to town.

2 Men Killed

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Two Baton Rouge men were killed when their car hit a tree about seven miles west of the Mississippi River bridge Saturday.

State troopers identified the victims as David E. Ausmus, 18, and Jerry A. King, 20. The West Baton Rouge Parish coroner, Dr. Paul Landry, said deaths apparently were instantaneous.

Troopers said Ausmus apparently lost control of the car.

Italy Has Isles On Sale, But Be Wary

ROME (UP) — If you love peace and quiet and would like to buy a small island to get away from it all, there are several thousand scattered around the coasts of Italy and many of them are for sale.

Of course there are a few hitches to this dream of possessing an Italian "island paradise."

You need plenty of money to start with. There are very few islands costing less than 20,000,000 lire ($32,000), and the latest price given for a fair-sized island was about 80,000,000 lire ($128,000).

An island for sale must be uninhabited for it is next to impossible to evict anyone from an island under Italian law. But even if it is uninhabited there is also a possibility it may be considered vital to Italian defense and therefore you cannot build on it. However, you can own it — on paper —subject to periodic visits of the Italian navy.

Weather A Drawback

Earthquakes and eruptions of nearby volcanoes must be taken into consideration with many beautiful little islands off the southern coasts of Italy.

For instance the Isola di Vulcano (Vulcan Island) off Sicily became quite a surprise for two Englishmen who bought it some years ago. They passed one year on the island and then hastily sold it, so the story goes, for half of what they paid for it. Stromboli erupted during their stay, crumbled a castle they had built and created several sulphur holes in their rose garden.

Other possible hitches to that peace and quiet could be a sudden discovery that your island has been used as a smuggler's cove, a week-end picnic spot or as the secret hide-out of a nudist colony, as happened in the Montacristo and Giglio groups a few years ago.

But it is the weather which hinders the sale of Italian islands more than anything else. For three months of the year the weather is sublime. Then come the storms which literally sweep the seas over them, particularly the islands off the toe of the Italian peninsula.

Sheep Drowned

The islands in the Adriatic and Tyrrhenian Seas are subject to terrible electric storms and hurricane winds.

A Milan industrialist recently bought a tiny, unnamed island off the coast of Torre del Mare near Genoa, and not far away a larger island called Gallinara was sold to a Genoa millionaire.

Shakeup Reflects Wave Of Unrest

BANGKOK (UP) — A recent shakeup of top government officials in Communist China's southern province of Yunnan reflects a wave of unrest that has driven hundreds of refugees into neighboring Laos.

On a tour to observe integration of Communist and non - Communist forces in the tiny kingdom of Laos, this correspondent found a steady stream of weary, disillusioned people crossing the border from Yunnan into independent Laos.

Border crossings are illegal but not too difficult. Since the royal Lao government agreed to a coalition with the two red Pathet Lao - controlled provinces in the north there has been a show of cooperation.

Most of the refugees are actually Lao by ancestry and culture. Their land became part of geographical China by a treaty of partition some 60 years ago among China, Britain and Burma.

After they have crossed a six-mile smuggling zone, these refugees tell of hardships they suffered in Yunnan. On all sides they complained bitterly about how the Red Chinese government took two-thirds of their rice production, not leaving them enough to live on—or money with which to buy more.

A Problem

There also was resentment over kept a close tally on all livestock —even chickens. A chicken could not be cooked without a special permit and even a pig that died of natural causes required an official death certificate, they claimed.

Devout Buddhists, the refugees said they were not strictly forbidden to practice religion, but it was frowned upon by the government Local officials kept a list of those who attended temple services. Thus a stigma with possible political repercussions was attached to religion, they felt.

Officials in the northern Lao provinces admit that the flow of refugees is becoming a problem.

"But," one stated, "they are also Lao, our own people we cannot turn them away."

Since integration, towns and villages in the area completely controlled by the Communists for the past 10 years have suddenly come to life. Homes are being rebuilt, full capacity crops are being planted and shops that had been boarded up for years are now doing a thriving business.

The breath of freedom seems to have exhilarated the people.

Burst into Broaway's limelight as a singing delight of the season's biggest smash, "The Music Man."

Regaled President Eisenhower in a White House performance.

Been given a day of special celebration in his home state of Mississippi.

At the moment, that event last Monday looms largest in Eddie Hodges' changeable scale of values. It enabled him to have reunion is Hattiesburg with Georgia Fay Ezelle.

She's the girl next door, aged 10, and as far as Eddie is concerned, she'll become his bride just 10 years hence.

"I'm going to take a year honeymoon and go all over Europe," he says, before talking about more immediate things.

With polite brevity Eddie sought (unsuccessfully) a luncheon of his favorite foods, sowbelly and egg custard pie; expressed appreciation of his dad ("He's the one that gets me all this"); admitted that "I like science pretty good but"; confessed inability to explain precisely where his $1 weekly allowance goes; and disclosed that his very personal wish is to make a horror movie.

Eddie above all gives every indication of being well adjusted and unawed by the events which have made him a peewee celebrity.

His 31-year-old father John Hodges explains the family formula.

"We've been very strict," he says. "If we hadn't I figure he'd be out of hand by now.

"Eddie still gets his licking if he needs one.

"My wife (her name is Sue) and I were both raised in strict families, and that never did anyone any harm."

The four Hodges (there is also a daughter, Diane, now 12) moved to New York from Mississippi five years ago.

"It was partly for me and partly for Eddie," says the elder Hodges, whose own career is hotel work. Friends kept urging that the youngster be introduced to New York after seeing him do imitations at age 5 in a Biloxi officers' club and in a few other spots.

All his TV winnings have been carefully put into trust, and major control of Eddie's career has been kept firmly by his parents.

"The toughest job is explaining to him why we can't let him do all the things that are offered," says Hodges. "He has more energy that anyone else I've ever seen.

"And he is sort of two people. Around home he is all boy. But in the theater he is all business.

"We haven't planned his career too exactly. And that has been deliberate. We want to let nature take its course."

Italy Has Isles On Sale, But Be Wary

ROME (UP) — If you love peace and quiet and would like to buy a small island to get away from it all, there are several thousand scattered around the coasts of Italy and many of them are for sale.

Of course there are a few hitches to this dream of possessing an Italian "island paradise."

You need plenty of money to start with. There are very few islands costing less than 20,000,000 lire ($32,000), and the latest price given for a fair-sized island was about 80,000,000 lire ($128,000).

An island for sale must be uninhabited for it is next to impossible to evict anyone from an island under Italian law. But even if it is uninhabited there is also a possibility it may be considered vital to Italian defense and therefore you cannot build on it. However, you can own it — on paper —subject to periodic visits of the Italian navy.

Weather A Drawback

Earthquakes and eruptions of nearby volcanoes must be taken into consideration with many beautiful little islands off the southern coasts of Italy.

For instance the Isola di Vulcano (Vulcan Island) off Sicily became quite a surprise for two Englishmen who bought it some years ago. They passed one year on the island and then hastily sold it, so the story goes, for half of what they paid for it. Stromboli erupted during their stay, crumbled a castle they had built and created several sulphur holes in their rose garden.

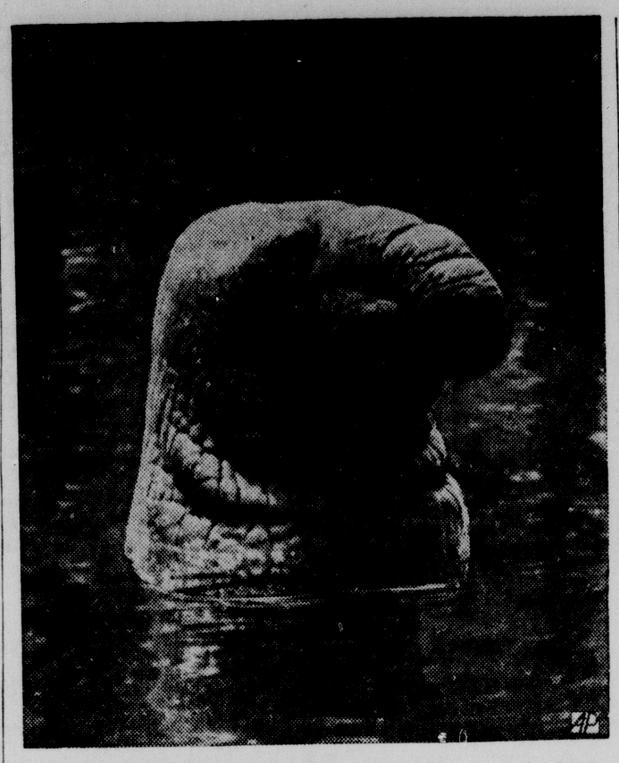

Other possible hitches to that peace and quiet could be a sudden discovery that your island has been used as a smuggler's cove, a week-end picnic spot or as the secret hide-out of a nudist colony, as happened in the Montacristo and Giglio groups a few years ago.

But it is the weather which hinders the sale of Italian islands more than anything else. For three months of the year the weather is sublime. Then come the storms which literally sweep the seas over them, particularly the islands off the toe of the Italian peninsula.

Sheep Drowned

The islands in the Adriatic and Tyrrhenian Seas are subject to terrible electric storms and hurricane winds.

A Milan industrialist recently bought a tiny, unnamed island off the coast of Torre del Mare near Genoa, and not far away a larger island called Gallinara was sold to a Genoa millionaire.

UP FOR MORE — Moby Dick, the giant sea elephant at the St. Louis zoo, comes up to view crowd around his pool and possible supplement to his daily ration of 30 pounds of fish.

Shakeup Reflects Wave Of Unrest

BANGKOK (UP) — A recent shakeup of top government officials in Communist China's southern province of Yunnan reflects a wave of unrest that has driven hundreds of refugees into neighboring Laos.

On a tour to observe integration of Communist and non - Communist forces in the tiny kingdom of Laos, this correspondent found a steady stream of weary, disillusioned people crossing the border from Yunnan into independent Laos.

Border crossings are illegal but not too difficult. Since the royal Lao government agreed to a coalition with the two red Pathet Lao - controlled provinces in the north there has been a show of cooperation.

Most of the refugees are actually Lao by ancestry and culture. Their land became part of geographical China by a treaty of partition some 60 years ago among China, Britain and Burma.

After they have crossed a six-mile smuggling zone, these refugees tell of hardships they suffered in Yunnan. On all sides they complained bitterly about how the Red Chinese government took two-thirds of their rice production, not leaving them enough to live on— or money with which to buy more.

A Problem

There also was resentment over kept a close tally on all livestock —even chickens. A chicken could not be cooked without a special permit and even a pig that died of natural causes required an official death certificate, they claimed.

Devout Buddhists, the refugees said they were not strictly forbidden to practice religion, but it was frowned upon by the government Local officials kept a list of those who attended temple services. Thus a stigma with possible political repercussions was attached to religion, they felt.

Officials in the northern Lao provinces admit that the flow of refugees is becoming a problem.

"But," one stated, "they are also Lao, our own people we cannot turn them away."

Since integration, towns and villages in the area completely controlled by the Communists for the past 10 years have suddenly come to life. Homes are being rebuilt, full capacity crops are being planted and shops that had been boarded up for years are now doing a thriving business.

The breath of freedom seems to have exhilarated the people.

SINGING DELIGHT

Boy Of 11 Wins In Many Fields

NEW YORK (AP)—"Let's see if I can make it, Daddy," is how John Hodges says it began. "Let's give it one more year."

Well, this is the year it happened for Eddie.

A pint-sized show business whirlwind of 11, red-haired Eddie Hoges has:

Won $44,500 on two television quiz shows.

Burst into Broaway's limelight as a singing delight of the season's biggest smash, "The Music Man."

Regaled President Eisenhower in a White House performance.

AT SMU

Electronic Brain Handles Problems

DALLAS (UPI) — Businessmen and university professors are taking turns feeding problems they can't handle to a million dollar electronic "brain" in a new sharing plan at Southern Methodist University.

Professors and graduate students put themselves on a signup sheet when they want to run research data through UNIVAC, the largest computer in the southwest.

When instructors and students are not using it, Reming - Rand rents it by the hour to private industry.

Students and instructors get free use of the Remington machine to help them with difficult research problems.

In return, Southern Methodist University constructed a special brick building, next door to a tennis court, to house the 5,000 tube giant and its control-board of plastic black buttons and colored lights.

SMU has been busy with its UNIVAC less than six months, but already other universities have decided they want a similar sharing arrangement—Texas A&M for one.

Paul Minton, associate professor of mathematics at SMU and one of the two SMU men in charge of UNIVAC, said, "basically, all the machine can do is add, subtract, divide and multiply."

But it can perform thousands of these simple operations at the speed of light-electronically. This great speed enables UNIVAC to gobble up mountains of statistical data and give in minutes answers that would take a man working with pencil and paper long weeks or months.

"UNIVAC solves a lot of large scale problems that no one has the time to get around to by himself," Professor Minton said.

By converting research data to mathematical formulas, he said, it's possible to use UNIVAC in problems of law, psychology, and even religion, in addition to obvious work in physics, engineering and mathematics.

If a tube goes out in the middle of a problem, Minton said, UNIVAC won't stop. Without warning, it will give a wrong answer.

"To prevent this it gets an elaborate checkup lasting more than an hour every morning before we start, and again at night," he said.

Youths Hurt In Crash Of Cycle, Truck

BASTROP (Special) —A graduating senior from Bastrop High School was seriously injured and his teenage companion home on leave from the service was badly bruised late yesterday afternoon in Bastrop when their motorcycle crashed broadside into a truck.

Samuel Seale, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Seale was the driver of the cycle. He was reported unconscious last night at the Bastrop Hospital. Authorities stated Seale suffered a concussion, and the loss of several front teeth. They were unable to make X-rays to determine further injuries because of his condition.

The passenger on the motorcycle, Sidney Moore, son of Mrs. Annie Moore, was reported suffering from shock, and was in a badly bruised condition. There were no broken bones, but he will be kept in the hospital several days for further examination.

The accident occurred on Commerce Street near the railroad tracks when a truck driven by Sam Andrews, of Ruston, pulled out onto the throughway from a side street. The driver of the cycle apparently applied his brakes and was unable to stop as the vehicle turned over once before striking the truck.

According to a relative of one of the boys, they had left the Field's residence and were on their way to town.

2 Men Killed

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Two Baton Rouge men were killed when their car hit a tree about seven miles west of the Mississippi River bridge Saturday.

State troopers identified the victims as David E. Ausmus, 18, and Jerry A. King, 20. The West Baton Rouge Parish coroner, Dr. Paul Landry, said deaths apparently were instantaneous.

Troopers said Ausmus apparently lost control of the car.

LA. LEGISLATURE

'No Holds Barred' Battle Shapes Up

BATON ROUGE, May 24 (UPI) —A "no holds barred" battle over two of the most controversial bills before the Louisiana legislature shaped up as the lawmakers prepared to launch the third week of the 1958 session Sunday night.

The house goes back to work Sunday night at 7 p.m. and the senate Monday night. Sandwiched in between will be a house committee hearing on the torrid teacher's pay problem and possible final action in the lower chamber on the hotly - disputed provisions of an administration bill to change the election laws governing congressional and gubernatorial Democratic primaries.

This is also the final week for the introduction of bills. Both chambers will work through most of next week, undoubtedly adjourn, then reconvene next Sunday night, June 1, and pour into the house and senate hoppers the final flood of legislative proposals. The constitution provides that bills must be introduced during the first 21 days of the session. Constitutional amendments have another nine days to make an appearance.

2000 Bills Expected

So far, 569 bills have been introduced in the house and 170 in the senate. Somewhere around 2,000 are expected to appear before the hoppers close next Sunday.

While the "tax vs. anti-tax" tussle continues to dominate the political arena as the major issue confronting the legislature, the election measure is rapidly building up a head of stream and could emerge as one of the anti-climatic tangles of the 60 day session.

More than 100.000 members of the Louisiana organizations for state legislation Friday went on record urging the legislature to make sure no "ill-advised" or "hasty" action was taken on the congressional primary bill.

The admministration has shoved the measure with amazing rapidity into a position where it could be called up for a vote and final passage in the house Sunday night.

The measure would change the congressional primary date from July 29 to the last Saturday in August, and provide a four week stretch between the first and second primaries of a general election.

Opposition to the bill is concerned primarily with the period between primaries—contending it should be five weeks to give election officials the necessary time to prepare voting machines for the run-off alloting.

Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Jr., outspoken political enemy of Gov. Earl Long, charges the bill is a "maneuver" by the governor to make voting machines so expensive and inefficient he will gain support to do away with them in smaller precincts or "over the state as a whole."

An administration bill to move machies in smaller precincts failed in the 1956 session — the same session that changes the election law reducing the space between primaries from five to three weeks.

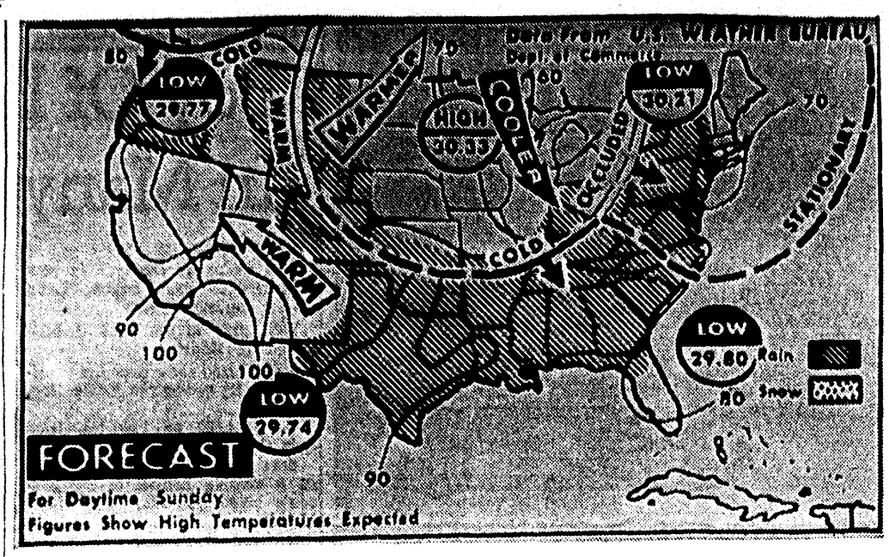

School teachers continued to button - hole legislators over the weekend and hold strategy conferences aimed at gaining support for their bill to increase the gas gathering tax by two cents and dedicate it to salaries.

"Favorable Report"

When the house ways and means committee meets Monday night one of the big issues will be which of the gas gathering tax bills will be approved for legislative action. There could be a compromise on provisions of the two measures. There is no doubt that the committee—overloaded with administration leaders—will give one of the bills a "favorable" report.

The bill introduced by Rep. Ben isiana Teacher's Association calls for entire dedication of the expected $40 million. They say it will take approximately $34 million to maintain present teacher pay.

The bill introduced by Rep. Ben Holt with administration approval calls for dedication of enough to maintain salaries at the present level and spill the remainder into the state treasury. It would be effective until 1960.

WEATHER BUREAU FORECAST — Showers are forecast for the plains states, the lower Mississippi valley and Oregon, with thunderstorm activity expected in the Ohio and Tennessee valleys and the Atlantic coast states. Cooler weather is in store for the upper Mississippi valley and the Lakes region. Warm weather will dominate most of the remainder of the nation. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Brazil Building Atomic Program

By LOUIS STEIN
United Press Staff Correspondent

RIO DE JANEIRO (UP) —Brazil is building its atomic energy program from the ground up, Adm. Otacilio Cunha, chief of the Conselho Nacional de Energia Nuclear, said here in answer to scientist critics who declared the government was going too slow in developing atomic energy for peaceful purposes.

The scientists issued a statement after a meeting in Bel Horizonte. Well - known atom expert Cesar Lattes, who spent several years doing research in the United States, was among the principal critics.

"You cannot build a house by starting with the roof," Cunha replied. He offered his job to "any miracle - maker" who can devise a better program.

He said the plain truth is that Brazil still lacks the technicians and scientists for intense atomic research and development.

"Wi hout a sound foundation," he said "we cannot build a sound program. The job is tedious but unavoidable."

Fuel Problem

Appeal to universities to assist the commission, Cunha said that since jobs are scarce for nuclear scientists, schools must concentrate on turning out engineers of all types, with complementary post graduate courses in nuclear engineering. He added that industrial application of atom energy requires "careful conventional development" accompanied by a "still distant" general advance in all industrial fields.

The commission's training program, Cunha continued, is tailored to Brazil's needs because it will supply skilled men for the growing demands of industry. He described the commission's program as being aimed at the creation of scientists, extraction of raw mazil. This country, which spends dustry and employment of atomic energy to generate electric power.

He said substitution of nuclear energy for conventional fuels is the most pressing problem in Brazil. This country, which spnds $270,000,000 per year on oil, has large known reserves of uranium which, if channeled into industry, would stem this biggest single drain on foreign exchange.

He said there is no urgent need to build other research reactors in Brazil since the recently inaugurated reactor in Sano Paulo can meet present teaching needs.

Turning to Brazil's international role, Cunha said the commission is working for location here of the projected Latin American research center. He said success in this project would attract some of the best scientists in the world to Brazil and greatly increase this country's prestige.

Scholarship Awarded To George Fox

George F. Fox, Jr., pre-legal student of Northeast State has been awarded a Tulane University School of Law Regional Scholarship, President Lewis C. Slater announced yesterday.

The scholarship is offered annually to an honor student of Northeast who has completed three years of college work. The award covers school costs for a three-year period.

Selection of the recipient was made by Dr. W. R. Hammond, dean of the Liberal Arts Department and adviser to pre-legal students. The scholarship winner plans to enroll at Tulane in September.

Fox, who lives at Selman Field, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Fox, life-long residents of West Monroe, who presently live at 600 Pine Street.

Many Activities

Fox is a 1953 graduate of Neville High School, where he was active in sports and organizations. He participated in football, softball, and track, was sports editor of the school paper, and held membership in the Science Club and Senior Advisory Committee.

His college work was interrupted by a two-year tour of duty (1954-56) in the U. S. Army, where he was attached to the Signal Corps as Morris Code interceptor.

GEORGE F. FOX JR.

Since his enrollment at Northeast, Fox has been affiliated with the Social Science Club and Phi Alpha Theta, national honorary history fraternity. In addition to his college work, he is a member of the Monroe Morning World editorial staff.

Fox is married to the former Jane Carter Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen M. Walker of this city. They are parents of a six-month-old daughter, Rebecca Ann Fox.

Columbia Road Drainage Work To Morrison Co.

BATON ROUGE, (Special) — A $71,793 Louisiana Department of Highways contract has been awarded Morrison Engineering and Contracting Co. of New Roads for two-tenths of a mile of drainage structures along U. S. 165 in the town of Columbia, Caldwell Parish.

Highway Director R. B. Richardson said the work will begin at the junction of Pine and Everett Streets and run southwest along Everett. Work was started May 26 and four months will be required for completion.

Richardson said the contractor will be required to provide for through and local traffic during construction. Kearney Pruett of Columbia has been assigned by the Highway Department as project engineer, under supervision of Wayne H. Huckaby, Highway Department district engineer at Monroe, Richardson said.

Fred M. Hill of Monroe is the member of the State Board of Highways from the Fifth Congressional District, in which the project is located.

Two Treated For Injuries After Wreck

Mrs. Wilma A. Pardue and her five year-old daughter, Donna, were treated at the St. Francis Hospital shortly after noon yesterday as a result of a two car collision at the corner of Olive and N. 5th St.

Mrs. Pardue received a two inch cut in her left shoulder, while her daughter was treated for a bruised lower lip. Both were released after emergency treatment.

The accident occurred when an auto driven by William A. Whitfield of 1705 S. 5th street collided with the Pardue vehicle at the intersection of Olive and N. 5th street, police said. It was reported that Mrs. Pardue, was traveling east on Olive.

Her car was struck broadside and turned over twice before coming to rest.

Mrs. Pardue, who is a resident of Farmerville, was accompanied in the auto by her two young daughters. She was thrown from the vehicle when it was struck but neither she no her daughters were seriously injured.

Mrs. Pardue was charged with reckless driving by Monroe Police officers who investigated the accident.

Vows Of Celibacy Taken

By GARVEN HUDGINS

TAIZE, France (AP) — In an old manor house in this medieval hilltop village, some 35 young men have banded together in vows of community sharing and celibacy to practice Christian brotherhood.

They hope eventually to go forth and establish similar religious communities throughout the world.

Mostly Lutherans and Calvinists, the young men call themselves "brothers." Their days are filled with prayer, study and work. But their life is neither monastic nor ascetic.

In their 20s for the most part, the brothers come from wealthy and middle class families in France, Germany, Switzerland and the Netherlands.

They turn over all personal belongings to the community upon arrival. More stress, however, is put on fraternity and unity than on property.

"At the center of our life," says Roger Shutz, founder and head of the community, "is the fraternal idea and the absolute necessity to create a binding unity among ourselves. We believe that the kind of unity and fraternity we are trying to achieve here is the only way to life in a non-Christian world."

Shutz, 42-year-old Swiss and ordained reformed Lutheran pastor, said:

"The division among Christians is the thing we are trying to fight against. We believe the question of unity is one of life and death for Christians everywhere."

Shutz opened his community with a handful of men in 1945.

The community gradually expanded and so did its holdings. It wasn't long before the brothers were running their own farm, gardens, pottery and art exhibitions—all of which brought in needed revenue to keep the experiment going.

Brothers who had entered the community when it was started moved on to found branches in Algeria and in Germany.

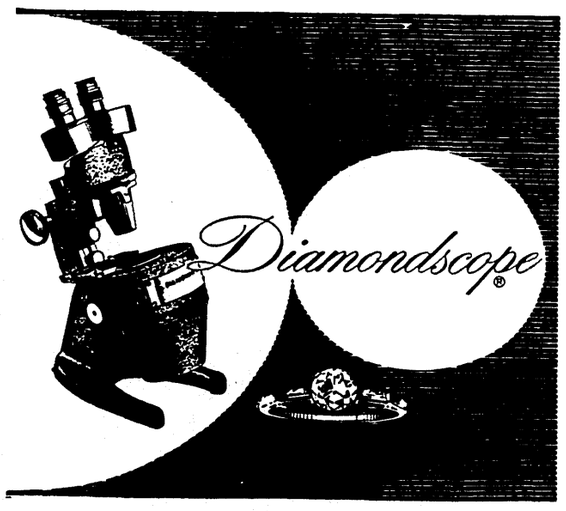

Shutz makes it clear his community is not a monastery. The brothers move about the grounds freely. There is no rigid restrictions on talk, although silence is encouraged.

The atmosphere seems to be not so much one of spirituality as of a purposeful effort to make the experiment work.

LA. LEGISLATURE

'No Holds Barred' Battle Shapes Up

BATON ROUGE, May 24 (UPI) —A "no holds barred" battle over two of the most controversial bills before the Louisiana legislature shaped up as the lawmakers prepared to launch the third week of the 1958 session Sunday night.

The house goes back to work Sunday night at 7 p.m. and the senate Monday night. Sandwiched in between will be a house committee hearing on the torrid teacher's pay problem and possible final action in the lower chamber on the hotly - disputed provisions of an administration bill to change the election laws governing congressional and gubernatorial Democratic primaries.

This is also the final week for the introduction of bills. Both chambers will work through most of next week, undoubtedly adjourn, then reconvene next Sunday night, June 1, and pour into the house and senate hoppers the final flood of legislative proposals. The constitution provides that bills must be introduced during the first 21 days of the session. Constitutional amendments have another nine days to make an appearance.

2000 Bills Expected

So far, 569 bills have been introduced in the house and 170 in the senate. Somewhere around 2,000 are expected to appear before the hoppers close next Sunday.

While the "tax vs. anti-tax" tussle continues to dominate the political arena as the major issue confronting the legislature, the election measure is rapidly building up a head of stream and could emerge as one of the anti-climatic tangles of the 60 day session.

More than 100,000 members of the Louisiana organizations for state legislation Friday went on record urging the legislature to make sure no "ill-advised" or "hasty" action was taken on the congressional primary bill.

The admministration has shoved the measure with amazing rapidity into a position where it could be called up for a vote and final passage in the house Sunday night.

The measure would change the congressional primary date from July 29 to the last Saturday in August, and provide a four week stretch between the first and second primaries of a general election.

Opposition to the bill is concerned primarily with the period between primaries—contending it should be five weeks to give elector officials the necessary time to prepare voting machines for the run-off alloting.

Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Jr., outspoken political enemy of Gov. Earl Long, charges the bill is a "maneuver" by the governor to make voting machines so expensive and inefficient he will gain support to do away with them in smaller precincts or "over the state as a whole."

An administration bill to move machies in smaller precincts failed in the 1956 session — the same session that changes the election law reducing the space between primaries from five to three weeks.

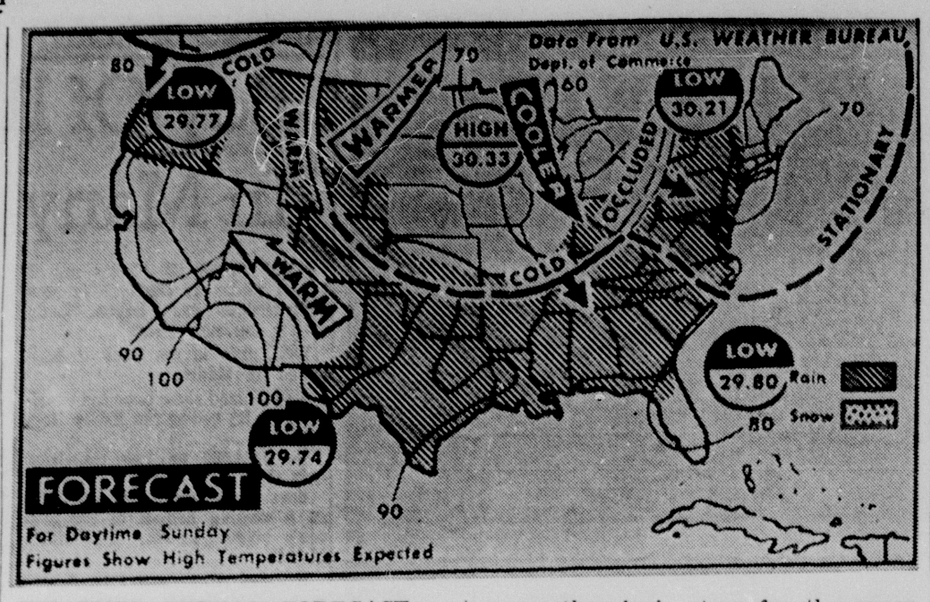

School teachers continued to button - hole legislators over the weekend and hold strategy conferences aimed at gaining support for their bill to increase the gas gathering tax by two cents and dedicate it to salaries.

"Favorable Report"

When the house ways and means committee meets Monday night one of the big issues will be which of the gas gathering tax bills will be approved for legislative action. There could be a compromise on provisions of the two measures. There is no doubt that the committee—overloaded with administration leaders—will give one of the bills a "favorable" report.

The bill introduced by Rep. Ben isiana Teacher's Association calls for entire dedication of the expected $40 million. They say it will take approximately $34 million to maintain present teacher pay.

The bill introduced by Rep. Ben Holt with administration approval calls for dedication of enough to maintain salaries at the present level and spill the remainder into the state treasury. It would be effective until 1960.

WEATHER BUREAU FORECAST — Showers are forecast for the plains states, the lower Mississippi valley and Oregon, with thunderstorm activity expected in the Ohio and Tennessee valleys and the Atlantic coast states. Brazil Building Atomic Program

United Press Staff Correspondent

RIO DE JANEIRO (UP) —Brazil is building its atomic energy program from the ground up, Adm. Otacilio Cunha, chief of the Conselho Nacional de Energia Nuclear, said here in answer to scientist critics who declared the government was going too slow in developing atomic energy for peaceful purposes.

The scientists issued a statement after a meeting in Bel Horizonte. Well - known atom expert Cesar Lattes, who spent several years doing research in the United States, was among the principal critics.

"You cannot build a house by starting with the roof," Cunha replied. He offered his job to "any miracle - maker" who can devise a better program.

He said the plain truth is that Brazil still lacks the technicians and scientists for intense atomic research and development.

"Without a sound foundation," he said "we cannot build a sound program. The job is tedious but unavoidable."

Fuel Problem

Appeal to universities to assist the commission, Cunha said that since jobs are scarce for nuclear scientists, schools must concentrate on turning out engineers of all types, with complementary post graduate courses in nuclear engineering. He added that industrial application of atom energy requires "careful conventional development" accompanied by a "still distant" general advance in all industrial fields.

The commission's training program, Cunha continued, is tailored to Brazil's needs because it will supply skilled men for the growing demands of industry. He described the commission's program as being aimed at the creation of scientists, extraction of raw mazil. This country, which spends dustry and employment of atomic energy to generate electric power.

He said substitution of nuclear energy for conventional fuels is the most pressing problem in Brazil. This country, which spnds $270,000,000 per year on oil, has large known reserves of uranium which, if channeled into industry, would stem this biggest single drain on foreign exchange.

He said there is no urgent need to build other research reactors in Brazil since the recently inaugurated reactor in Sano Paulo can meet present teaching needs.

Turning to Brazil's international role, Cunha said the commission is working for location here of the projected Latin American research center. He said success in this project would attract some of the best scientists in the world to Brazil and greatly increase this country's prestige.

Scholarship Awarded To George Fox

George F. Fox, Jr., pre-legal student of Northeast State has been awarded a Tulane University School of Law Regional Scholarship, President Lewis C. Slater announced yesterday.

The scholarship is offered annually to an honor student of Northeast who has completed three years of college work. The award covers school costs for a three-year period.

Selection of the recipient was made by Dr. W. R. Hammond, dean of the Liberal Arts Department and adviser to pre-legal students. The scholarship winner plans to enroll at Tulane in September.

Fox, who lives at Selman Field, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Fox, life-long residents of West Monroe, who presently live at 600 Pine Street.

Many Activities

Fox is a 1953 graduate of Neville High School, where he was active in sports and organizations. He participated in football, softball, and track, was sports editor of the school paper, and held membership in the Science Club and Senior Advisory Committee.

His college work was interrupted by a two-year tour of duty (1954-56) in the U. S. Army, where he was attached to the Signal Corps as Morris Code interceptor.

Since his enrollment at Northeast, Fox has been affiliated with the Social Science Club and Phi Alpha Theta, national honorary history fraternity. In addition to his college work, he is a member of the Monroe Morning World editorial staff.

Fox is married to the former Jane Carter Walker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen M. Walker of this city. They are parents of a six-month-old daughter, Rebecca Ann Fox.

Columbia Road Drainage Work To Morrison Co.

BATON ROUGE, (Special) — A $71,793 Louisiana Department of Highways contract has been awarded Morrison Engineering and Contracting Co. of New Roads for two-tenths of a mile of drainage structures along U. S. 165 in the town of Columbia, Caldwell Parish.

Highway Director R. B. Richardson said the work will begin at the junction of Pine and Everett Streets and run southwest along Everett. Work was started May 26 and four months will be required for completion.

Richardson said the contractor will be required to provide for through and local traffic during construction. Kearney Pruett of Columbia has been assigned by the Highway Department as project engineer, under supervision of Wayne H. Huckaby, Highway Department district engineer at Monroe, Richardson said.

Fred M. Hill of Monroe is the member of the State Board of Highways from the Fifth Congressional District, in which the project is located.

Two Treated For Injuries After Wreck

Mrs. Wilma A. Pardue and her five year-old daughter, Donna, were treated at the St. Francis Hospital shortly after noon yesterday as a result of a two car collision at the corner of Olive and N. 5th St.

Mrs. Pardue received a two inch cut in her left shoulder, while her daughter was treated for a bruised lower lip. Both were released after emergency treatment.

The accident occurred when an auto driven by William A. Whitfield of 1705 S. 5th street collided with the Pardue vehicle at the intersection of Olive and N. 5th street, police said. It was reported that Mrs. Pardue, was traveling east on Olive.

Her car was struck broadside and turned over twice before coming to rest.

Mrs. Pardue, who is a resident of Farmerville, was accompanied in the auto by her two young daughters. She was thrown from the vehicle when it was struck but neither she no her daughters were seriously injured.

Mrs. Pardue was charged with reckless driving by Monroe Police officers who investigated the accident.

Vows Of Celibacy Taken

By GARVEN HUDGINS

TAIZE, France (AP) — In an old manor house in this medieval hilltop village, some 35 young men have banded together in vows of community sharing and celibacy to practice Christian brotherhood.

They hope eventually to go forth and establish similar religious communities throughout the world.

Mostly Lutherans and Calvinists, the young men call themselves "brothers." Their days are filled with prayer, study and work. But their life is neither monastic nor ascetic.

In their 20s for the most part, the brothers come from wealthy and middle class families in France, Germany, Switzerland and the Netherlands.

They turn over all personal belongings to the community upon arrival. More stress, however, is put on fraternity and unity than on property.

"At the center of our life," says Roger Shutz, founder and head of the community, "is the fraternal idea and the absolute necessity to create a binding unity among ourselves. We believe that the kind of unity and fraternity we are trying to achieve here is the only way to life in a non-Christian world."

Shutz, 42-year-old Swiss and ordained reformed Lutheran pastor, said:

"The division among Christians is the thing we are trying to fight against. We believe the question of unity is one of life and death for Christians everywhere."

Shutz opened his community with a handful of men in 1945.

The community gradually expanded and so did its holdings. It wasn't long before the brothers were running their own farm, gardens, pottery and art exhibitions—all of which brought in needed revenue to keep the experiment going.

Brothers who had entered the community when it was started moved on to found branches in Algeria and in Germany.

Shutz makes it clear his community is not a monastery. The brothers move about the grounds freely. There is no rigid restrictions on talk, although silence is encouraged.

The atmosphere seems to be not so much one of spirituality as of a purposeful effort to make the experiment work.

Jobber Solution Is Cited By Okla. Oil Executive

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Stanley Learned, Bartlesville, Okla., oil executive, said Saturday good business management and efficient service will solve almost all of the problems jobbers have in their highly competitive business.

Learned spoke to a meeting of the Louisiana Oil Marketers Assn.

"Jobbers should understand," he said, "that when they continually ask for margins that make it more profitable for a company to operate on a direct basis, they Picayune, secretary-treasurer. are encouraging the elimination of the jobber business."

The oil business is in a slow period, he said, but is fortunate because it has so many stimulants for growth — such as population increase, national highway construction and the swelling use of petroleum products.

The LOMA meeting ends Sunday with a general business session and introduction of new officers at the president's luncheon.

LEBANESE COMPLAINT

Security Council To Meet Tuesday

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)— The U. N. Security Council will meet Tuesday to take up a Lebanese complaint that the United Arab Republic of Egypt and Syria is interfering in the internal affairs of troubled Lebanon.

Charles S. A. Ritchie of Canada, president of the 11-nation Council for May, called the meeting Saturday after talking with Lebanese Delegate Karim Azkoul and consulting the other Council mebers.

The Arab League Council also is expected to meet next week to consider a similar Lebanese complaint to the eight-nation league, charging masive U.A.R. interference in Lebanon's affairs

In Cairo, the league's acting secretary general, Abdel Moneim Mustafa, told reporters he was waiting to hear from Lybia and Sudan whether the council might sit in either of those places, as Lebanon proposed. He said that after he got the word, members would agree on a place and date.

Meanwhile, the U.A.R. - controlled Middle East News Agency reported from Cairo that a rebel government had been organized in Lebanon and was broadcasting war communiques from various regions. There was no confirmation.

Truman Buys Part Interest In 4 Oil Wells

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman has bought part interest in four producing oil wells in the Citronelle field, a mineral deed showed Saturday.

The deed, filed in Mobile Probate Court Friday, listed Edwin W. Pauley, oil producer and former secretary and treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, as the seller. Pauley is also a former president of the Independent Petroleum Assn.

The deed carried a recording tax stamp valued at $500, but it could not be determined immediately if that was the price Truman paid for his interest in the wells.

Another deed, with the same value stamp, listed sale of interest in the four wells to an Edward W. Carter by Pauley.

One of the wells is in the southeastern portion of the 123-well field in North Mobile County, and the other three are in the northwest part.

Pauley was a controversial figure in the Truman administration. He figured in a hot Senate committee investigation that culminated on March 13, 1946 in Truman's withdrawal, at Pauley's request, of Pauley's nomination for undersecretary of the Navy.

The investigation was highlighted by charges and denials that Pauley solicited campaign funds improperly when he was Democratic national treasurer.

Death Date Coming, Says Billy Graham

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "Each man has a date with death," Billy Graham told 13,700 people at the 16,500 seat Cow Palace Saturday night, "and death is the gateway to a future life."

In an address nationally televised in the United States and Canada the Evangelist declared "no man can go beyond the day God has appointed for his death.

"It is stronger than love. It is stronger than skill or wealth. It is stronger than any power—political or otherwise.

"Jesus teaches that there is a future life, and death is the gateway to that life."

Graham was to meet with his executive committee after Saturday night's rally to determine whether the San Francisco Crusade, now in its fourth week, will be extended past its scheduled June 8 closing.

An announcement of the decision will be made Sunday Graham said, on whether the crusade will be extended one or two weeks.

Graham's sermon was telecast on 161 stations, 149 in the United States and 12 in Canada—but not in the San Francisco area.

OFFICIALS REPORT

Million Persons Disappear In USSR

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Department officials, backing up a charge of oppression in Russia, said Saturday that considerably more than a million people had disappeared in the Soviet Union in the last 10 or 15 years.

The charge was made Friday by Assistant Secretary Andrew H. Berding at a luncheon meeting.

He said the Soviets had conducted a massive propaganda campaign over the Little Rock High School integration troubles last year but that the world never hears from the Soviet Union about repressions of its minorities.

Asked what Berding was talking about specifically, State Department officials said he referred to such incidents as the following:

During the World War II four national groups were subjected to mass deportation to Siberia from th southern and southeastern Soviet Union on the ground that they had collaborated with or were sympathetic to the Germans.

The Crimean Tartars were said to have been virtually wiped out and the Kalmuks, Chechen-Ingush and Volga Germans disappeared virtually without a trace. The first three of these four groups totaled more than a million people and the Volga Germans, who had a republic of their own, numbered hundreds of thousands.

Bond Issue Is Okayed By Big Vote

EDINBURG, Tex. (UPI)— Hidalgo county voters Saturday gave overwhelming approval to a key bond issue for improving and expanding Lower Rio Grande Valley highways.

An unofficial but final tabulation of Saturday's election showed 6,288 votes for the bond issue and 1,891 against. A two-thirds majority was necessary.

The election climaxed several years of planning a new highway system. It calls for floating a issue to rebuild 218 miles of roads in Hidalgo county including a 40-mile expressway from east to west. It also provides for widening and repaving 98 miles of country roads and 80 miles of state and U. S. highways.

The approval means Hidalgo county will receive approximately $6 million in state funds for the highway program. County Judge Milton D. Richardson called it the "greatest achievement that Hidalgo county has made in many years.

Tex. Weather Rough; Hail And Winds

By UNITED Press International

Thundershowers, gusty winds, hail and an apparent tornado mixed with hot temperatures in Texas Saturday.

Scattered showers dropped along the Texas coast and in Central Texas during the day and thundershowers skipped through the Panhandle Saturday night.

The sheriff's office at Borger, in the Panhandle, said a funnel cloud was sighted by an oilfield worker about 15 miles northeast of Borger at about 6:50 p. m. Either the same or another tornado funnel was sighted by a farmer, E.G. Barbour, about 10 miles northeast of Borger. It did not touch ground.

The funnel was sighted during a heavy thundershower which was accompanied by pea-sized hail.

Earlier thunderstorms dumped 1.05 inches of rain on Houston and .44 inches on Beaumont.

Maximum temperatures ranged from a sizzling 107 degrees at Presidio Saturday to 85 degrees in Houston and Galveston. Most temperatures ranged in the 90s.

Winds gusted to 57 miles per hour during the thunderstorm in Houston.

Forecasters expected more widely scattered thundershowers Sunday with little change in temperatures.

Fight Ready On Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Senate critics of the foreign aid program girded Saturday for their annual fight to cut its price tag.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender (D-La.) acused the Eisenhower administration of making "ridiculous claims" that a big foreign aid program would help end the recession in this country.

He also questioned whether such mutual security spending was an effective way to wage the cold war.

"Through all the years of this giveaway program, I have not seen us win anything by the outpouring of dollars," Ellender said in a weekly broadcast for a New Orleans radio station (WWL).

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee Friday approved 14-1 in a bill to authorize $3,713,000,000 in military, economic and technical aid to friendly nations in the fiscal year starting July 1.

The Senate will debate the bill next week. Democratic and Republican leaders hope for a final vote before the week end.

The Senate committee's bill is roughly 229 million dollars under the amount originally asked by President Eisenhower and 110 million more than already authorized by the House.

The bill merely extends the aid program for another year and sets a spending ceiling. It does not appropriate any money for the program. That will be done in separate legislation later.

Grande Ecore Bridge Opens To Traffic

NATCHITOCHES, La. (AP)—The Grande Ecore bridge crossing Red River on Louisiana highway 6, linking Natchitoches with U. S. Highway 71, was officially reopened Saturday night.

A portion of the bridge washed away May 6 during the flood.

Highway engineers could not start work until May 19 because of the swiftness of the current.

Since Monday highway crews have been working around the clock and have replaced a 175-foot span in a bridge that was first built by a railroad organization in the early 1900s. The bridge totals about 400 feet.

A new bridge, under construction about two years, is expected to be completed in a few months.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Weather Bureau said Saturday it will no longer make public long-range hurricane forecasts which it started last year.

"We found the forecasts so general that it was difficult for the public to interpret," F.W. Reichelderfer, chief of the Bureau, told a reporter.

Reichelderfer was asked whether the decision resulted from protests by Sen. Spessard L. Holland damaging to business in Florida.

The weather chief said the senator was interested in the decision but it was made independent of Holland's protest. Reichelderfer said the Bureau discussed during last year's hurricane season whether to quit publicizing the forecasts and decided to do so last December or January.

The forecasts, for 30 - day periods, will continue to be made, however, for use by the Weather Bureau, Reichelderfer added.

'UNKNOWN SOLDIER'

Two Freshly-Dug Crypts Await The Bodies Of 2

WASHINGTON (UP)—Along the side of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery are two freshly - dug crypts.

They await the bodies of two nameless servicemen who gave their lives in World War II and the Korean War.

The burial will take place on Memorial Day, May 30. It will be as impressive as the government can make it. No official honor will be omitted.

But—unless there is a sudden change in public sentiment — it won't be like last time. So far, the American people haven't displayed much interest in the forthcoming ceremony.

In 1921, when the unknown soldier of World War I was buried, the whole nation joined in saluting him. It was one of the great emotional outpourings of U.S. history. In it were mingled grief and gratitude—and a fervent belief that it would never, never happen again.

Congress Passes Bill

The 1914-18 "war to end war" had been over for three years. Britain and France had set an example of honoring their dead by burying unknown servicemen in national shrines at Westminster Abbey and the Arc de Triomphe Congress had passed a bill for America to do likewise.

The ceremonies were to reach a climax in Arlington Cemetery on Armistice Day. Actually, they began nearly three weeks earlier in an improvised chapel in the city hall of the little French village of Chalons-Sur-Marne.

Four flag-draped caskets were placed in the chapel. They contained unidentified bodies of American Doughboys, exhumed from military cemeteries near four great battlegrounds of the western front.

At 3 o'clock in the afternoon of Oct. 23, 1921, a non-commissioned officer was chosen at random from the ranks of U.S. troops guarding the chapel. He was Sgt. Edward F. Younger, an erstwhile Chicago postal clerk. Younger was handed a small bouquet of pink and white roses, and instructed to place it upon one of the caskets.

Three times he walked slowly around the caskets, unable to decide. Then he quickly placed the flowers on the casket second from the right. The Unknown Soldier had been selected.

Became Focal Point

From that moment forward, that casket and its nameless, symbolic remains became a focal point of America's thoughts. Newspapers reported in great detail the ceremonies by which it was transferred by funeral train to the Port of Le Havre, and placed aboard the U.S. cruiser Olympia.

On Oct. 25, the Olympia sailed from Le Havre amid the roar of a 17-gun salute from the ships of the French fleet.

On Nov. 9, it entered American waters and steamed up the Potomac River to Washington, greeted by salutes from every warship and shore battery that it passed. Thousands of people stood silent and bare - headed along the river banks to see it pass.

When the Olympia docked at Washington Navy Yard, the casket was placed on a horse-drawn artillery caisson and taken to the rotunda of the Capitol to lie in state. President Warren G. Harding and Gen. John J. Pershing, commander of the American Expeditionary Forces that fought in France, went to the rotunda to place wreaths. Then the public was allowed to file past the troop guarded catafalque.

Thousands Pay Respects

From 4 p.m. until midnight, and all the next day, they came four abreast — 96,000 in all. Wreaths and sprays poured in from patriotic organizations and individuals — so many that the huge rotunda became an almost solid bower of flowers.

On Nov. 11, Armistice Day, residents of the capital city awoke to the thump-thump of the guns at Fort Myer, which continued firing once each minute for four hours.

The funeral procession left the Capitol and moved down Pennsylvania Avenue, past huge crowds. A mounted escort of cavalry led the way. Behind them detachments of sailors and infantrymen marched at slow time. Gen. Pershing and other high ranking officers of the Army and Navy followed the casket.

While the procession was moving across one of the two bridges that then spanned the Potomac River, President Harding's limousine, en route to Arlington on the Virginia side of the river, was caught in a terrific traffic jam on the other. Police had to route across a bumpy field to get him out of it.

Harding reached Arlington Memorial Amphitheater at 11:50 a.m., on time, but slightly out of breath. The great marble amphitheater, built in 1915, was already filled with U.S. and foreign dignitaries. The casket rested on a catafalque near the front center.

Trumpets Blared

Precisely at noon, trumpets blared a triple call to attention. The people in the amphitheater stood and bowed their heads for two minutes of silent prayer. Throughout the nation, all work ceased.

Harding had urged in a proclamation that all Americans take part in the services. In thousands of communities, churches held religious services timed to coincide with the Arlington rites.

The turnout was so great that one writer was moved to comment that "the unknown soldier has turned the American nation to religion more effectively than any preacher or evangelist has ever done."

The funeral service lasted about an hour. Harding delivered a florid speech pledgint that America would henceforth use its "influence and strength" to prevent any repetition of the "horrors of modern war."

Harding then placed on the casket the Congressional Medal of Honor and the Distinguished Service Cross. Earl Beatty, representing the King of England, presented the unknown soldier with the Victoria Cross—the first time this decoration was ever awarded to a person not a British subject. France, Belgium, Italy, Romania, Czechoslovakia and Poland presented their highest decorations.

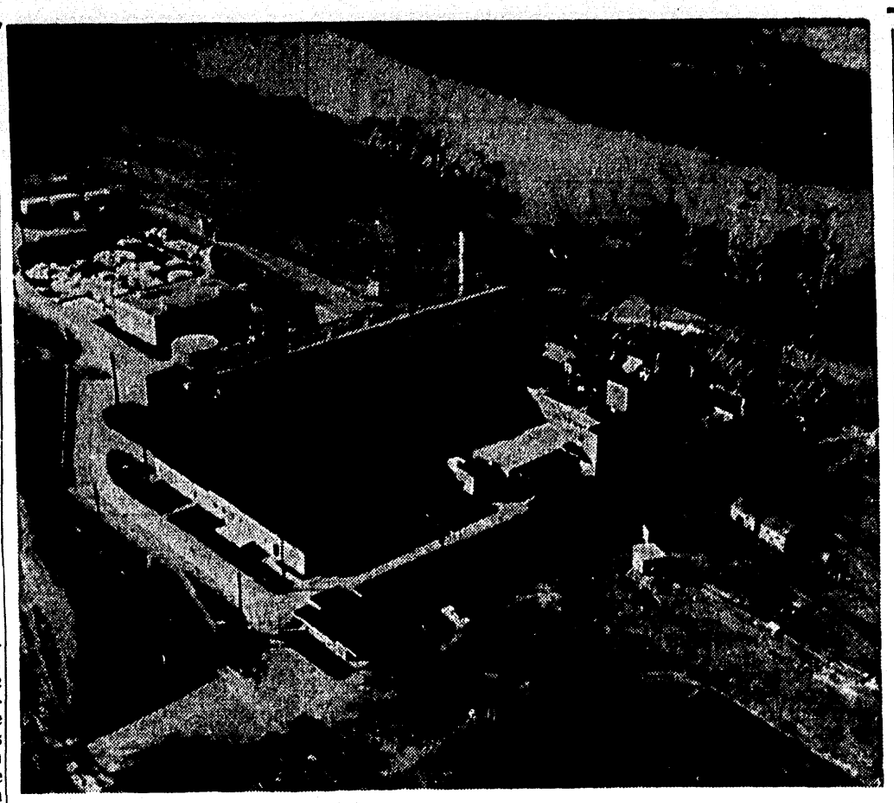

Buglers Sound Taps

After hymns were sung and scriptures read, the casket was borne to the front of the amphitheater, and placed in a marble sarcophagus, overlooking the Potomac River and artillery thundered a final 21-gun salute.

The next day, an international disarmament conference convened in Washington. Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes, recalling Harding's pledge over the bier of the unknown soldier, called on the assembled diplomats of the victorious powers to scrap large parts of their navies.

The conference resulted in the famous naval limitation treaty of 1921. Diplomats hailed it as an insurance policy for permanent peace.

It didn't work out that way. Thirty-seven years and two wars later, America is burying two more unknown servicemen at Arlington.

A-PLANT TO BE DEDICATED—This is the 110-million-dollar Shippingport nuclear power station, the world's first large-scale completely commercial atomic power plant, which will be dedicated Monday. The smokeless and virtually noiseless plant, located on the Ohio River about 25 miles northwest of Pittsburgh, will produce enough electricity at full power to supply needs of a residential community of 250,000 persons. INTERPRETING

Nehru Role Aired; Big Man In India

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

When Prime Minister Nehru of India first proposed that he take time out to ponder the problems of his country it was assumed abroad that he meant her place in the world as well as her internal politics.

It has taken the United States a long time to learn that a vast nation's politics cannot be conducted independently of her relations with other nations.

That's why India's approach to a peculiarly Nehru brand of socialism stirs such great interest. Under Nehru she is attempting a two-horse approach.

One horse is socialization of local industry when the government considers it is not being conducted for the general welfare.

The other horse is for the attraction of foreign free enterprise capital which India cannot provide for herself.

In foreign affairs this has produced an attempt to stand at the fulcrum while the world teeters between capitalism and Communism. Nehru calls it neutralism.

This dualism has created many shades of opinion in Nehru's own Congress party, which began merely as a coalition of forces which were working for independence from Britain.

At the same time, the party has developed some of the tendencies often seen where one party has been in control for a long time. Secondary leaders have made politics and its emoluments a personal end instead of a national means.

So Nehru has chosen to spend the first part of his vacation in the Punjab, where party scandals have arisen, and there is a good chance his opportunities to "ponder" have been reduced.

What might Nehru have pondered if he had not become bogged down in the details of office and party politics?

Just recently he showed signs of recognizing that the Communist party in India—against which he has always been adamant locally—is but another cohort of international communism.

Then he watered it down by scoffing at the Western concept of communism's determination on world conquest.

He might have pondered why communism can be so bad in India and yet have good attributes elsewhere.

He might have pondered how Communist economic infiltration can be expected to work peacefully beside free enterprise.

He might have pondered the principles which must eventually outweigh the expediences in the course of an extremely complex new nation.

Nehru is eminently qualified by nature and learning for just such contemplations. He is a man from whom you expect philosophy.

Yet somehow he seems so tied up with party squabbles, with the balancing of day-to-day problems, as to create doubt that he will get around again to the broad effort which used to occupy him.

Court Actions Lashed

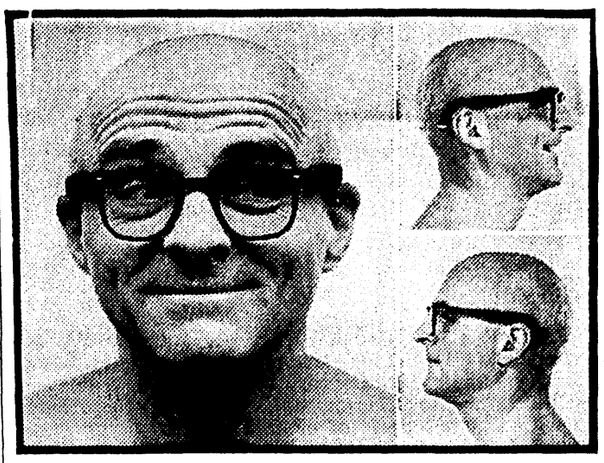

WASHINGTON (UP)—Lashing out at Supreme Court decisions in the last two years, the Senate Internal Security subcommittee said Saturday: "The net of all these decisions has been comfort for communists and criminals."

The subcommittee also said the result has been "frustration for law enforcement officials, serious interference with congress' self-informing function, and destruction of all efforts of the American people to protect themselves against subversion at home through their state governments."

In the 12th and final installment of its annual report, the subcommittee called for legislation to undo the effects of some of the court's rulings in subversive cases and to curb its review powers.

Such a measure recently was approved by the subcommittee's parent body, the Senate Judiciary Committee, by a 10-5 vote and now is on the Senate calendar.

COLOMBEY - LES-DEUX-EGLISE, France (AP) — Across the dusty road from where Gen. Charles De Gaulle sits awaiting a call to lead France, an old sign reads:

"No beggars allowed in this village."

Colombey-Les-Deux-Eglise (Colombey of the two churches) has erupted into the news from centuries of rural slumber.

Well aware that the 67-year-old general is their first citizen, many villagers now regard him as the central figure of France, if not the universe.

There are dissenters, of course, among the population's 400 souls.

De Gaulle's house was converted into a home from a brewery about 50 years ago.

The general bought it in 1920 when he was a young cavalry officer stationed at nearby Metz.

The general and his family live quietly and few of the peasants know the general.

Since the austere general offered to lead France out of its present difficulties, security police have appeared in the sleepy village.

They stand in the road before the village gates, in the fields about the house, and beside the hedges and fences that hem it in.

'UNKNOWN SOLDIER'

Two Freshly-Dug Crypts Await The Bodies Of 2

WASHINGTON (UP)—Along the side of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery are two freshly - dug crypts.

They await the bodies of two nameless servicemen who gave their lives in World War II and the Korean War.

The burial will take place on Memorial Day, May 30. It will be as impressive as the government can make it. No official honor will be omitted.

But—unless there is a sudden change in public sentiment — it won't be like last time. So far, the American people haven't displayed much interest in the forthcoming ceremony.

LAW OF THE GUN IS DEAD

Modern Marshal Has Many Duties

.....By JOHN HALBACH

The famed 'town marshal' of yester-years has today been reduced to a figment of warped television extravaganzas.

This tall, suave, quick-to-the trigger video lawman rules his stage-set domain with reckless abandon, living solely by the "law of the gun."

His weekly appearances bulge with inexhaustible displays of raw courage as he boldly rids the township of unscrupulous characters.

So goes the television version of the badge-bearing guardian of the untamed frontier.

But, from this pseudo television repertoire emerges a contradictor — the remaining town marshal.

Though TV tales perhaps suggest that the legendary marshal vanished with the last stagecoach, hundreds of the lone lawmen still police our more isolated communities.

Modern Version

A modern version of the 'town marshal' could easily be adapted at Collinston, a small, agricultural community some 25-miles southeast of Monroe.

Collinston with its half-a-dozen stores, post-office, two bar-rooms and cafe is probably a bit similar to the early frontier towns. Most of its 700 inhabitants are independent people, depending upon farming and ranching as a livlihood.

And, almost in character with the early pioneer period, the little town is protected by a town marshal.

Collinston's Marshal W. E. Kitchens, however, has failed to find the colorful, boisterous life as portrayed in television series of the 18th Century lawman.

Changed Now

"I suppose it could have been that way then," muses Marshal Kitchens, "but it's sure changed now."

"The marshal today doesn't just walk down a dust-crusted street and stare-down a few bad men," laughs Kitchens. "He's also the street and water maintenance supervisor, garbage commissioner and tax and license collector, among other less dynamic duties."

Unlike his early predecessors, Marshal Kitchens shuns the use of a gun.

"The law of the gun died long ago," says Kitchens, adding that he resorts to "armed enforcement" only to protect himself in a demanding situation.

During seven years as Marshal, the mild, soft-spoken Collinston officer has been forced to shoot and kill only one man, a knife-weilding assailant who cornered the lawman in a train yard.

Similarity

A similarity between the modern Marshal and the television lawmen comes under less violent circumstances than video's popular gun duels.

As in the TV western opera, Marshal Kitchens occasionally "breaks-up" a free-for-all fistic fling or illegal gambling dealings.

The lawman modestly admits his right hand has been broken three times, and his fingers shattered frequently while single-handedly "quieting things down a little." Kitchen right-arm from the wrist to elbow is a solid bruise from interrupting a recent fist fight.

"Most of my law-enforcing is centered about corraling drunks and disturbers of the peace," says the 51-year-old Collinston officer. "Our town is pretty quiet today, though a few burglaries and robberies have been perpetrated."

The modern marshal does have an advantage over the early lawman, says Kitchens, since in most instances he is also deputy sheriff and has the close co-operation of nearby Parish authorities.

Sheriff E. L. Hinton of Morehouse Parish, commissioned Kitchens a deputy in 1954, allowing the Marshal to extend his jurisdiction and gain the support of the stronger Parish law-enforcement agency.

The Marshal

Despite his light-regard for the fiction-fabricated television lawman, Marshal Kitchens could easily be mistaken by a stranger as one of the "old fold."

He is a tall, guant man whose tan, weathered face reflects characteristics of the early lawman. His eyes are nervously alert, and when his lean figure ambles along the quiet streets of Collinston, he frames a picture reminiscent of the Old West. His slow, deliberate drawl even punctuates the imaginative resemblence.

But, while TV's lawmen are mostly pictured as swaggering, young gigilos caring only for their horse and six-shooter, Marshal Kitchens shows a definite contrast.

He is a devoted family man, the father of eight children. Marshal Kitchens and his wife, Jelvie live at Collinston.

One might think Marshal Kitchens' experiences are dull and uneventful compared to television portrayed lawmen of long ago, but with a few exceptions they are probably almost the same.

Journey Ends In Hospital For Youths

An attempt to whisk a traffic accident victim from St. Francis Hospital here during the early hours of yesterday morning ended a 500-mile stolen car trip by three Houston teenagers, authorities said.

In custody were two girls and a boy whose ages range from 14 to 16. They were believed by authorities to have stolen four automobiles in their eastward trip.

The climax came shortly before Friday midnight when the car in which they were riding, traced to Shreveport, overturned a few mile east of Calhoun, and slightly injured the two girls. They were taken to the St. Francis Hospital where they were treated for minor cuts and bruises.

The boy, 16, uninjured, fled from the scene and escaped temporarily.

He was captured by the Monroe Police, they said, after he had stolen another car in West Monroe and made an attempt to slip the two girls from the hospital.

The trio, who were reported by police to have past records in Houston, were running away from home and were blamed with having stolen cars in Houston, Nacogging stolen cars in Houston, Nacogdoches, Shreveport and West Monroe. They left Houston sometime Friday morning.

A Walk Through Capitol Corridors

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE - "They're breaking up," warned Bryce Miller of United Press, and the Capitol Press Corps raced off to the second of the legislature's two important executive meetings.

A dozen or so reporters, representing the majority of Louisiana's major newspapers, radio and television stations, scrambled down the corridor to cover another of the innumerable facets of legislative news.

Jim McLean, Associated Press Capitol Chief, was waiting for his colleagues when they entered the room and the smug expression on his face was indicative of the competitive spirit which exists within the Press Corps. He had arrived first.

A spokesman read a prepared statement as pencils scratched and newsreel cameras hummed. The statement ended, Ed Clinton, seasoned Baton Rouge Capitol Reporter, fired three quick questions and his fellow newsmen followed suit. The real news began seeping to light.

CONFERENCE ENDED

The conference ended and the reporters with the wire service deadlines broke for their typewriters. A Northeast Louisiana delegation was cornered for the "local angle."

Within an hour, you, the listener, the viewer, the reader - the public - began receiving the story of your elected officials in action.

It was made public, through one channel or another, in as many areas of the state as are serviced by a news media, by 22 reporters who comprise the '58 Legislative Capitol Press Corps.

As McLean appropriately expressed it, "we work as a team against the Legislature."

The "Team" which McLean spoke of is not to be interpreted as, say that of a football squad which sends 11 men into action under the same banner agains a designated foe. But rather, each member of the Press Corps here works first for his own organization and secondly in a spirit of cooperation to help his fellow reporters when his own work has been done.

They strive not to "beat" the Legislature, but to bring it onto a field where all in sight can see. This is a job which never ends.

This year's Press Corps, hadquartered in the basement press room of the Capitol, is made up of reporters from Baton Rouge, Shreveport, New Orleans and Monroe. They write a conservative estimate 40,000 words per day.

MOUNTAIN OF COPY

That mountain fo copy is filed through Western Union, over the wires of Associated Press, United Press and International News Service and via telephone when distant deadlines are pushing.

It's a tireless cycle that starts at early morning and churns steadily throughout the day and often into the night.

Its Dean, and all members of the Press Corps agree, is B. L. (Barney) Krebs of the Times-Picayune, now in his sixties, who has covered the Legislature for at least 30 years.

Krebs is considered the technical consultant of the corps and can see through a legislative trick long before it happens. His long years of experience make him the best interpreter of bills and political moves in the fourth estate.

Krebs' calm composure in face of excitement was best known when, during the wild '56 legislature, a lawmaker threw a firecracker beneath his chair at the press table in the House.

"Nothing that this legislature does can shock us," returned Krebs.

Second in line to Krebs with years of legislative coverage is Margaret Dixon, managing editor of the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate. She's been at it 20 years.

Other long-year veterans include Jack Gould, formerly with the AP and now a Public Relations Executive stringing for ins, with 16 years, and Clinton, Baton Rouge State-Times, with 15 years.

Except for three freshmen on this year's corps, the majority of newsmen have covered for several years; like McLean, eight years, F. E. Shepard, State-Times, since '47. Ray McDaniel, Shreveport Times, since '53 and Ed Price, Morning Advocate, since '48.

Quite often out-of-state papers assign reporters to cover certain phases of the legislature which pertain, directly or indirectly, to matters of interest in their areas.

"SINGLE SHOTTERS"

At other times, "single shotters" as they are referred to on the Press Corps, come in for a day or so to cover one particular bill or move which may be of special interest to the readers of coverage area.

Most of the coverage, however, is done by newspaper men who follow the legislature from its opening session through 60 long days until the finale.

However, this year's Corps, according to the State Times' Clinton, includes more radio and tv stations in the Baton Rouge and New Orleans areas are represented.

News media with special representatives, besides those already mentioned, include Emile Comar, News Orleans States, W. B. Ragsdale, AP, Margaret Sheppard, UP, Charley Phillips, Shreveport Journal, Robert Wagner, Times Picayune, Kenneth Walker, Colfax Chronicle and Louisiana Press Association President, Herman Deustch, News Orleans item, Robert Wagner, Times-Picayune, Bob Hamm, WJBO, Bob Dunham, WBRZ-TV, Roland Daigre, WAFB-TV, Ed Planer, WDSU-TV, and Rand Gover, WWL-TV.

"Thats only half enough," Clinton philosophized.

"Hugh," barked William Miller, AP's teletype operator. "If there were any more of you guys I'd be here all night."

Bank Woman Tells Group To Open Minds

BILOXI, Miss. (AP) — Miss Iweta Miller, president of the National Assn. of Bank Women, told Mississippi women bankers Saturday to have open, flexible minds that can be stretched with the expanding economy.

Miss Miller said we must have minds "to accept new ideas and put them into effective practice.

"We must, and we will, constantly study, seek and find educational channels so as to further build up our position and network in the banking profession," she said.

Time is deceptive, she told the bank women, and in banking a minute is long enough to make an everlasting friend or bitter enemy.

One out of three young Americans in college, she said, is a woman. Women work in all of the 446 occupations classified by the Bureau of the Census and the business of banking can attract its share of them, she said.

Feminine qualities, she said, can be assets.

"A woman's perrogative to change her mind makes her more adaptable to necessary change," she said, "her organization skill makes her a good administrator, and her 'woman's intuition' often translates into greater sensitivity to people and their problems."

Officials announced the southern region of the bank women's organization will be split into two divisions at the national meeting at Atlanta Oct. 6-9.

Florida, Georgia and the Carolinas will make up the southeastern division, while Alabama, Kentucky, Mississippi, Louisiana and Tennessee will comprise the southern division.

Officers for the two new divisions will be nominated tomorrow.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Johnson, Memphis, Tenn., told a morning meeting a cooperative spirit is essential to good public relations.

Banking and trust businesses, she said, are vested with the public interest. Their policies, actions and words should be in the public interest, she said.

Deshotel Wants All But 2 State Officials Named

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Rep. Kenneth Deshotel said today Louisiana government would be smoother if all but two top state officials were appointed.

The St. Landry lawmaker said state government at present is similar to a business office where the top official has authority over only part of the staff and the remainder go about their duties without coordination.

"As it is now in Louisiana," Deshotel explained, "an elected department head can put the blame on the governor, and vice versa." He said it creates "an unwieldy situation, confusing the people and resulting in loose efforts and uneconomical operations."

He said two of the three biggest state government departments are operated by appointed heads, naming welfare and highway departments.

"Only the Department of Education spends more tax money than the welfare agency," he said, "yet the appointed welfare director seems to keep the department running smoothly compared to education."

Deshotel is author of five constitutional proposals he introduced in the House revising legislative and executive branches.

He proposes:

The governor appoint for four-year terms, with Senate consent the state treasurer, secretary of state, register of state lands, commissioner of agriculture, attorney general, commissioner of insurance and state superintendent of education.

2. Sessions of the Legislature in even-numbered years for 180 days and in odd-numbered years for 60 days.

3. An annual salary of $8,000 for legislators, plus a $200-a-month expense account.

4. A veto session following regular legislative sessions.

Deshotel said his plan would set up he state government along the lines of the federal government, and the cabinet of variou department heads is appointed," he said.

He believes the federal system would work even better in Louisiana.

"I do not advocate incorporating all of the details of the federal system into our state government," he said, "but I believe we could profit by mistakes on the national level and create here a model of efficient, responsible government."

A Walk Through Capitol Corridors

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

BATON ROUGE - "They're breaking up," warned Bryce Miller of United Press, and the Capitol Press Corps raced off to the second of the legislature's two important executive meetings.

A dozen or so reporters, representing the majority of Louisiana's major newspapers, radio and television stations, scrambled down the corridor to cover another of the innumerable facets of legislative news.

Jim McLean, Associated Press Capitol Chief, was waiting for his colleagues when they entered the room and the smug expression on his face was indicative of the competitive spirit which exists within the Press Corps. He had arrived first.

A spokesman read a prepared statement as pencils scratched and newsreel cameras hummed. The statement ended, Ed Clinton, seasoned Baton Rouge Capitol Reporter, fired three quick questions and his fellow newsmen followed suit. The real news began seeping to light.

CONFERENCE ENDED

The conference ended and the reporters with the wire service deadlines broke for their typewriters. A Northeast Louisiana delegation was cornered for the "local angle."

Within an hour, you, the listener, the viewer, the reader - the public - began receiving the story of your elected officials in action.

It was made public, through one channel or another, in as many areas of the state as are serviced by a news media, by 22 reporters who comprise the '58 Legislative Capitol Press Corps.

As McLean appropriately expressed it, "we work as a team against the Legislature."

The "Team" which McLean spoke of is not to be interpreted as, say that of a football squad which sends 11 men into action under the same banner agains a designated foe. But rather, each member of the Press Corps here works first for his own organization and secondly in a spirit of cooperation to help his fellow reporters when his own work has been done.

They strive not to "beat" the Legislature, but to bring it onto a field where all in sight can see. This is a job which never ends.

This year's Press Corps, hadquartered in the basement press room of the Capitol, is made up of reporters from Baton Rouge, Shreveport, New Orleans and Monroe. They write a conservative estimate 40,000 words per day.

MOUNTAIN OF COPY

That mountain fo copy is filed through Western Union, over the wires of Associated Press, United Press and International News Service and via telephone when distant deadlines are pushing.

It's a tireless cycle that starts at early morning and churns steadily throughout the day and often into the night.

Its Dean, and all members of the Press Corps agree, is B. L. (Barney) Krebs of the Times-Picayune, now in his sixties, who has covered the Legislature for at least 30 years.

Krebs is considered the technical consultant of the corps and can see through a legislative trick long before it happens. His long years of experience make him the best interpreter of bills and political moves in the fourth estate.

Krebs' calm composure in face of excitement was best known when, during the wild '56 legislature, a lawmaker threw a firecracker beneath his chair at the press table in the House.

"Nothing that this legislature does can shock us," returned Krebs.

Second in line to Krebs with years of legislative coverage is Margaret Dixon, managing editor of the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate. She's been at it 20 years.

Other long-year veterans include Jack Gould, formerly with the AP and now a Public Relations Executive stringing for ins, with 16 years, and Clinton, Baton Rouge State-Times, with 15 years.

Except for three freshmen on this year's corps, the majority of newsmen have covered for several years; like McLean, eight years, F. E. Shepard, State-Times, since '47, Ray McDaniel, Shreveport Times, since '53 and Ed Price, Morning Advocate, since '48.

Quite often out-of-state papers assign reporters to cover certain phases of the legislature which pertain, directly or indirectly, to matters of interest in their areas.

"SINGLE SHOTTERS"

At other times, "single shotters" as they are referred to on the Press Corps, come in for a day or so to cover one particular bill or move which may be of special interest to the readers of coverage area.

LETTERMEN NAMED

McMullen Leading Indian Batter With .412 Average

All-Gulf States Conference center fielder Ike McMullen was Northeast's leading hitter with a sparkling .412 average, 25 points better than his nearest competitor, recently released team statistics show.

The Monroe junior connected for 35 hits in 85 at-bats over the season to shade senior right fielder Lyle Dorsey, who hit .387. Another all-GSC performer, third baseman Gary Huckaby, was third with a .370 average, just edging left fielder James Mock's .368.

Seven Indian batters hit over .300 for George Luffy's Northeast club, runnerup in the conference. In addition to the four above, Homer Rouse, Jay and Grass and Jackie Brooks went over the mark. Outfielder Rouse hit at a .314 clip, pitcher Gross qualified with five hits in 16 trips for a .313 average and second baseman Jackie Brooks, who missed the last half of the season because of broken collarbone, hit .307.

Records compiled by team statisticians Jo Ann Brooks and Pat Beardon show senior righthander Carroll George the club's top pitcheh with a 4-2 record. Freshman lefty Terry Reeves won four and lost three and sophomore Jay Gross had a 2-3 mark. Veteran reliefer Huey Jinks won two and lost none and Mock a 1-1 record.

Eighteen men lettered for Northeast, only four of them seniors. George, Brooks and Dorsey won't be back nex year but the other senior, team captian Harry "Red" Rushing, has another year of eligibility remaining and may return.

The other letter earners are McMullen, Huckaby, Mock, Rouse, first baseman Bob Groves, catcher Don Ballard, Ralph Ward and Faye Thurmon, second baseman George Bryan, pitchers Huey Jinks, Terry Reeves, Jackie Norman, and Gross and manager Mike Logan.

TORNADO MATCH

Christy Vs. Laye Again At Kallio's

Jerry Christy, a wrestler who won't take two straight defeats for an answer, challenges Charley Laye again at Kallio's Arena Monday night, this time in a "Tornado" bout.

This battle to the death or thereabouts will have a 90-minute limit but the falls won't count. To win, one of the grapplers must force the other to give up twice. There will be no referee in the ring but the official will sit outside the ring and blow a whistle to call time after each submission.

This unorthodox match is the main event on a card also featuring a tag team bout between Al Massey and Dick Barkley and George Curtis and Bill Barney. The tag affair will go one hour or less with two falls to win.

To get back to the "Tornado" bout, in case one of the wrestlers gets bloodthirsty and doesn't turn loose when the whistle blows, a likely event considering the earlier Laye-Christy matchs, the guilty man will be fined $5 and be penalized the fall.

This match qualifies for that much over worked term, grudge bout. Christy and charitable Charles have tangled here for the last two Monday nights and Laye has won both, much to the disgust of local fandom. On both occasions Christy refused to quit after the match was over and gave Laye a couple of bad beatings—after the match.

Both previous matches have been characterized by lots of rough stuff with Laye, as usual, being the instigator and Christy readily replying with the same.

Tomorrow's match will be another battle between experience and youth and experience, not youth, has been served so far. The veteran Laye knows all the dirty tricks in the trade and uses them often. Christy, strong and fast, has had the better of the going in the two previous matches but lost both. He's determined not to lose this one.

Acorn Stakes Easily Taken By Big Effort

NEW YORK (AP) — The Brookmeade Stable's Big Effort easily won the $35,850 Acorn Stakes for 3-year-old fillies Saturday at Belmont Park, drawing away at the finish for a six-length margin over Ned W. Brent's Polamby.

Pete Anderson rode Big Effort, who was scoring her second victory in as many starts this season. The bay filly paid $23.80, $9.50 and $4.80 in turning back 10 rivals. Time for the mile was 1:37 2-5 on a fast track.

Polamby, with Eddie Arcaro up in quest of his fourth Acorn, was two lengths ahead of the $2.20 for $1 favorite, the Foxcatcher Farm's Lopar, ridden by Eric Guerin.

James F. Hines' Ramadel, winner of the Ashland Stakes at Keeneland in April, set the pace for three quarters of a mile but tired and finished fifth. James Cox Brady's Foreword was fourth.

Big Effort, a daughter of the South American sire, Endeavour II, out of Sux Mixa, by Sun Briar, came up from fifth place after three quarters. The filly went wide on the final turn, then ducked in a bit as she straightened for home. Anderson quickly got Big Effort on the lead, and with about an eighth to travel she had opened up three lengths over Polamby.

The Acorn traditionally leads up to the $60,000 - added Coaching Club American Oaks, a mile and three-eighths race for the 3-year-old misses to be held at Belmont June 21.

Dixie Miss was sixth, followed by Charming Hildy, Shy Dancer, Locust Time, Craftiness, and Two Cent Stamp.

This was the first stakes victory for Big Effort, whose best previous showing against the top fillies was a third behind Wendasy and Crown in the Marguerite Stakes at Pimlico last fall as a 2-year-old.

Big Effort won an allowance race at Belmont Tuesday in her only other start this season, earning $3,250. In eight starts last year she won two races and $11,110.

This victory was worth $22,952.50 to her owner, Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloan of New York and Virginia.

A crowd of 39,006 turned out in sunny, pleasant weather.

SCHROEDER

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Jimmy Schroeder of Buffalo, N. Y., took the lead in the American Bowling Congress Masters Tournament qualifying rounds Saturday. He rolled a four-game total of 931 on scores of 188, 249, 226, 268.

The second four-game qualifying block will be rolled Sunday. The top 35 scorers for the eight-game preliminaries go into the final Sunday night along with 29 seeded stars.

Alabama Girl Claims Four Stroke Lead

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Jo Ann Prentice of Birmingham, Ala., shot a 5-under-par 70 Saturday for a four-stroke lead in the $5,000 Land of the Sky Women's Open Golf Tournament.

But she didn't gain ground over her nearest pursuers, despite her 36-hole total of 68-70—138.

Runner - up Maureen Bauer Hagge of Delray Beach, Fla., fired a 69 to go with her opening 73 of Friday for a total of 142.

And Beverly Hanson of Indio, Calif., who was eight strokes off the pace with a 76 after the first round, cut the deficit to five stroke by shooting a women's record 67 over the Beaver Lake course for a 143 total.

The 21 professionals in the tournament are playing over three Asheville courses. They opened at 6,250-yard Biltmore Forest Country Club Friday and finish Sunday at the Country Club of Asheville course.

Joyce Ziske, shooting for a 69 which would have put her in a tie for fourth at 144 with Wiffie Smith and Ruthie Jessen, had a triple bogie on the last hole. She hit her tee shot into woods. She wound up with 75-75—147, tied for ninth.

Cage All-State Javelin Tosser For Second Year

By BILL McINTYRE
The Shreveport Times
(Written for the Louisiana Sports Writers Assn.)

SHREVEPORT, La. (Special)—A total of 44 track and field competitors — the most ever picked—ran, tossed and jumped their way into the sixth annual Louisiana Sports Writers Association All-State prep cinder lineup for the 1958 season and there's a reason—Pelican State spikemen are getting better every spring.

During the past season members of the sixth all - state squad combined to topple nine of the 17 best times, heights and distances posted by the 1957 array. And this year's crew blasted eight of the state's composite records although only four will be considered as new marks.

The list of 44 exceeds the 1957 team by 17 members. The previous high had been the 32-man team picked in 1955 and the previous low was 20 in 1953.

Class AAA schools, comprising Louisiana's strongest division, contributed 32 of the 44 all-staters,

JOE CAGE

Class AA produced six others and Class B placed four. Classes A and C managed to pick up one berth apiece.

In a sectional breakdown north Louisiana produced the most all-staters — 18. New Orleans and the southeast district landed nine cinder standouts each and the southwest coughed up the remaining eight. North Louisiana's top total of 18 came about when Byrd of Shreveport, the triple - A state champion, picked up eight positions, including six in the relays alone.

Representing Byrd were quarter-miler Bo Campbell and half-miler Hayden Hicks along with relaymen John Alexander, George Thompson, Homer Blane, Charles Peatross, George Tedford and Ronnie Brown.

Other north Louisiana selections included sprinter Ed Williams of Jena; quarter- miler Dayton Baker of Springhill; half - miler Earl Wright of Ruston; milers Glenn Hartsell of Haynesville, George Abbo't of Jonesboro - Hodge and Wayne Olds of Fair Park; javelin star Joe Cage of Neville of Monroe; hop-step-jumper Don Harvey of Stonewall and a pair of Plain Dealing aces, shot putter Jack Byrd and broad jumper Fred McKellar.

Seven of the cinder flashes strained their way into the all-star lineup for the second straight year. Also on the 1957 roster were Campbell, Hicks, Williams, Olds, Cage, McKellar and Joe Harris of Baton Rouge.

Harris, the sensational pole-vaulting champion, earned another distinction — he is the only track and field all - stater to have made the post-season lineup for four consecutive years. Campbell and Olds are on the roster for the third season, joining past all-staters Don Troutman of Roanoke, Allen Semar of New Iberia and Joe Hill of Byrd in that respect.

Only two of the present all-staters have a chance to emulate Harris in the "frosh-through-senior" distinction. Campbell has another season on the cinders in 1959 and Cage, the greatest javelin thrower in Louisiana's history, is a mere sophomore at Neville.

Four members of the current crew all share honors in the versatility department, having squeezed into the lineup at two individual events each. Jim Fonaris of DeLasalle posted the state's best time in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, Bill Croveling of LaGrange, topped both the 180 and 120 yard hurdles, Doug Constant of Istrouma, was No. 2 in the furlong dash and No. 1 in the broad jump and McKellar placed in both the broad and hop-step-jumps. Campbell's name appears in five events, but four of those were relays.

In reviewing the past campaign on the cinders one fact stands out bright and clear — there are four monopolies in effect. Byrd has won the Class AAA title in four of the past five seasons (1954-55-56-58) and hasn't finished lower than second since 1952; Ruston has won three straight Class AA championships; Marion has been the Class A titleholder for the past two springs; and Erath has reigned in Class B since 1956. Only Louisiana School of the Deaf, the 1958 C champion in place of Start, is a new crown - wearer.

BYRD LEADS WITH FIVE

West Monroe Places Four Players On All-District

District champion Byrd and runnerup West Monroe placed nine of the 11 players on the all-district 1-AAA baseball team selected by league coaches and area sportswriters. Byrd landed five players on the all-star team and West Monroe four.

West Monroe's representatives were catcher Kelton Bacon, second baseman Jerry Stovall, shortstop Shelby Aulds and outfielder Robert Perkins. Byrd Yellow Jackets on the team are pitcher Jerry Godwin, first baseman Billy Fitzgerald, third sacker Bill Hancock and outfielders Joe Zaffater and Charley Ford.

The conference's two other schools, Fair Park and Ouachita, finished out the team with one representative each. Ouachita's Lanny Johnson, a third baseman, won the utility post on the all-district team and Fair Park's Ronnie Ruth got the other pitcher's berth.

Godwin, Fitzgerald, Aulds and Zaffater were unanimous choices.

J. D. Cox of Byrd, who took his team to the state AAA finals, was selected the district's "Coach of the Year".

Fitzgerald was the leading hitter among the all-stars with a .431 mark. Two others went over the .400 mark. Stovall hit .405 and Ford .403. Fitzgerald, a Byrd senior, was also one of the loop's better pitchers with a 4-1 record.

Zaffater hit a .352 clip and Bacon hit .320. Perkins batted an even .300 while Johnson hit .297, Hancock .290, and Aulds .250.

Lefthander, Godwin, one of the best pitching prospects in the state, was the district's winningest pitcher with eight wins in 11 decisions. Ruth, Fair Park's ace southpaw, won six and lost three. Ruth edged West Monroe's Harry Boyd, 4-2 for the year, and Ouachita's Bob Satterfield, who became ineligible in midseason.

Bacon won the catcher's berth over Fair Park's Richard Bell easily. The husky Rebel backstop was his club's top slugger and a capable fielder. Stovall won all of the coach's votes except that of Fair Park's Milford Andrews who voted for Indian George Garrett.

The smooth-fielding Aulds had no opposition for shortstop. He and Johnson also made the all-district basketball team. Both are seniors. Johnson was the only man besides Hancock to get a vote for third.

Perkins alternated at third and left field for Dan McClure's West Monroe club, fielded both positions well and hit consistently, especially in the clutch.

Byrd's Ford rapped out 27 hits in 67 times at bat, the best hit production on his team. Zaffater, like Ford, a senior, had 25 safeties in 71 trips.

Bucks' Davis Equals World Mark In 440

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Despite a world record-matching 440 yard run by Ohio State's Glenn Davis and five new Big Ten marks, it was Illinois consistency which won the conference outdoor track title Saturday.

Davis sped to a 45.8 quarter-mile triumph even though he slackened 10 feet from the finish. His performance was even more notable because it was around two turns. The present record was set around only one turn by Jim Lea of Southern California at Modesto, Calif., May 26, 1956.

Illinois, indoor team champion, too, dethroned Indiana with 46 points although the Illini captured only two firsts on the 14-event two-day program. The Illini took seven second places to build up their total.

Big Ten records were shattered in the 880, two-mile and shot put and one-mile relay while the 120 high hurdles mark was equalled.

Indiana won the closing mile relay to finish second with 41 points. Ohio State was third with 35.

Football star Bob Mitchell, dethroning Willmer Fowler of Northwestern in the 220-yard dash and taking second in the broad jump and 100-yard dash, spearheaded the balanced Illinois attack.

The only other Illini first came from Ernie Haisley in the high jump.

Mitchell was the top individual scorer with 18 points. Davis was next with 11, scoring a second in the 220, fifth in the broad jump and sharing in Ohio State's third in the mile relay.

Conference records set, in addition to Davis' performance, included:

Len Edelen of Minnesota with 9:08.2 in the two-mile; Bob Henry of Minnesota with 56½ in the shot put; Dave Lean of Michigan State with 1:50.1 in the half mile, and Indiana with 3:11.7 in the mile relay.

Will May of Indiana matched a 21-year-old record of 14 seconds flat in the 120-yard high hurdles.

LSU Announce Football Series

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. — (UPI)—Texas A&M and Louisiana State Saturday announced a four-game football series, with all games to be played at Baton Rouge, La., starting in 1960.

The games will be played Sept. 16, 1960; Sept. 30, 1961; Sept. 22, 1962 and Sept. 21, 1963.

The two teams have met 23 times since 1899, the last time in 1956 when Texas A&M won a 9-6 decision. The Aggies hold an 11-10 edge with two ties.

LETTERMEN NAMED

McMullen Leading Indian Batter With .412 Average

All-Gulf States Conference center fielder Ike McMullen was Northeast's leading hitter with a sparkling .412 average, 25 points better than his nearest competitor, recently released team statistics show.

The Monroe junior connected for 35 hits in 85 at-bats over the season to shade senior right fielder Lyle Dorsey, who hit .387. Another all-GSC performer, third baseman Gary Huckaby, was third with a .370 average, just edging left fielder James Mock's .368.

Seven Indian batters hit over .300 for George Luffy's Northeast club, runnerup in the conference. In addition to the four above, Homer Rouse, Jay and Grass and Jackie Brooks went over the mark. Outfielder Rouse hit at a .314 clip, pitcher Gross qualified with five hits in 16 trips for a .313 average and second baseman Jackie Brooks, who missed the last half of the season because of broken collarbone, hit .307.

Records compiled by team statisticians Jo Ann Brooks and Pat Beardon show senior righthander Carroll George the club's top pitcheh with a 4-2 record. Freshman lefty Terry Reeves won four and lost three and sophomore Jay Gross had a 2 3 mark. Veteran reliefer Heuy Jinks won two and lost none and Mock a 1-1 record.

Eighteen men lettered for Northeast, only four of them seniors. George, Brooks and Dorsey won't be back nex year but the other senior, team captian Harry "Red" Rushing, has another year of eligibility remaining and may return.

The other letter earners are McMullen, Huckaby, Mock, Rouse, first baseman Bob Groves, catcher Don Ballard, Ralph Ward and Faye Thurmon, second baseman George Bryan, pitchers Huey Jinks, Terry Reeves, Jackie Norman, and Gross and manager Mike Logan.

TORNADO MATCH

Christy Vs. Laye Again At Kallio's

Jerry Christy, a wrestler who won't take two straight defeats for an answer, challenges Charley Laye again at Kallio's Arena Monday night, this time in a "Tornado" bout.

This battle to the death or thereabouts will have a 90-minute limit but the falls won't count. To win, one of the grapplers must force the other to give up twice. There will be no referee in the ring but the official will sit outside the ring and blow a whistle to call time after each submission.

This unorthodox match is the main event on a card also featuring a tag team bout between Al Massey and Dick Barkley and George Curtis and Bill Barney. The tag affair will go one hour or less with two falls to win.

To get back to the "Tornado" bout, in case one of the wrestlers gets bloodthirsty and doesn't turn loose when the whistle blows, a likely event considering the earlier Laye-Christy matchs, the guilty man will be fined $5 and be penalized the fall.

This match qualifies for that much over worked term, grudge bout. Christy and charitable Charles have tangled here for the last two Monday nights and Laye has won both, much to the disgust of local fandom. On both occasions Christy refused to quit after the match was over and gave Laye a couple of bad beatings--after the match.

Both previous matches have been characterized by lots of rough stuff with Laye, as usual, being the instigator and Christy readily replying with the same.

Tomorrow's match will be another battle between experience and youth and experience, not youth, has been served so far. The veteran Laye knows all the dirty tricks in the trade and uses them often. Christy, strong and fast, has had the better of the going in the two previous matches but lost both. He's determined not to lose this one.

Acorn Stakes Easily Taken By Big Effort

NEW YORK (AP) — The Brookmeade Stable's Big Effort easily won the $35,850 Acorn Stakes for 3-year-old fillies Saturday at Belmont Park, drawing away at the finish for a six-length margin over Ned W. Brent's Polamby.

Pete Anderson rode Big Effort, who was scoring her second victory in as many starts this season. The bay filly paid $23.60, $9.50 and $4.80 in turning back 10 rivals. Time for the mile was 1:37 2-5 on a fast track.

Polamby, with Eddie Arcaro up in quest of his fourth Acorn, was two lengths ahead of the $2.20 for $1 favorite, the Foxcatcher Farm's Lopar, ridden by Eric Guerin.

James F. Hines' Ramadel, winner of the Ashland Stakes at Keeneland in April, set the pace for three quarters of a mile but tired and finished fifth. James Cox Brady's Foreword was fourth.

Big Effort, a daughter of the South American sire, Endeavour II, out of Sux Mixa, by Sun Briar, came up from fifth place after three quarters. The filly went wide on the final turn, then ducked in a bit as she straightened for home. Anderson quickly got Big Effort on the lead, and with about an eighth to travel she had opened up three lengths over Polamby.

The Acorn traditionally leads up to the $60,000 - added Coaching Club American Oaks, a mile and three-eighths race for the 3-year-old misses to be held at Belmont June 21.

Dixie Miss was sixth, followed by Charming Hildy, Shy Dancer, Locust Time, Craftiness, and Two Cent Stamp.

This was the first stakes victory for Big Effort, whose best previous showing against the top fillies was a third behind Wendasy and Crown in the Marguerite Stakes at Pimlico last fall as a 2-year-old.

Big Effort won an allowance race at Belmont Tuesday in her only other start this season, earning $3,250. In eight starts last year she won two races and $11,110.

This victory was worth $22,952.50 to her owner, Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloan of New York and Virginia.

A crowd of 39,006 turned out in sunny, pleasant weather.

SCHROEDER

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (AP)—Jimmy Schroeder of Buffalo, N. Y., took the lead in the American Bowling Congress Masters Tournament qualifying rounds Saturday. He rolled a four-game total of 931 on scores of 188, 249, 226, 268.

The second four-game qualifying block will be rolled Sunday. The top 35 scorers for the eight-game preliminaries go into the final Sunday night along with 29 seeded stars.

Alabama Girl Claims Four Stroke Lead

ASHEVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Jo Ann Prentice of Birmingham, Ala., shot a 5-under-par 70 Saturday for a four-stroke lead in the $5,000 Land of the Sky Women's Open Golf Tournament.

But she didn't gain ground over her nearest pursuers, despite her 36-hole total of 68-70—138.

Runner - up Maureen Bauer Hagge of Delray Beach, Fla., fired a 69 to go with her opening 73 of Friday for a total of 142.

And Beverly Hanson of Indio, Calif., who was eight strokes off the pace with a 76 after the first round, cut the deficit to five stroke by shooting a women's record 67 over the Beaver Lake course for a 143 total.

The 21 professionals in the tournament are playing over three Asheville courses. They opened at 6,250-yard Biltmore Forest Country Club Friday and finish Sunday at the Country Club of Asheville course.

Joyce Ziske, shooting for a 69 which would have put her in a tie for fourth at 144 with Wiffie Smith and Ruthie Jessen, had a triple bogie on the last hole. She hit her tee shot into woods. She wound up with 75-75—147, tied for ninth.

Cage All-State Javelin Tosser For Second Year

By BILL McINTYRE
The Shreveport Times
(Written for the Louisiana Sports Writers Assn.)

SHREVEPORT, La. (Special)—A total of 44 track and field competitors — the most ever picked—ran, tossed and jumped their way into the sixth annual Louisiana Sports Writers Association All-State prep cinder lineup for the 1958 season and there's a reason—Pelican State spikemen are getting better every spring.

During the past season members of the sixth all - state squad combined to topple nine of the 17 best times, heights and distances posted by the 1957 array. And this year's crew blasted eight of the state's composite records although only four will be considered as new marks.

The list of 14 exceeds the 1957 team by 17 members. The previous high had been the 32-man team picked in 1955 and the previous low was 20 in 1953.

Class AAA schools, comprising Louisiana's strongest division, contributed 32 of the 44 all-staters,

JOE CAGE

Class AA produced six others and Class B placed four. Classes A and C managed to pick up one berth apiece.

In a sectional breakdown north Louisiana produced the most all-staters — 18. New Orleans and the southeast district landed nine cinder standouts each and the southwest coughed up the remaining eight. North Louisiana's top total of 18 came about when Byrd of Shreveport, the triple - A state champion, picked up eight positions, including six in the relays alone.

Representing Byrd were quarter-miler Bo Campbell and half-miler Hayden Hicks along with relaymen John Alexander, George Thompson, Homer Blane, Charles Peatross, George Tedford and Ronnie Brown.

Other north Louisiana selections included sprinter Ed Williams of Jena; quarter- miler Dayton Baker of Springhill; half - miler Earl Wright of Ruston; milers Glenn Hartsell of Haynesville, George Abbo't of Jonesboro - Hodge and Wayne Olds of Fair Park; javelin star Joe Cage of Neville of Monroe; hop-step-jumper Don Harvey of Stonewall and a pair of Plain Dealing aces, shot putter Jack Byrd and broad jumper Fred McKellar.

Seven of the cinder flashes strained their way into the all-star lineup for the second straight year. Also on the 1957 roster were Campbell, Hicks, Williams, Olds, Cage, McKellar and Joe Harris of Baton Rouge.

Harris, the sensational pole-vaulting champion, earned another distinction — he is the only track and field all - stater to have made the post-season lineup for four consecutive years. Campbell and Olds are on the roster for the third season, joining past all-staters Don Troutman of Roanoke, Allen Semar of New Iberia and Joe Hill of Byrd in that respect.

Only two of the present all-staters have a chance to emulate Harris in the "frosh-through-senior" distinction. Campbell has another season on the cinders in 1959 and Cage, the greatest javelin thrower in Louisiana's history, is a mere sophomore at Neville.

Four members of the current crew all share honors in the versatility department, having squeezed into the lineup at two individual events each. Jim Fonaris of DeLasalle posted the state's best time in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, Bill Croveling of LaGrange, topped both the 180 and 120 yard hurdles, Doug Constant of Istrouma, was No. 2 in the furlong dash and No. 1 in the broad jump and McKellar placed in both the broad and hop-step-jumps. Campbell's name appears in five events, but four of those were relays.

In reviewing the past campaign on the cinders one fact stands out bright and clear — there are four monopolies in effect. Byrd has won the Class AAA title in four of the past five seasons (1954-55-56-58) and hasn't finished lower than second since 1952; Ruston has won three straight Class AA championships; Marion has been the Class A titleholder for the past two springs; and Erath has reigned in Class B since 1956. Only Louisiana School of the Deaf, the 1958 C champion in place of Start, is a new crown - wearer.

West Monroe Places Four Players On All-District

District champion Byrd and runnerup West Monroe placed nine of the 11 players on the all-district 1-AAA baseball team selected by league coaches and area sportswriters. Byrd landed five players on the all-star team and West Monroe four.

West Monroe's representatives were catcher Kelton Bacon, second baseman Jerry Stovall, shortstop Shelby Aulds and outfielder Robert Perkins. Byrd Yellow Jackets on the team are pitcher Jerry Godwin, first baseman Billy Fitzgerald, third sacker Bill Hancock and outfielders Joe Zaffater and Charley Ford.

The conference's two other schools, Fair Park and Ouachita, finished out the team with one representative each. Ouachita's Lanny Johnson, a third baseman, won the utility post on the all-district team and Fair Park's Ronnie Ruth got the other pitcher's berth.

Godwin, Fitzgerald, Aulds and Zaffater were unanimous choices.

J. D. Cox of Byrd, who took his team to the state AAA finals, was selected the district's "Coach of the Year".

Fitzgerald was the leading hitter among the all-stars with a .431 mark. Two others went over the .400 mark. Stovall hit .405 and Ford .403. Fitzgerald, a Byrd senior, was also one of the loop's better pitchers with a 4-1 record.

Zaffater hit a .352 clip and Bacon hit .320. Perkins batted an even .300 while Johnson hit .297, Hancock .290, and Aulds .250.

Lefthander, Godwin, one of the best pitching prospects in the state, was the district's winningest pitcher with eight wins in 11 decisions. Ruth, Fair Park's ace southpaw, won six and lost three. Ruth edged West Monroe's Harry Boyd, 4-2 for the year, and Ouachita's Bob Satterfield, who became ineligible in midseason.

Bacon won the catcher's berth over Fair Park's Richard Bell easily. The husky Rebel backstop was his club's top slugger and a capable fielder. Stovall won all of the coach's votes except that of Fair Park's Milford Andrews who voted for Indian George Garrett.

The smooth-fielding Aulds had no opposition for shortstop. He and Johnson also made the all-district basketball team. Both are seniors. Johnson was the only man besides Hancock to get a vote for third.

Perkins alternated at third and left field for Dan McClure's West Monroe club, fielded both positions well and hit consistently, especially in the clutch.

Byrd's Ford rapped out 27 hits in 67 times at bat, the best hit production on his team. Zaffater, like Ford, a senior, had 25 safeties in 71 trips.

BONUS OFFERED

Big Field Expected For Speedway Race

The largest field of the season is expected to race this afternoon at the Twin City Speedway as drivers try for the first time to win the new $25 bonus for beating the track's top winner, Royce Whitlock.

Rained out last Sunday, the Speedway program will again offer a feature event, a trophy dash, heat races and time trials, all for modified cars, and a jalopy event.

A $25 bonus is being offered for the first time to the driver that outraces Whitlock in the feature event. Whitlock's car number 13 has won the event three times and retired. Whitlock has won the trophy once.

A new trophy donated by Lou Craig will be awarded to the winner of the feature race. The award will be given every week until won by one car three times and retired. Whitlock has won the trophy once.

Number 16 running for the first time, has been called Whitlock's number one threat. The auto has been in the making ever since the racing season began and was to have made its track debut last week.

Today's program will start at 1 o'clock p.m. at the Speedway on the old Natchitoches road in West Monroe.

Bucks' Davis Equals World Mark In 440

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Despite a world record-matching 440 yard run by Ohio State's Glenn Davis and five new Big Ten marks, it was Illinois consistency which won the conference outdoor track title Saturday.

Davis sped to a 45.8 quarter-mile triumph even though he slackened 10 feet from the finish. His performance was even more notable because it was around two turns. The present record was set around only one turn by Jim Lea of Southern California at Modesto, Calif., May 26, 1956.

Illinois, indoor team champion, too, dethroned Indiana with 46 points although the Illini captured only two firsts on the 14-event two-day program. The Illini took seven second places to build up their total.

Big Ten records were shattered in the 880, two-mile and shot put and one-mile relay while the 120 high hurdles mark was equalled.

Indiana won the closing mile relay to finish second with 41 points. Ohio State was third with 35.

Football star Bob Mitchell, dethroning Willmer Fowler of Northwestern in the 220-yard dash and taking second in the broad jump and 100-yard dash, spearheaded the balanced Illinois attack.

The only other Illini first came from Ernie Haisley in the high jump.

Mitchell was the top individual scorer with 18 points. Davis was next with 11, scoring a second in the 220, fifth in the broad jump and sharing in Ohio State's third in the mile relay.

Conference records set, in addition to Davis' performance, included:

Len Edelen of Minnesota with 9:08.2 in the two-mile; Bob Henry of Minnesota with 56½ in the shot put; Dave Lean of Michigan State with 1:50.1 in the half mile, and Indiana with 3:11.7 in the mile relay.

Will May of Indiana matched a 21-year-old record of 14 seconds flat in the 120-yard high hurdles.

LSU Announce Football Series

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. — (UPI)—Texas A&M and Louisiana State Saturday announced a four-game football series, with all games to be played at Baton Rouge, La., starting in 1960.

The games will be played Sept. 16, 1960; Sept. 30, 1961; Sept. 22, 1962 and Sept. 21, 1963.

The two teams have met 23 times since 1899, the last time in 1956 when Texas A&M won a 9-6 decision. The Aggies hold an 11-10 edge with two ties.

MAXWELL 2 STROKES BACK

Vossler Protects Kansas City Lead

By SKIPPER PATRICK

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Ernie Vossler of Midland, Tex., protected his lead in the Kansas City Open Golf Tournament Saturday with a 2-under-par 70 that gave him a 5-hole total of 202, two strokes better than his closest challenger.

With one round left in the $22,500 tournament on the 6,668-yard Hillcrest Country Club course, Vossler's nearest rival was Billy Joe Maxwell of Odessa, Tex., who had a 65 for 204.

Vossler, who has been playing well since investing in a new putter and a new pair of glasses six weeks ago, was out in 34 and home in 36. He had two long putts for birdies on the front nine and was steady all the way except for a short putt he missed on the 16th green.

Gary Player the young pro from Johannesburg, South Africa, and PGA champion Lionel Hebert of Lafayette, La., each posted 1-under-par 71s for a score of 205 at the three-quarter mark.

Tommy Jacobs of Whittier, Calif., who tied the course record of 64 in the first round, had a 73 for a 207, same as George Bayer of San Gabriel, Calif., who shot a 68.

Bruce Crompton of Sydney, Australia, and Jim Ferre, Winston Salem, N.C., were grouped at 208.

Player, who shot the third round in 35-36—71, haeded the foreign challengers for the first prize. In addition to Crampton and Player, Roberto de Vicenzo of Mexico City had a 74 for 212.

The defending champion, Al Besselink of Grossinger, N.Y., shot a 74 and was just about out of the running for any money on a score of 221.

Jim English of Denver continued to lead the amateurs with a 74 for a 216.

Big Ten Puts Tighter Rein On 'Tenders'

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—The Big Ten Conference tightened its admission rule for financed athletes Saturday and rejected a proposal to reduce aid tenders from 100 to 75 a school.

Tenders of aid, in effect, are athletic scholarships, covering school costs on the basis of need. Once an athlete accepts a tender at one Big Ten school, he is ineligible to attend any other conference school.

The action on admissions now will require a prospective athlete to be in the upper two-thirds of his high school graduating class to receive financial aid. Previously, any prep athlete admitted to college was eligible for aid.

The rule is aimed at trimming academic risks, not to mention financial risks, concerning athletes who flunk out by their sophomore years.

In maintaining the present maximum of 100 aid tenders for each school, the faculty group reversed its position of last March when it tentatively voted to trim the maximum to 75. Last year, the average tender acceptance was 69 for all sports per school.

Both Saturday actions must be submitted to individual faculties for approval. If one objection is raised, the items must be considered again at the conference meeting next December.

FASTER TIMES

33 Speedway Places Full With 'Bumping' In Vogue

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A field of 33 record-cracking cars was filled Saturday for the 42nd 500-mile auto race May 30, but the relatively slower racers were still liable to elimination in the final qualifying sessions Sunday.

The tentative field averaged 143.3 miles an hour, compared with a previous record of 142.5 for last year's starters.

Any of the first 33 qualifiers can be eliminated by faster trials later. Four were "bumped" Saturday after the field was first filled tentatively.

Freddy Agabashian of Alamo, Calif., qualified for his 12th straight Memorial Day race on his second attempt, after spinning and bending the front axel of his City of Memphis Special in the day's only accident.

Agabashian made the slowest speed of the tentative qualifiers on his second run, 142.153 miles an hour, and is almost certain to be eliminated Sunday.

It was Agabashian's second wreck this week. Mechanics did a tremendous job in rebuilding the Helse Special which he banged into a retaining wall in a test run last Wednesday.

Art Bisch, Phoenix, Ariz., a Speedway rookie who was bumped after his first qualifying run in another car, came back and put the Helse into the linepup at a solid 142.687 miles an hour.

Six newcomers, rookies at the Speedway, but experienced on other tracks, tentatively made the line-up. They include Jud Larson, Tulsa, Okla.; Len Sutton, Portland, Ore.; George Amick, Venice, Calif.; A. J. Foyt, Houston, Tex., Paul Goldsmith, St. Clair Shores, Mich., and Jerry Unser, Long Beach, Calif.

The crowd was only a small fraction of the 100,000-plus who saw Dick Rthamann of Miami set a qualifying record of 145.974 last Saturday. The mark was untouched Saturday, nor was anybody able to break the week-old one lap record of 146.508 by Eli Elisian of Oakland, Calif.

Eddie Sachs of Center Valley, Pa. was Saturday's fastest qualifier at 144.660 in the same Schmidt Special in which he was a contender last year until he burned a piston.

Larson put the third Zink Special in the field with a run at 143.512. His teammates are Dick Rathmann and Jimmy Reece of Indianapolis, both starting in the front row as a reward for fast runs on opening day.

Dick Rathmann's younger brother, Jim, who ran a close second to winner Sam Hanks in last year's 500, qualified his 1957 car again qualified at a brisk 143.147 miles an hour. That was over three miles an hour faster than his '57 qualifying run in the Leader Special owned by Linday Hopkins of Miami.

DROP TRIBE, 6-3

Six-Run Frame All Nats Need

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Washington Senators, blanked on two hits by Don Mossi for seven innings, scored six runs in the eighth for a 6-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday

The Nats broke up the shutout as Mossi gave up three singles and walk to the first four men he faced in the eighth. Mike Garcia relieved, and did no better—also giving up three singles and a walk to the four men he faced. Don Ferrarese finally retired the side.

Veteran Chuck Stobbs, who last year got his first victory with a June 21 victory over the Injuns, nailed Cleveland again for his initial success of the season. He left for a pinch-hitter in the big eighth, but reliever Bud Byerly protected the lead, giving Stobbs a 1-3 record.

Mossi, now 4-4, opened scoring in a two-run third for Cleveland. Both runs were unearned. Mossi's single, a bunt and Stobb's wild pickoff attempt got Mossi home and Minnie Minoso then hit a sacrifice fly. The other Injun run came in the fourth on Preston Ward's double and a single by Dick Brown.

Lincoln Road Easily Takes Jersey Stakes

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — Lincoln Road made every post a winning one Saturday as the bridesmaid of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness won the $59,100 Jersey Stakes at Garden State Park. It was the colt's first victory of the year.

Isaac Blumberg's 3-year-old had no Tim Tam to contend with and there just wasn't enough speed among Lincoln Road's 10 rivals to catch him.

Adele L. Rice's Talent Show chased the 2-5 favorite of the crowd of 37,877 all the way, making three or four challenges during the mile and an eighth run. But jockey Chris Rogers kept the pressure on Lincoln Road and he was equal to the test.

This was Lincoln Road's first stakes victory in a 16-race career. The dark bay colt, beaten by a total of 2 lengths by Tim Tam in the Derby and Preskness, had won two overnight races, finished second five times and was third trice.

He earned $37,865 for this effort, boosting his total loot to $108,735—not bad for a $3,100 investment. In another rich race this year, the $100,000 Floriday Derby, Tim Tam beat Lincoln Road by half a length.

Lincoln Road was timed in 1:49 for the nine furlongs, 1 3-5 seconds off the track record set by Subahdar in 1955. He returned $2.80, $2.40 and $2.20. Talent how, sixth in the Preakness, paid $4.60 and $3.00, while Li'l Fella was $3.20 to show.

Rogers booted Lincoln Road to the front from the gate as he did in his heartbreaking rides at Churchill Downs and Baltimore. Carrying only 111 pounds under the conditions of the race as against 118 for top weighted Talent how, Li'l Fella, and John S. Kelly's Deack Duncan, the Blumberg colt led by a length and a half after a quarter mile, was a length on top at the half mile pole, and a length and a half with a quarter to go.

Willie Lester, aboard Talent Show, made his final move in mid-stretch, but cut only a quarter length off the lead. Li'l Fella, as far back as ninth with half the race run, and seventh at the three quarter pole, came with a rush under jockey Howard Grant in the stretch and was two lengths back at the finish.

Behind the top three came George D. Widener's Pundit, Green Dunes Farm's Cavan, Elemdorf's Day Court, Mrs. Anna Cannuli's Chance It Tony, Roslyn Farm's Principado, Christiana Stable's Staysail, Deack Duncan and Mac Sweetie Stable's Noble Gem.

Rogers said Lincoln Road ran the race as he expected.

"The only difference in this one," said the jockey, "was I didn't have to look back for Tim Tam."

Tim Tam, Calumet's Kentucky Derby and Preakness champion, was not entered in the Jersey because he was assigned 126 pounds.

Trainer Vic Sovinski said Lincoln Road probably would not be entered in the Belmont Stakes. Sovinski said he didn't think his horse would care for the mile and a half distance.

Also, Tim Tam will be trying for the final jewel in the triple crown at New York and Sovinski wasn't abashed at saying he had enough of Tim Tam.

RECORD FIELD

U.S. Open Entries Have 15-1 Chance

NEW YORK (AP)—With a record entry of 2,150 players, golfers will be bucking 15-1 odds when they try to qualify for the 58th U.S. Open Championship at Tulsa, Okla., June 12-14.

Sectional qualifying is scheduled next Monday at Honolulu and a week later at 28 other locations throughout the United States. The sectional tests all are over the 36-hole route.

This year's entry list eclipsed the previous record total of 1,928 for the 1958 Open at the Baltusrol Club, Springfield, N. J. Since then the number of automatic qualifiers has been reduced considerably, but the increase in entries keep the odds against the indivdual player high.

The field for the championship proper over the rolling Southern Hills Country Club at Tulsa is limited to 162. Seventeen players are exempt from qualifying because of their past performances. That leaves 145 places for 2,133 golfers who have to qualify.

Dick Mayer, who won the Open title last year in a playoff with Cary Middlecoff, tops the exempt list but the most important figure in the group probably is Ben Hogan.

Hogan, the grim Texas who has virtually retired from tournament competition is out for an unprecedented fifth Open championship. He won in 1948, 1950, 1951 and 1953. And if he doesn't make it this year he'll probably lose his automatic qualification as an ex-champion.

Under regulations only the last five individuals to win the title are exempt. The five this time are Mayer, Middlecoff, Jack Fleck, Ed Furgol and Hogan.

Also exempt are Hillman Robbins Jr., of Memphis, the National Amateur champion; Lionel Hebert of Lafayette, La., the PGA champin, and the ten lowest scorers in last year's championship, excluding the five former winners already exempt. They are Jimmy Demaret, Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., and Houston; Julius Boros, a former champion from Southern Pines, N. C.; Walter Burkemo, Franklin, Mich.; Ken Venturi, San Francisco; Fred Hawkins, El Paso, Texas; Sam Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.; Roberto De Vicenzo, Mexico City; Chick Harbert, Northville, Mich.; Billy Maxwell, Odessa, Texas, and amateur Billy Joe Patton, Morganton, N. C.

Friend Notches Seventh Victory

PITSBURGH (AP) — Right-hander Bob Friend Saturday became the first National League pitcher to win seven games this season, riding in as the Pittsburgh Pirates cracked a tie game with five runs in the eighth for a 6-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Friend, now 7-2, gave up 10 hits, but was backed by a dandy defense that turned in three double-plays. Stan Musial had two of the Cardinal hits.

Bill Virdon and Dick Groat each belted two - run doubles in the eighth.

Jackson gave up 12 hits in his second defeat.

The Cards, who have lost three in a row, scored in the seventh on singles by Ken Boyer and Hobie Landrith.

Vossler Protects Kansas City Lead

By SKIPPER PATRICK

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Ernie Vossler of Midland, Tex., protected his lead in the Kansas City Open Golf Tournament Saturday with a 2-under-par 70 that gave him a 5-hole total of 202, two strokes better than his closest challenger.

With one round left in the $22,500 tournament on the 6,668-yard Hillcrest Country Club course, Vossler's nearest rival was Billy Joe Maxwell of Odessa, Tex., who had a 65 for 204.

Vossler, who has been playing well since investing in a new putter and a new pair of glasses six weeks ago, was out in 34 and home in 36. He had two long putts for birdies on the front nine and was steady all the way except for a short putt he missed on the 16th green.

Gary Player the young pro from Johannesburg, South Africa, and PGA champion Lionel Hebert of Lafayette, La., each posted 1-under-par 71s for a score of 205 at the three-quarter mark.

Tommy Jacobs of Whittier, Calif., who tied the course record of 64 in the first round, had a 73 for a 207, same as George Bayer of San Gabriel, Calif., who shot a 68.

Bruce Crompton of Sydney, Australia, and Jim Ferre, Winston Salem, N.C., were grouped at 208.

Player, who shot the third round in 35-36—71, haeded the foreign challengers for the first prize. In addition to Crampton and Player, Roberto de Vicenzo of Mexico City had a 74 for 212.

The defending champion, Al Besselink of Grossinger, N.Y., shot a 74 and was just about out of the running for any money on a score of 221.

Jim English of Denver continued to lead the amateurs with a 74 for a 216.

Big Ten Puts Tighter Rein On 'Tenders'

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP)—The Big Ten Conference tightened its admission rule for financed athletes Saturday and rejected a proposal to reduce aid tenders from 100 to 75 a school.

Tenders of aid, in effect, are athletic scholarships, covering school costs on the basis of need. Once an athlete accepts a tender at one Big Ten school, he is ineligible to attend any other conference school.

The action on admissions now will require a prospective athlete to be in the upper two-thirds of his high school graduating class to receive financial aid. Previously, any prep athlete admitted to college was eligible for aid.

The rule is aimed at trimming academic risks, not to mention financial risks, concerning athletes who flunk out by their sophomore years.

In maintaining the present maximum of 100 aid tenders for each school, the faculty group reversed its position of last March when it tentatively voted to trim the maximum to 75. Last year, the average tender acceptance was 69 for all sports per school.

Both Saturday actions must be submitted to individual faculties for approval. If one objection is raised, the items must be considered again at the conference meeting next December.

FASTER TIMES

33 Speedway Places Full With 'Bumping' In Vogue

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—A field of 33 record-cracking cars was filled Saturday for the 42nd 500-mile auto race May 30, but the relatively slower racers were still liable to elimination in the final qualifying sessions Sunday.

The tentative field averaged 143.3 miles an hour, compared with a previous record of 142.5 for last year's starters.

Any of the first 33 qualifiers can be eliminated by faster trials later. Four were "bumped" Saturday after the field was first filled tentatively.

Freddy Agabashian of Alamo, Calif., qualified for his 12th straight Memorial Day race on his second attempt, after spinning and bending the front axel of his City of Memphis Special in the day's only accident.

Agabashian made the slowest speed of the tentative qualifiers on his second run, 142.153 miles an hour, and is almost certain to be eliminated Sunday.

It was Agabashian's second wreck this week. Mechanics did a tremendous job in rebuilding the Helse Special which he banged into a retaining wall in a test run last Wednesday.

Art Bisch, Phoenix, Ariz., a Speedway rookie who was bumped after his first qualifying run in another car, came back and put the Helse into the linepup at a solid 142.687 miles an hour.

Six newcomers, rookies at the Speedway, but experienced on other tracks, tentatively made the line-up. They include Jud Larson, Tulsa, Okla.; Len Sutton, Portland, Ore.; George Amick, Venice, Calif.; A. J. Foyt, Houston, Tex., Paul Goldsmith, St. Clair Shores, Mich., and Jerry Unser, Long Beach, Calif.

The crowd was only a small fraction of the 100,000-plus who saw Dick Rthamann of Miami set a qualifying record of 145.974 last Saturday. The mark was untouched Saturday, nor was anybody able to break the week-old one lap record of 146.508 by Eli Elisian of Oakland, Calif.

Eddie Sachs of Center Valley, Pa. was Saturday's fastest qualifier at 144.660 in the same Schmidt Special in which he was a contender last year until he burned a piston.

Larson put the third Zink Special in the field with a run at 143.512. His teammates are Dick Rathmann and Jimmy Reece of Indianapolis, both starting in the front row as a reward for fast runs on opening day.

Dick Rathmann's younger brother, Jim, who ran a close second to winner Sam Hanks in last year's 500, qualified his 1957 car again qualified at a brisk 143.147 miles an hour. That was over three miles an hour faster than his '57 qualifying run in the Leader Special owned by Linday Hopkins of Miami.

DROP TRIBE, 6-3

Six-Run Frame All Nats Need

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Washington Senators, blanked on two hits by Don Mossi for seven innings, scored six runs in the eighth for a 6-3 victory over the Cleveland Indians Saturday

The Nats broke up the shutout as Mossi gave up three singles and walk to the first four men he faced in the eighth. Mike Garcia relieved, and did no better—also giving up three singles and a walk to the four men he faced. Don Ferrarese finally retired the side.

Veteran Chuck Stobbs, who last year got his first victory with a June 21 victory over the Injuns, nailed Cleveland again for his initial success of the season. He left for a pinch-hitter in the big eighth, but reliever Bud Byerly protected the lead, giving Stobbs a 1-3 record.

Mossi, now 4-4, opened scoring in a two-run third for Cleveland. Both runs were unearned. Mossi's single, a bunt and Stobb's wild pickoff attempt got Mossi home and Minnie Minoso then hit a sacrifice fly. The other Injun run came in the fourth on Preston Ward's double and a single by Dick Brown.

Lincoln Road Easily Takes Jersey Stakes

CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — Lincoln Road made every post a winning one Saturday as the bridesmaid of the Kentucky Derby and Preakness won the $59,100 Jersey Stakes at Garden State Park. It was the colt's first victory of the year.

Isaac Blumberg's 3-year-old had no Tim Tam to contend with and there just wasn't enough speed among Lincoln Road's 10 rivals to catch him.

Adele L. Rice's Talent Show chased the 2-5 favorite of the crowd of 37,877 all the way, making three or four challenges during the mile and an eighth run. But jockey Chris Rogers kept the pressure on Lincoln Road and he was equal to the test.

This was Lincoln Road's first stakes victory in a 16-race career. The dark bay colt, beaten by a total of 2 lengths by Tim Tam in the Derby and Preskness, had won two overnight races, finished second five times and was third trice.

He earned $37,865 for this effort, boosting his total loot to $108,735—not bad for a $3,100 investment. In another rich race this year, the $100,000 Floriday Derby, Tim Tam beat Lincoln Road by half a length.

Lincoln Road was timed in 1:49 for the nine furlongs, 1 3-5 seconds off the track record set by Subahdar in 1955. He returned $2.80, $2.40 and $2.20. Talent how, sixth in the Preakness, paid $4.60 and $3.00, while Li'l Fella was $3.20 to show.

Rogers booted Lincoln Road to the front from the gate as he did in his heartbreaking rides at Churchill Downs and Baltimore. Carrying only 111 pounds under the conditions of the race as against 118 for top weighted Talent how, Li'l Fella, and John S. Kelly's Deack Duncan, the Blumberg colt led by a length and a half after a quarter mile, was a length on top at the half mile pole, and a length and a half with a quarter to go.

Willie Lester, aboard Talent Show, made his final move in mid-stretch, but cut only a quarter length off the lead. Li'l Fella, as far back as ninth with half the race run, and seventh at the three quarter pole, came with a rush under jockey Howard Grant in the stretch and was two lengths back at the finish.

Behind the top three came George D. Widener's Pundit, Green Dunes Farm's Cavan, Elemdorf's Day Court, Mrs. Anna Cannuli's Chance It Tony, Roslyn Farm's Principado, Christiana Stable's Staysail, Deack Duncan and Mac Sweetie Stable's Noble Gem.

Rogers said Lincoln Road ran the race as he expected.

"The only difference in this one," said the jockey, "was I didn't have to look back for Tim Tam."

Tim Tam, Calumet's Kentucky Derby and Preakness champion, was not entered in the Jersey because he was assigned 126 pounds.

Trainer Vic Sovinski said Lincoln Road probably would not be entered in the Belmont Stakes. Sovinski said he didn't think his horse would care for the mile and a half distance.

Also, Tim Tam will be trying for the final jewel in the triple crown at New York and Sovinski wasn't abashed at saying he had enough of Tim Tam.

RECORD FIELD

U.S. Open Entries Have 15-1 Chance

NEW YORK (AP)—With a record entry of 2,150 players, golfers will be bucking 15-1 odds when they try to qualify for the 58th U.S. Open Championship at Tulsa, Okla., June 12-14.

Sectional qualifying is scheduled next Monday at Honolulu and a week later at 28 other locations throughout the United States. The sectional tests all are over the 36-hole route.

This year's entry list eclipsed the previous record total of 1,928 for the 1958 Open at the Baltusrol Club, Springfield, N. J. Since then the number of automatic qualifiers has been reduced considerably, but the increase in entries keep the odds against the indivdual player high.

The field for the championship proper over the rolling Southern Hills Country Club at Tulsa is limited to 162. Seventeen players are exempt from qualifying because of their past performances. That leaves 145 places for 2,133 golfers who have to qualify.

Dick Mayer, who won the Open title last year in a playoff with Cary Middlecoff, tops the exempt list but the most important figure in the group probably is Ben Hogan.

Hogan, the grim Texas who has virtually retired from tournament competition is out for an unprecedented fifth Open championship. He won in 1948, 1950, 1951 and 1953. And if he doesn't make it this year he'll probably lose his automatic qualification as an ex-champion.

Under regulations only the last five individuals to win the title are exempt. The five this time are Mayer, Middlecoff, Jack Fleck, Ed Furgol and Hogan.

Also exempt are Hillman Robbins Jr., of Memphis, the National Amateur champion; Lionel Hebert of Lafayette, La., the PGA champin, and the ten lowest scorers in last year's championship, excluding the five former winners already exempt. They are Jimmy Demaret, Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., and Houston; Julius Boros, a former champion from Southern Pines, N. C.; Walter Burkemo, Franklin, Mich.; Ken Venturi, San Francisco; Fred Hawkins, El Paso, Texas; Sam Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.; Roberto De Vicenzo, Mexico City; Chick Harbert, Northville, Mich.; Billy Maxwell, Odessa, Texas, and amateur Billy Joe Patton, Morganton, N. C.

Braves Overhaul Giants, 6-3, To Tighten Scramble

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves came from behind with four runs in the eighth for a 6-3 victory over San Francisco Saturday and moved within a game and a half of the pace-setting Giants in the National League race.

The Braves, trailing 3-2 and scoreless since the second inning, counted three unearned runs in the rally against relievers Al Worthington and Marv Grissom.

Consecutive singles by Andy Pafko and Wes Covington brought the tying and winning runs home, handing the defeat to Worthington (3-2), who relieved starting southpaw Mike McCormick in the sixth.

Red Schoendienst drove in the third run of the rally and the Braves then counted the fourth on a bases-loaded wild pitch by Grissom.

The victory was credited to reliefer Don McMahon, now 2-0, who replaced Gene Conley in the eighth.

The Braves had scored one in the first, but the Giants tied it in the second on Orlando Cepeda's triple and a double by Willie Kirkland. Del Crandall's fifth homer gave the Braves a 2-1 edge in their second, but the Giants then scored twice in the third on three singles and a sacrifice.

Outfielder Billy Bruton made his first appearance for the Braves since last July 11. Reinstated to the active list before the game, he entered the lineup in the ninth.

DAY FOR ROOKIES

Red Sox Squeeze By Athletics, 5-4

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A pair of substitute shortstops — Billy Klaus for Boston and Billy Hunter for Kansas City—were the hero and the goat Saturday as the Red Sox snatched a 5-4 victory over Kansas City.

Klaus, who came into the game after Don Buddin had gone out for a pinch hitter in the eighth, hit a ninth-inning single that scored Jackie Jensen with the winning run.

Hunter had replaced Joe DeMaestri, who was hit by a pitch in the sixth inning. He set the scene for Klaus' blow with a two-out error.

With the score tied, 4-4, Hunter threw out Frankie Malzone, but Jensen drew a walk off reliefer Tom Gorman. After Sammy White fouled out, Ted Lepcio hit a routine grounder to Hunter, who fumbled the ball. Klaus then delivered the killing blow.

The Athletics made a desperate bid in the ninth to keep Boston from sweeping the three-game series, but southpaw Leio Kiely came in to get lefthanded hitting Bob Martyn on an easy grounder for the final out with Hal Smith on second base.

Martyn had hit a solo homer in the third inning, matching one by Boston's Sammy White in the Red Sox half of the inning.

The winning pitcher was Murray Wall, who relieved starter Frank Sullivan in the eighth inning. Marty Keough, batting for Sullivan, tripled off Gorman, who had retired 10 straight after relieving starter Alex Kellner in the fourth inning. Jimmy Piersall singled Keough in with the run that tied the score 4-4.

Andy Phillips Named Coach Of Pro Hawks

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Andy Phillip, one of professional basketball's slickest playmakers and a member of the famous University of Illinois "Whiz Kids," Saturday was named coach of tne world champion St. Louis Hawks of the National Basketball Assn.

Phillip, at 36 the oldest player in the NBA until he retired last month from the Boston Celtics, signed a one-year contract. Salary was not disclosed.

Thus, in his first coaching venture, Phillip will be handling a world champion team.

He replaces Alex Hannum who resigned after the championship playoffs when he failed to reach an agreement with Hawks Owner Ben Kerner for a two-year contract.

"It's important to get a coach who knows the league," Kerner said. "We wanted a coach who would continue our style of play and not try any radical changes. Andy subscribes to the fast break with which the Hawks play their best."

Kerner revealed he had tried twice before to sign Andy.

Phillip inherits a Hawk squad that walked off with two successive Western Division pennants. Last year the Hawks bowed to Boston in double overtime in the seventh and deciding game. But this year they trimmed the classy Celtics, four games to two.

Phillip played with the old Chicago Stags, the Philadelphia Warriors and the defunct Fort Wayne Pistons before going to Boston in 1956.

Phillip scored in double figures in seven of 11 NBA campaigns and became known as a heady floor general. Twice he led the league in assists. Some rank him with Bob Cousy of Boston and Slater Martin of St. Louis as the top three playmakes in the hi-toy of the NBA.

Phillip and his wife, Dorothy, live in Palm Springs, Calif. They have two children. He was raised in nearby Granite City, Ill.

Backbone Home First In Hectic Suffolk Stakes

BOSTON (AP)—There was excitement to spare in Saturday's $25,000-added Suffolk Downs Stakes won by Boncrist Farm's Backbone.

Brookfield Farm's I've got Rhythm, even - money favorite, stumbled leaving the starting gate, tossing jockey Richard Lawless over his head.

I've Got Rhythm recovered and ran riderless through the field, bothering Backbone near the finish, forcing Larry Adams to take up just when he was about to pass the pacemaking Dandy Blitzen.

Adams went to riding again once I've Got Rhythm pulled away and was up in the final strides to win by a neck. Dandy Blitzen, owned by B.A. Dario, was a length and three quarters in front of fast closing Admirals Joy.

Backbone traveled the six furlongs in 1:11 1-5 and paid $9.80, $5.40 and $4.80.

Dandy Blitzen returned $9.60 and $7.40. Admirals Joy paid $22.60 to show.

Dropo's Wallop Shades Orioles

CHICAGO (AP)—First baseman Walt Dropo, starting a game for only the fifth time this season, smashed his first homer of the campaign in the eighth inning Saturday and gave the Chicago White Sox a 4-3 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

The Sox swept the three-game series to compile their longest winning streak.

The winner was Bill Fischer, who relieved starter Bob Keegan after five innings and held the Orioles to two hits, one of them Bob Nieman's homer in the seventh that tied the game. Fischer now has a 2-1 record.

Loser Bill O'Dell who hit his first major league home run, went the route with an eight-hit job for a 4-5 record.

The Sox took a 2-0 lead in the first inning with the help of some Oriole blunders. Luis Aparicio led off with a single and was sacrificed to second by Nellie Fox. Willie Miranda then bobbled Al Smith's hot grounder, Aparicio going to third. Dropo's high fly behind second base fell between Miranda, Billy Gardner and Len Green for a hit and Smith scored.

Baltimore tied it in the second on O'Dell's homer and singles by Gardner and Pilarcik, plus a walk.

The score remained locked 2-2 until the sixth when Fischer doubled Jim Landis across. Nieman then squared it again with his fourth homer of the campaign.

Fordham Selects John W. Bach As Athletic Leader

NEW YOR (AP)—John W. Bach, Fordham University basketball coach, was named athletic director of the university Saturday. He succeeds Jack Coffey, who retires June 30 after 32 years on the job.

Bach, 34, will continue to serve as varsity basketball coach, a post he has held since 1950.

Tigers Snap Win Famine To Thump Yankees, 3 To 2

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers ended a nine-game victory drouth Saturday by edging New York 3-2 behind old Yankee killer, Frank Lary. The defeat snapped the Yankees' winning streak at 10 games.

Lary, the stocky righthander who has beaten New York 11 times in 15 lifetime decisions, survived first inning shakes and outdueled Sal Maglie.

A seventh-inning double by Al Kaline, his third hit of the afternoon, drove in the deciding run for the last-place Tigers who had gone without a triumph since May 13.

It was Lary who posted Detroit's last victory, beating Cleveland 11-1.

The Yankees had defeated the Tigers in the two previous games of the three-game set and had won 14 of their last 15. They started strong in this one, scoring in the first when Yogi Berra doubled, went to third on Tony Kubek's infield single and came in on a force play.

The Tigers tied it in the second when Kaline bunted safely and came around on a walk, sacrifice and infield out.

Harvey Kuenn's third homer put the Tigers ahead in the third inning, but Gil McDougald singled across the tying run in the sixth.

Frank Bolling singled before Kaline delivered his game-winning hit in the seventh. Maglie pitched the first seven innings with Art Ditmar finishing up.

DODGERS DOWN, 5-4

Redlegs Paste Winless Newk

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Redlegs made the most of 10 hits and tight relief pitching by Brooks Lawrence Saturday for a 5-4 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers and winless Don Newcombe.

Jerry Lynch, who had four hits in four at-bats, rapped Newk (0-4) for a two-run double in the third, after a walk, Alex Grammas' single and a sacrifice.

The Reds then clinched it with three in the fifth. A walk, infield out and singles by Johnny Klippstein, Lynch and Frank Robinson scored two and chased Newcombe. Southpaw Sandy Koufax relieved and walked the only two batters he faced, forcing the winning run home.

Larence, who hasn't been able to complete a starting assignment this season, came on in the sixth after John Roseboro and Carl Furillo had hit home runs off Klippstein. He stopped the Dodgers with three hits the rest of the way, but Klippstein received credit for the victory.

Klippstein, after surviving a first inning uprising in which he allowed one run, didn't allow another hit until the sixth. In the first he yielded a triple to Junior Gilliam, a run-scoring sacrifice fly by Elmer Valo and a double by Furillo before he got the side out.

The Dodger storm struck swiftly in the sixth, however. Roseboro hit his homer and Furillo cracked his after Valo had beaten out an infield hit.

Mile Failure In Qualifying Irks Ibbotson

LONDON (AP)—Derek Ibbotson, the world's fastest miler, failed to qualify for a mile race Saturday, then angrily declared he never again would run in a mile championship which required qualifying heats.

The Yorkshire runner who clocked 3:57.2 for a mile last summer—a mark which still has not been accepted as a world record—was timed in 4:12.7 in his heat for the inter - counties English championships, to be raced Monday.

The best time among the qualifiers was William Goddard's 4:09.2.

Ibbotson condemned as "stupid" the system of qualifying heat winners and the fastest five losers. Later he vowed: "I'll never run in a mile championship again where you have to tear yourself to bits in the preliminaries."

Ibbotson claims he no longer is concentrating on mile races and that he is going for 5,000 meters and three-mile races.

It was the second time he had failed to qualify for an important mile, apparently because of forgetting the time factor. Last July he was eliminated from the British Amateur Athletic Assn. mile after coasting through his heat for second place. Two days later he broke the British three - mile record.

Hazle, Batting .179, Shunted Off To Tigers

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves traded outfielder Bob "Hurricane" Hazle to the Detroit Tigers Saturday after obtaining National League permission to restore the injured Billy Bruton to the active list for the first time since last July.

The surprise inter - league deal climaxed a disappointing spring for Hazle, who helped spear head the Braves' drive for the NL flag by hitting .403 at the tail end of last season. His current batting average is .179.

The Milwaukee club first said Hazle went to the Tigers for an undisclosed amount of cash and a player to be named later. But General Manager John McHale of Detroit said no other player was involved.

General Manager John Quinn of the Braves explained that technically McHale was correct. If the two clubs cannot agree on a player, Quinn explained, the Braves will take the money.

"If the Tigers can't satisfy us with the player they offer us, then we'll be forced to take the money," Quinn said. "We hope they can come up with a player we want. We'd rather have a player than cash."

Hazle, 27, had been platooned in right field this season with Andy Pafko and Harry Hanebrink. He was hitting .179.

The solidly-built left-handed batter joined the Braves on July 28 last season, from their Wichita farm.

He was batting .283 with the triple-A team at the time. But the Braves were told that he would hit major league pitching.

Appearing in 41 games in the pennant drive Hazle collected 54 hits in 134 trips to the plate, including 12 doubles and seven home runs. He drove in 27 runs.

Hazle broke into the majors with Cincinnati in 1955. He batted .231 while appearing in but six games that season and then was traded to the Braves in April, 1956, for first baseman George Crowe. Pitcher Corky Valentine went along to the Braves in the deal.

Hazle spent 1956 at Wichita.

Zandvoort Lap Record Scored In Trial Races

ZANDVOORT, Netherlands (AP)—Two Britons and an American Sautrday broke Juan Manual Fangio's lap record for the Zandvoort Circuit in trials for Monday's Grand Prix automobile race.

Britain's Stirling Moss, driving a Vanwall, made the best time, one minute, 38 seconds. Fangio's previous record was 1:40, made in the 1955 trials. Tony Brooks of Britain was clocked in 1:39 in a Vanwall and Harry Schell, a Paris-based American, did 1:39.6 in a BRM. The twisting circuit measures 2.62 miles.

4-RUN EIGHTH

Braves Overhaul Giants, 6-3, To Tighten Scramble

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves came from behind with four runs in the eighth for a 6-3 victory over San Francisco Saturday and moved within a game and a half of the pace-setting Giants in the National League race.

The Braves, trailing 3-2 and scoreless since the second inning, counted three unearned runs in the rally against relievers Al Worthington and Marv Grissom.

Consecutive singles by Andy Pafko and Wes Covington brought the tying and winning runs home, handing the defeat to Worthington (3-2), who relieved starting southpaw Mike McCormick in the sixth.

Red Schoendienst drove in the third run of the rally and the Braves then counted the fourth on a bases-loaded wild pitch by Grissom.

The victory was credited to reliefer Don McMahon, now 2-0, who replaced Gene Conley in the eighth.

The Braves had scored one in the first, but the Giants tied it in the second on Orlando Cepeda's triple and a double by Willie Kirkland. Del Crandall's fifth homer gave the Braves a 2-1 edge in their second, but the Giants then scored twice in the third on three singles and a sacrifice.

Outfielder Billy Bruton made his first appearance for the Braves since last July 11. Reinstated to the active list before the game, he entered the lineup in the ninth.

DAY FOR ROOKIES

Red Sox Squeeze By Athletics, 5-4

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A pair of substitute shortstops — Billy Klaus for Boston and Billy Hunter for Kansas City—were the hero and the goat Saturday as the Red Sox snatched a 5-4 victory over Kansas City.

Klaus, who came into the game after Don Buddin had gone out for a pinch hitter in the eighth, hit a ninth-inning single that scored Jackie Jensen with the winning run.

Hunter had replaced Joe DeMaestri, who was hit by a pitch in the sixth inning. He set the scene for Klaus' blow with a two-out error.

With the score tied, 4-4, Hunter threw out Frankie Malzone, but Jensen drew a walk off reliefer Tom Gorman. After Sammy White fouled out, Ted Lepcio hit a routine grounder to Hunter, who fumbled the ball. Klaus then delivered the killing blow.

The Athletics made a desperate bid in the ninth to keep Boston from sweeping the three-game series, but southpaw Leio Kiely came in to get lefthanded hitting Bob Martyn on an easy grounder for the final out with Hal Smith on second base.

Martyn had hit a solo homer in the third inning, matching one by Boston's Sammy White in the Red Sox half of the inning.

The winning pitcher was Murray Wall, who relieved starter Frank Sullivan in the eighth inning. Marty Keough, batting for Sullivan, tripled off Gorman, who had retired 10 straight after relieving starter Alex Kellner in the fourth inning. Jimmy Piersall singled Keough in with the run that tied the score 4-4.

Andy Phillips Named Coach Of Pro Hawks

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Andy Phillip, one of professional basketball's slickest playmakers and a member of the famous University of Illinois "Whiz Kids," Saturday was named coach of the world champion St. Louis Hawks of the National Basketball Assn.

Phillip, at 36 the oldest player in the NBA until he retired last month from the Boston Celtics, signed a one-year contract. Salary was not disclosed.

Thus, in his first coaching venture, Phillip will be handling a world champion team.

He replaces Alex Hannum who resigned after the championship playoffs when he failed to reach an agreement with Hawks Owner Ben Kerner for a two-year contract.

"It's important to get a coach who knows the league," Kerner said. "We wanted a coach who would continue our style of play and not try any radical changes. Andy subscribes to the fast break with which the Hawks play their best."

Kerner revealed he had tried twice before to sign Andy.

Phillip inherits a Hawk squad that walked off with two successive Western Division pennants. Last year the Hawks bowed to Boston in double overtime in the seventh and deciding game. But this year they trimmed the classy Celtics, four games to two.

Phillip played with the old Chicago Stags, the Philadelphia Warriors and the defunct Fort Wayne Pistons before going to Boston in 1956.

Phillip scored in double figures in seven of 11 NBA campaigns and became known as a heady floor general. Twice he led the league in assists. Some rank him with Bob Cousy of Boston and Slater Martin of St. Louis as the top three playmakes in the hitoy of the NBA.

Phillip and his wife, Dorothy, live in Palm Springs, Calif. They have two children. He was raised in nearby Granite City, Ill.

Backbone Home First In Hectic Suffolk Stakes

BOSTON (AP)—There was excitement to spare in Saturday's $25,000-added Suffolk Downs Stakes won by Boncrist Farm's Backbone.

Brookfield Farm's I've got Rhythm, even - money favorite, stumbled leaving the starting gate, tossing jockey Richard Lawless over his head.

I've Got Rhythm recovered and ran riderless through the field, bothering Backbone near the finish, forcing Larry Adams to take up just when he was about to pass the pacemaking Dandy Blitzen.

Adams went to riding again once I've Got Rhythm pulled away and was up in the final strides to win by a neck. Dandy Blitzen, owned by B.A. Dario, was a length and three quarters in front of fast closing Admirals Joy.

Backbone traveled the six furlongs in 1:11 1-5 and paid $9.80, $5.40 and $4.80.

Dandy Blitzen returned $9.60 and $7.40. Admirals Joy paid $22.60 to show.

Yankee Girls Lose Doubles In Paris Meet

PARIS (AP)—Australia's second-seeded Neale Fraser and France's Pierre Darmon, an upset winner, led the way into the men's singles quarter-finals of the French International Tennis Championships Saturday as American hopes suffered further setbacks.

Karol Fageros, the Miami girl whose costumes and tennis have captivated French fans, and her partner, Mrs. Dorothy Knode of Forest Hills, N.Y., were eliminated in the first round of the women's doubles, and Californian Bob Perry was knocked out in men's doubles.

Miss Fageros, who was eliminated from the singles Friday, seemed to tire after a long first set as she and Mrs. Knode were beaten by Bernice Carr and Jean Forbes of South America 6-8, 6-3, 6-1.

Perry and his Italian partner, Guiseppe Merlo, lost to A. R. Mills and Robert Wilson of Britain 6-3, 11-9, 6-2 in a third - round doubles match.

In other third round men's doubles matches, Robert Haillet of France and Anton Jansco of Hungary defeated Jack Frost of Monterey, Calif., and Bill Quillian of Seattle 6-3, 3-6, 9-7, 6-4. Bob Howe of Australia and Abe Segal of South Africa defeated Gregory Grant of Los Angeles and Earl Buchholz of St. Louis 6-1, 6-3, 6-2.

Fraser and fellow Aussie Ashley Cooper, the top seeded men's doubles team, defeated Rafael Osuna and Antonio Palafox of Mexico 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

In women's doubles, Martha Peterdu, Hungary, and Pat Ward Britain, beat Isabel Trocole of Polish partner, Jacwiga Jedrzewska, 6-3, 5-7, 6-2. Sylvana Lazzarino and Lea Pericoli of Italy eliminated Gloria Butler, an American living in France, and Paula Courteix of France 6-4, 8-6.

Australia's Mervyn Rose, seeded third also moved into the men's singles quarter-finals with a 4-6, 6-4, 8-6, 6-2 victory over Paul Remy of France.

Phils Sack Cubs In Eighth, 3 To 2

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Willie Jones' eighth-inning single drove home Gran Hamner with the run that gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday, snapping Don Elston's five-game winning streak as a relief pitcher.

The victory came after two losses to the Cubs and was pitcher Dick Farrell's first of the season. Farrell took over in the seventh, relieving starter Curt Simmons, with the score 4-4.

Farrell held the Cubs to one scratchy hit, by Al Dark, in the ninth.

The Phils bagged it when Hamner opened the eighth with a single, went to third on Stan Lopata's single, and then came in on Jones hit.

Harry Anderson and Chuck Essegian homered for the Phils off starter Dick Drott. It was the fouth of the year for each.

Ernie Banks drove in both Cub runs, with a triple and double.

CHISOX, 4-3

Dropo's Wallop Shades Orioles

CHICAGO (AP)—First baseman Walt Dropo, starting a game for only the fifth time this season, smashed his first homer of the campaign in the eighth inning Saturday and gave the Chicago White Sox a 4-3 victory over the Baltimore Orioles.

The Sox swept the three-game series to compile their longest winning streak.

The winner was Bill Fischer, who relieved starter Bob Keegan after five innings and held the Orioles to two hits, one of them Bob Nieman's homer in the seventh that tied the game. Fischer now has a 2-1 record.

Loser Bill O'Dell who hit his first major league home run, went the route with an eight-hit job for a 4-5 record.

The Sox took a 2-0 lead in the first inning with the help of some Oriole blunders. Luis Aparicio led off with a single and was sacrificed to second by Nellie Fox. Willie Miranda then bobbled Al Smith's hot grounder, Aparicio going to third. Dropo's high fly behind second base fell between Miranda, Billy Gardner and Len Green for a hit and Smith scored.

Baltimore tied it in the second on O'Dell's homer and singles by Gardner and Pilarcik, plus a walk.

The score remained locked 2-2 until the sixth when Fischer doubled Jim Landis across. Nieman then squared it again with his fourth homer of the campaign.

Fordham Selects John W. Bach As Athletic Leader

NEW YOR (AP)—John W. Bach, Fordham University basketball coach, was named athletic director of the university Saturday. He succeeds Jack Coffey, who retires June 30 after 32 years on the job.

Bach, 34, will continue to serve as varsity basketball coach, a post he has held since 1950.

2 STREAKS END

Tigers Snap Win Famine To Thump Yankees, 3 To 2

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers ended a nine-game victory drouth Saturday by edging New York 3-2 behind old Yankee killer, Frank Lary. The defeat snapped the Yankees' winning streak at 10 games.

Lary, the stocky righthander who has beaten New York 11 times in 15 lifetime decisions, survived first inning shakes and outdueled Sal Maglie.

A seventh-inning double by Al Kaline, his third hit of the afternoon, drove in the deciding run for the last-place Tigers who had gone without a triumph since May 13.

It was Lary who posted Detroit's last victory, beating Cleveland 11-1.

The Yankees had defeated the Tigers in the two previous games of the three-game set and had won 14 of their last 15. They started strong in this one, scoring in the first when Yogi Berra doubled, went to third on Tony Kubek's infield single and came in on a force play.

The Tigers tied it in the second when Kaline bunted safely and came around on a walk, sacrifice and infield out.

Harvey Kuenn's third homer put the Tigers ahead in the third inning, but Gil McDougald singled across the tying run in the sixth.

Frank Bolling singled before Kaline delivered his game-winning hit in the seventh. Maglie pitched the first seven innings with Art Ditmar finishing up.

DODGERS DOWN, 5-4

Redlegs Paste Winless Newk

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Redlegs made the most of 10 hits and tight relief pitching by Brooks Lawrence Saturday for a 5-4 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers and winless Don Newcombe.

Jerry Lynch, who had four hits in four at-bats, rapped Newk (0-4) for a two-run double in the third, after a walk, Alex Grammas' single and a sacrifice.

The Reds then clinched it with three in the fifth. A walk, infield out and singles by Johnny Klippstein, Lynch and Frank Robinson scored two and chased Newcombe. Southpaw Sandy Koufax relieved and walked the only two batters he faced, forcing the winning run home.

Larence, who hasn't been able to complete a starting assignment this season, came on in the sixth after John Roseboro and Carl Furillo had hit home runs off Klippstein. He stopped the Dodgers with three hits the rest of the way, but Klippstein received credit for the victory.

Klippstein, after surviving a first inning uprising in which he allowed one run, didn't allow another hit until the sixth. In the first he yielded a triple to Junior Gilliam, a run-scoring sacrifice fly by Elmer Valo and a double by Furillo before he got the side out.

The Dodger storm struck swiftly in the sixth, however. Roseboro hit his homer and Furillo cracked his after Valo had beaten out an infield hit.

Mile Failure In Qualifying Irks Ibbotson

LONDON (AP)—Derek Ibbotson, the world's fastest miler, failed to qualify for a mile race Saturday, then angrily declared he never again would run in a mile championship which required qualifying heats.

The Yorkshire runner who clocked 3:57.2 for a mile last summer—a mark which still has not been accepted as a world record—was timed in 4:12.7 in his heat for the inter - counties English championships, to be raced Monday.

The best time among the qualifiers was William Goddard's 4:09.2.

Ibbotson condemned as "stupid" the system of qualifying heat winners and the fastest five losers. Later he vowed: "I'll never run in a mile championship again where you have to tear yourself to bits in the preliminaries."

Ibbotson claims he no longer is concentrating on mile races and that he is going for 5,000 meters and three-mile races.

It was the second time he had failed to qualify for an important mile, apparently because of forgetting the time factor. Last July he was eliminated from the British Amateur Athletic Assn. mile after coasting through his heat for second place. Two days later he broke the British three - mile record.

Zandvoort Lap Record Scored In Trial Races

ZANDVOORT, Netherlands (AP)—Two Britons and an American Sautrday broke Juan Manual Fangio's lap record for the Zandvoort Circuit in trials for Monday's Grand Prix automobile race.

Britain's Stirling Moss, driving a Vanwall, made the best time, one minute, 38 seconds. Fangio's previous record was 1:40, made in the 1955 trials. Tony Brooks of Britain was clocked in 1:39 in a Vanwall and Harry Schell, a Paris-based American, did 1:39.6 in a BRM. The twisting circuit measures 2.62 miles.

RECALL HURLER

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Tigers Saturday recalled relief pitcher Vito Valentinetti from their Charleston farm club in the American Assn.

Hazle, Batting .179, Shunted Off To Tigers

MILWAUKEE (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves traded outfielder Bob "Hurricane" Hazle to the Detroit Tigers Saturday after obtaining National League permission to restore the injured Billy Bruton to the active list for the first time since last July.

The surprise inter - league deal climaxed a disappointing spring for Hazle, who helped spear head the Braves' drive for the NL flag by hitting .403 at the tail end of last season. His current batting average is .179.

The Milwaukee club first said Hazle went to the Tigers for an undisclosed amount of cash and a player to be named later. But General Manager John McHale of Detroit said no other player was involved.

General Manager John Quinn of the Braves explained that technically McHale was correct. If the two clubs cannot agree on a player, Quinn explained, the Braves will take the money.

"If the Tigers can't satisfy us with the player they offer us, then we'll be forced to take the money," Quinn said. "We hope they can come up with a player we want. We'd rather have a player than cash."

Hazle, 27, had been platooned in right field this season with Andy Pafko and Harry Hanebrink. He was hitting .179.

The solidly-built left-handed batter joined the Braves on July 28 last season, from their Wichita farm.

He was batting .283 with the triple-A team at the time. But the Braves were told that he would hit major league pitching.

Appearing in 41 games in the pennant drive Hazle collected 54 hits in 134 trips to the plate, including 12 doubles and seven home runs. He drove in 27 runs.

Hazle broke into the majors with Cincinnati in 1955. He batted .231 while appearing in but six games that season and then was traded to the Braves in April, 1956, for first baseman George Crowe. Pitcher Corky Valentine went along to the Braves in the deal.

Hazle spent 1956 at Wichita.

Economy Up, Down In Week

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's economy was a criss-cross pattern of ups and downs this week.

Things looked a little better for producers of food, electrical machinery, building materials, steel and textiles—but not so good for manufacturers of machine tools, rolling stock, appliances and cars.

Retail sales were off a bit.

Unemployment trended higher. Labor Secretary Mitchell advised Americans not to get panicky if the jobless total passes the six-million mark next month. He said unemployment always shoots up when vacationing students enter the labor market.

Memo to junior: employment agencies say vacation jobs this summer will be scarce.

Living costs soared to a new high, but government economists said the inflationary upsurge in consumer prices seems to have shot its bolt. Food prices—particularly on fresh vegetables and meats—may head lower soon.

Prices of copper, cement and plywood inched up this week. Executives of two steel firms said they hoped to boost steel prices in July, when wage rates go up, but they were by no means certain they could make the increases stick.

There was sharp disagreement among economists as to whether inflation or deflation is the greater danger now.

Of more immediate urgency was the question: "What's wrong with the auto market?"

The problem came to the fore as the world's two biggest auto makers held their annual meetings.

Stockholders of General Motors got a first hand report from their President, Harlow H. Curtice, at a jam-packed meeting in a Buick-Pontiac - Oldsmobile assembly plant near Wilmington, Del.

The real reason for sagging sales, said Curtice, is not the Detroit "big car" concept but the general business slowdown. He said most American families like the 1958 Detroit product—they'd rather own a big, powerful, easy-riding American car than a pint-sized foreign model.

In Detroit's Masonic Auditorium stockholders of Ford Motor Co were told to expect a "modest recovery" in general business late in 1958. But said President Henry Ford II, it will be a poor year for the auto business. "Our profits," he said, "will directly reflect the impact of sharply reduced volume."

At Chrysler Corp., some 2,000 officers and executives will be docked anywhere from one to three weeks' salary this summer in a move to cut costs.

MIDDLE-OF-ROAD

Labor Measure Is Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Predictions that a middle-of-the road labor reform bill will emerge from the Senate Labor Committee were made Saturday by Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) and Irving M. Ives (R-NY).

Kennedy told newsmen the committee's product may be one "both sides will not like — some will think it's too strong, some too weak."

Nevertheless, he said that a bill avoiding extremes is the only kind which stands a chance of becoming law.

Ives concurred with Kennedy's view. He said the committee's bill probably will go further than labor leaders want but not so far as Eisenhower has recommended.

The New Yorker, senior Republican on the labor subcommittee, described Kennedy and himself as a "sort of center force" on the committee. He said they were in substantial agreement on the subject.

Kennedy said he would work on a draft bill over the weekend and confer with Ives Monday. He said the subcommittee would meet on it Wednesday and explained he hoped that group could complete its work on a bill Thursday.

That would give the full committee 10 days in June to get the measure to the floor. It has a June 10 deadline to accomplish this.

Indications from both senators were that the committee bill would include provisions on union democracy including some election saieguards, on financial reporting by unions, on trusteeships over locals, on conflicts of interest involving union officers, on elimination of the non-Communist affidavit for union officials, and on repealing the Taft-Hartley law action which makes it impossible for strikers to vote in a bargaining election.

Kennedy said consideration also will be given to provisions on ending the no man's land that results when the National Labor Relations Board refuses to take a case and a state is banned from doing so; to restrictions on picketing by a union seeking to organize a store or plant; and on elimination of the election requirement to certify a construction trades union as a bargaining agent.

There appeared little or no chance the bill would contain two sections strongly pushed by management at the hearings—making unions subject to the antitrust law and banning compulsory unionism.

Kennedy and the Senate Democratic leadership have promised that a bill would be brought to the floor by June 10. They made the promise in arguing successfully against all amendments to a pension and welfare fund control measure a month ago. Kennedy said Saturday he was confident the deadline would be met.

24 Permits For Drilling Are Asked

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Barnwell Production Co. has applied for 24 drilling permits in the Pike County side of the Little Creek field which is productive from sands at 10,700 feet.

Barnwell already has one well drilling below 8,000 feet and two other locations staked.

Eight drilling rigs are operating in the newly discovered field.

Jett Drilling and Crosby Mineral have completed their Pearl River County wildcat Southern Mineral No. 1 Sec. 27s-17w as the discovery of a new gas condensate field.

The well flowed 3,170,000 cubic feet of gas and 53 barrels of condensate a day from perforations at 9,010-45 feet.

The new producing field is three miles southeast of the East Angie field and 14 miles northwest of Poplarville.

Gulf Oil Corp. is running production casing in the deep Gwinville field test the Gwinville Unit No. 1, sec. 34-9n-19w in Jefferson Davis County.

Total depth is 14,452 feet with casing expected to be set to bottom. The venture has encountered a number of possible deep producing gas sands below 10,000 feet with the commercial possibilities of all sands to be determined by production tests.

Current deepest production level in the field is 9,000 feet.

In Smith County, five miles east of Magee, Arkansas Fuel Corp., is below 12,300 feet in the wildcat Womack No. 1, sec. 35-1n-6j.

The venture has encountered two possible faults and is running high on structure. Several dead oil shows have been logged in the Pauxy formation and development of the Rodessa sands will be important.

In Lincoln County north of Sweetwater field, Shell Oil Co., is attempting to free stuck drill pipe in the wildcat, W. G. Tynes No. 1 sec. 1-5n-8e. Total depth is 10,714 feet.

In south Rankin County, Monsato Chemical Co. has derrick erected at its wildcat Rathell No. 1, sec 19-3n-43, a 13,200-foot venventure

California Co is below 16,000 feet in the deep test of the Mallalieu field of Lincoln County. The venture, Board of Supervisors No. 1, sec. 16-6n-8e, has logged no commercial shows. Mallalieu's deepest producing level is 10,600 feet.

In field drilling, one new oiler was completed.

Marlin Exploration Co. completed the Pierce Butler No. 3, sec. 15-5n-3w in the Ellis Cliffs field of Adami County.

The well flowed 272 barrels of 41 gravity oil a day from perforations in the Wilcox sand at 6,684-86 feet.

RECESSION BOTTOMED OUT?

Use Many Words To Battle Slump

By ROBERT G. SHORTAL
United Press Financial Writer

Polonius: "What do you hear my lord?"

Hamlet: "Words, words, words!"

— Shakespeare —

NEW YORK (UP) — If words will cure the nation's economic ills, then the death knell was sounded this week for the recession.

There was enough verbiage on the recession this week to choke a pterodactyl.

The general consensus of all this proselytizing was that the recession has "bottomed out" and that signs of an upturn are becoming clearer.

On Monday and Tuesday of this week, hundreds of leading businessmen and government officials attended an economic mobilization conference sponsored by the American Management Assn. On Wednesday and Thursday the American Iron & Steel Institute held its annual convention.

These two conclaves, plus scores of annual meetings and other conventions, brought forth countless thousands of words on what's wrong with the economy and what should be done about it.

President Eisenhower told the AMA convention that the recession is "slowing down" and said the administration soon will make a decision on taxes. Vice President Nixon told the same meeting there is "nothing basically wrong" with the economy but said this would be a good time to achieve some "much needed tax reform."

Leading steelmen at their convention generally expressed optimism about the economic outlook, particularly for a fourth quarter upturn, but warned that steel prices will have to be raised this year when the steelworkers get an automatic pay and fringe increase.

Economist Marcus Nadler warned that the biggest danger still is inflation. He said steps taken to spur business could—if overdone — revive "the dormant forces of inflation," leading to a new wage-price spiral and further declines in the purchasing power of the dollar.

However, Alfred Hayes, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, said he "believes the immediate dangers of recession" still outweigh" the immediate dangers of inflation.

He said although the nation "may again be faced with a problem of fighting inflation after we emerge from the current recession, I think it would have been inexcusable to let this consideration prevent our doing all that we could reasonably do to combat the recession and to provide an atmosphere . . . conducive to recovery."

There were bright spots in the news this week:

—Carloadings scored their best gain in three months. Steel production inched higher again this week and now is at its best level since January. Construction activity scored another sharp increase and now is only slightly behind last year's pace. Auto output held steady. Retail sales remained at a high level. Copper prices firmed following a spurt in demand. General Electric reported an increase in new orders. Labor Secretary Mitchell said unemployment will swing upward this fall.

On the debit side, living costs increased again in April with food costs again leading the rise.

Down Drift Of Cotton Continues

NEW YORK (AP)—The cotton futures market continued its downward drift this week.

Active futures contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange took losses ranged from $1.40 to $2.20 a bale.

The week started out on a firm note with trade price fixing and short covering acting as a prop. Prices soon crumbled, however, under the impact of a new batch of favorable weather reports, trader uncertainty concerning the outlook for new price support legislation, and government reports showing a decline in consumption of the staple last month.

Uncovering of stop-loss orders hastened the decline.

Toward's week end the market was bolstered by resumption of mill price fixing and indications of a stronger underlying demand.

Attention of traders was drawn to an official U. S. government report showing that mills in this country consumed cotton at the rate of 29,200 bales a day in April.

This compares with a daily consumption rate of 31,600 bales in March and 32,400 bales in April 1957.

Total domestic consumption of the staple for the first nine months of the current season came to 6,175,000 bales. This compares with a total use of 6,769,000 bales in the first nine months of the previous crop year.

Distribution of all cotton in this country (including cotton used by U. S. mills and export of the staple) was estimated at 10,525,000 bales for the current season by the New York Cotton Exchange service bureau. The figure compares with a total distribution of 12,760,000 bales in the 1956-57 crop year. This, it was pointed out, would result in a July 31 carryover of 8,800,000 bales in 1958 vs. an end-season carry-over of 11,300,000 bales last year, due to a substantially lower opening season supply.

Exports for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the service bureau at 128,000 bales vs. 133,000 the previous week and 124,000 in the year-ago week. Total exports for the season were estimated at 4,749,000 bales vs. 6,410,000 at the same time last season.

Murder Trial Set For State Man On Tuesday

GLOBE, Ariz. (AP)—Trial will begin Tuesday for Wilmer Walter Evans, 36, a pudgy ex-pipefitter from Baton Rouge, La., charged with first degree murder in the death of his wife.

Frances Evans, 34, of Amite, La., was killed last Nov. 8 when the couple's rental car plunged about 250 feet into San Carlos Lake, about 25 miles southeast of this central Arizona city.

Mrs. Evans, mother of four children by a previous marriage, had been insured for $100,000 only the day before, said Sheriff Jack Jones. Evans told officers he escaped by leaping from the car as it rolled toward the precipice.

The victim was hospitalized a month earlier by a similar accident. Their car had plunged 200 feet into Salt River canyon northeast of Globe. Mrs. Evans was insured for $50,000 at that time and Evans was unhurt.

Congressional History Does Repeat On Oil

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — Congressional history on proposed mandatory controls over oil imports is repeating itself.

Rejection of the Ikard bill by the House Ways and Means Committee is similar to action taken on a controls proposal in April, 1955, by the Senate Finance Committee.

In preference to Ikard's quota-tariff plan, the House group has recommended a revised version of the reciprocal trade agreement act's defense amendment that authorizes the current voluntary program to curtail imports. The Senate committee in 1955 authored the defense amendment while rejecting a Neely amendment that called for a flat 10 per cent quota system.

While the committee actions are similar, the reaction from advocates of mandatory controls is in sharp contrast.

Independent oil operators in 1955 reluctantly accepted the defense amendment on grounds the intent behind the amendment was to hold petroleum imports to their 1954 relationship to domestic production.

Already displeased with the voluntary curtailment program, the independents now fear the House committee action eliminates any historical background indicating it was the intent of Congress in 1955 to hold imports to their 1954 ratio.

The independents contend the Ikard bill would maintain such a ratio. Capt. Matthew V. Carson, administrator of the voluntary program disagrees.

Carson contends imports form only one factor in the current slump in demand for crude oil and petroleum products. He lists increased production of distillates and general business conditions as other factors.

Carson last week bluntly told the San Antonio convention of the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Assn. (TIPRO) the Ikard bill alone would not restore their lost markets.

Four days later the House committee, by a reported 14-10 vote, rejected the Ikard bill as an amendment to the trade act.

The independents now are hoping for favorable action on the House floor or later in a Senate committee or by the Senate itself.

The trade act expires June 30 and the administration has asked congress for a five-year extension.

OFFICIALS NAMED

Ouachita Safety Council Revived

The Ouachita Parish Safety Council, has been reactivated with Wesley Burdine named as president of the service organization.

Other officers are R. M. Kettering, first vice president; A. S. Huffman, second vice president; Mrs. David Agnew, secretary, and Frank P. Bonner, treasurer. Serving on the public relations board will be J. J. Barnes, Mac Ward, and Miss Reca Bamburg.

Mrs. Henry Mayo Sr., was named chairman of public and school safety.

Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard and West Monroe Mayor J. Allan Norris hailed the reactivation of the Safety Council as a further step toward reducing accidents in the home and on the street.

Mayor Howard added that the city officials would "cooperate in every way possible and will work the Council toward obtaining its goal."

The Safety Council has an eight-fold objective. Briefly they include the following:

Objective

To build and maintain in the minds of the people of the parish an understanding of accident and associated problems and an awareness of personal responsibilities for the safety and convenience of others to reduce untimely deaths, crippling injuries and economic losses caused by accidents.

Work to facilitate, as well as safeguard, the free flow of traffic on streets and highways, recognizing that the two major aspects of the traffic problems are accidents and congestion.

Work closely and cooperatively with governmental and other responsible groups to stimulate and assist in building sound programs for accident prevention and traffic control.

Focus community attention on the principal community needs and generate public opinion in support of necessary action to meet these needs.

Provide means for voluntary coordination, planning and execution for the many groups which share responsibility for specific phases of the community programs.

Provide continuity of effective accident prevention operations.

Help solve problems pertaining to accidents and traffic and actively support needed measures.

Seek with other councils the adoption of uniform definition, reporting and recording of accidents; uniform laws; engineering standards, and enforcement procedures relating to traffic, occupation, home, farm, and school safety; and common public education objectives throughout the nation.

Mississippi May Have Won Round

JACKSON, Miss., May 24 (UPI) —The state may have won the first round in the lawsuit challenging Mississippi s election laws even before the case goes to trial.

The three federal judges selected to hear the case all are Mississippians; and the state already has testimony from the plaintiff on which to base its answer.

The Rev. H. D. Darby, a Prentiss Negro minister, is bringing the suit in U. S. District Court here against the registrar of Jefferson Davis county and State Attorney General Joe Patterson. Darby charged he was refused registration because of his race and contends voter tests required by the Constitution are illegal. The NAACP is financing the suit.

State attorneys recently took testimony from Darby during a five-hour closed hearing in Prentiss. That testimony has not been made part of the record but could be used in trial of the case under certain conditions. The state can make good use of it in preparing its answer to Darby's complaint.

Jess Brown, a Vicksburg Negro attorney who is representing Darby, said he had no objection to the state questioning Darby before the answer is filed because that is part of federal court procedure.

"I don't think it weakened our case any," Brown said, "we don't have anything to hide."

Brown said he had the same right to question state principals in the case ahead of trial but had not decided whether to do so.

The state has until June 1 to answer the complaint. It probably will be filed on Monday, June 2, which is authorized procedure when the deadline falls on a Sunday.

State attorneys won two delays in filing the answer and they are not expected to beat the deadline by much.

A hearing date for the case can be set after the state's answer is filed. Brown said he would request the earliest possible date.

The case is expected to reach the U. S. Supreme Court eventually.

The panel to hear it is composed of District Judges Sidney Mize of south Mississippi and Claude Clayton of north Mississippi and Ben F. Cameron, Mississippi's judge on the fifth circuit court of appeals.

Darby was refused permission to register as a voter on ground he flunked the test that requires voters to write a short essay on the duties of citizenship in a democracy and to interpret in writing any section of the state constitution. The state is expected to contend that he simply did not satisfy the requirements.

The suit, however, also challenges the procedure itself. And it is a class suit, filed in behalf of all Negroes faced with taking the test.

However, the state is expected to argue that the suit does not meet the legal requirements of a class suit and thus can apply only to Darby himself.

Union Head Criticized By Rainach

BATON ROUGE (AP) — State Sen. W. M. Rainach Saturday criticized the Louisiana AFL-CIO president for keeping a Negro leader as vice president of the State Labor Council.

Rainach, chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation, said public confidence in unions will be destroyed if E. A. Bryant is continued in the post.

Bryant is president of the Shreveport chapter of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

Rainach aimed his attack at Victor Bussie, AFL-CIO state head.

Four weeks have passed since Bryant's election to the state AFL-CIO office, a Rainach statement said, "and Bussie and his clique still stubbornly maintain Bryant in office."

The statement continued: "If "Bussie is permitted to continue his policy and succeed, he will have undermined the whole state resistance to integrated schools.

"If he continues and fails, he will have maintained segregation, but he will have destroyed much of the public confidence that good union members have built up in unionism over the years."

The NAACP has led the legal attack against racial segregation in Louisiana.

Rainach was Senate floor leader in 1954 for enactment of the right to work law. He led the fight in 1956 against repeal of the law barring compulsory labor union membership.

Economy Up, Down In Week

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's economy was a criss-cross pattern of ups and downs this week.

Things looked a little better for producers of food, electrical machinery, building materials, steel and textiles—but not so good for manufacturers of machine tools, rolling stock, appliances and cars.

Retail sales were off a bit.

Unemployment trended higher. Labor Secretary Mitchell advised Americans not to get panicky if the jobless total passes the six-million mark next month. He said unemployment always shoots up when vacationing students enter the labor market.

Memo to junior: employment agencies say vacation jobs this summer will be scarce.

Living costs soared to a new high, but government economists said the inflationary upsurge in consumer prices seems to have shot its bolt. Food prices—particularly on fresh vegetables and meats—may head lower soon.

Prices of copper, cement and plywood inched up this week. Executives of two steel firms said they hoped to boost steel prices in July, when wage rates go up, but they were by no means certain they could make the increases stick.

There was sharp disagreement among economists as to whether inflation or deflation is the greater danger now.

Of more immediate urgency was the question: "What's wrong with the auto market?"

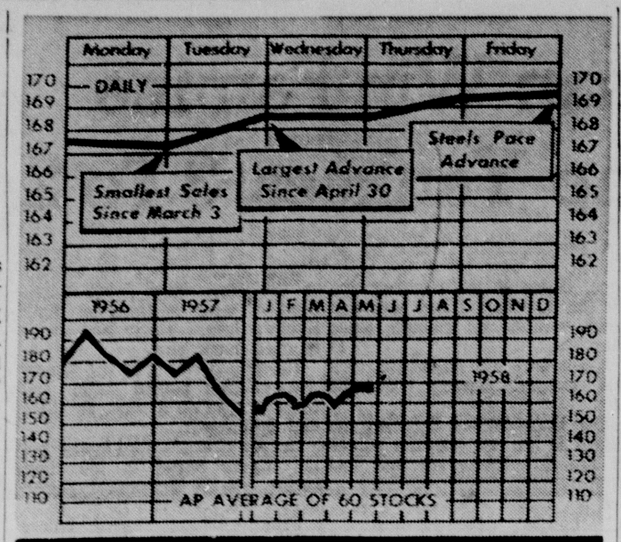

The problem came to the fore as the world's two biggest auto makers held their annual meetings.

Stockholders of General Motors got a first hand report from their President, Harlow H. Curtice, at a jam-packed meeting in a Buick-Pontiac - Oldsmobile assembly plant near Wilmington, Del.

The real reason for sagging sales, said Curtice, is not the Detroit "big car" concept but the general business slowdown. He said most American families like the 1958 Detroit product—they'd rather own a big, powerful, easy-riding American car than a pint-sized foreign model.

In Detroit's Masonic Auditorium stockholders of Ford Motor Co. were told to expect a "modest recovery" in general business late in 1958. But said President Henry Ford II, it will be a poor year for the auto business. "Our profits," he said, "will directly reflect the impact of sharply reduced volume."

At Chrysler Corp., some 2,000 officers and executives will be docked anywhere from one to three weeks' salary this summer in a move to cut costs.

STOCKS, COMMODITIES BOTH UP—The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced sharply this week to 169.6 from 167.6 a week ago. Led by food, the commodity index rose for the third straight week, closing 173.1 from 172.8 in the preceding period. (AP Wirephoto)

MIDDLE-OF-ROAD

Labor Measure Is Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Predictions that a middle-of-the road labor reform bill will emerge from the Senate Labor Committee were made Saturday by Sens. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass) and Irving M. Ives (R-NY).

Kennedy told newsmen the committee's product may be one "both sides will not like — some will think it's too strong, some too weak."

Nevertheless, he said that a bill avoiding extremes is the only kind which stands a chance of becoming law.

Ives concurred with Kennedy's view. He said the committee's bill probably will go further than labor leaders want but not so far as Eisenhower has recommended.

The New Yorker, senior Republican on the labor subcommittee, described Kennedy and himself as a "sort of center force" on the committee. He said they were in substantial agreement on the subject.

Kennedy said he would work on a draft bill over the weekend and confer with Ives Monday. He said the subcommittee would meet on it Wednesday and explained he hoped that group could complete its work on a bill Thursday.

That would give the full committee 10 days in June to get the measure to the floor. It has a June 10 deadline to accomplish this.

Indications from both senators were that the committee bill would include provisions on union democracy including some election safeguards, on financial reporting by unions, on conflicts of interest involving union officers, on elimination of the non-Communist affidavit for union officials, and on repealing the Taft-Hartley law action which makes it impossible for strikers to vote in a bargaining election.

Kennedy said consideration also will be given to provisions on ending the no man's land that results when the National Labor Relations Board refuses to take a case and a state is banned from doing so; to restrictions on picketing by a union seeking to organize a store or plant; and on elimination of the election requirement to certify a construction trades union as a bargaining agent.

There appeared little or no chance the bill would contain two sections strongly pushed by management at the hearings—making unions subject to the antitrust law and banning compulsory unionism.

Kennedy and the Senate Democratic leadership have promised that a bill would be brought to the floor by June 10. They made the promise in arguing successfully against all amendments to a pension and welfare fund control measure a month ago. Kennedy said Saturday he was confident the deadline would be met.

RECESSION BOTTOMED OUT?

Use Many Words To Battle Slump

By ROBERT G. SHORTAL
United Press Financial Writer

Polonius: "What do you hear my lord?"

Hamlet: "Words, words, words!"

— Shakespeare —

NEW YORK (UP) — If words will cure the nation's economic ills, then the death knell was sounded this week for the recession.

There was enough verbiage on the recession this week to choke a pterodactyl.

The general consensus of all this proselytizing was that the recession has "bottomed out" and that signs of an upturn are becoming clearer.

On Monday and Tuesday of this week, hundreds of leading businessmen and government officials attended an economic mobilization conference sponsored by the American Management Assn. On Wednesday and Thursday the American Iron & Steel Institute held its annual convention.

These two conclaves, plus scores of annual meetings and other conventions, brought forth countless thousands of words on what's wrong with the economy and what should be done about it.

President Eisenhower told the AMA convention that the recession is "slowing down" and said the administration soon will make a decision on taxes. Vice President Nixon told the same meeting there is "nothing basically wrong" with the economy but said this would be a good time to achieve some "much needed tax reform."

Leading steelmen at their convention generally expressed optimism about the economic outlook, particularly for a fourth quarter upturn, but warned that steel prices will have to be raised this year when the steelworkers get an automatic pay and fringe increase.

Economist Marcus Nadler warned that the biggest danger still is inflation. He said steps taken to spur business could—if overdone — revive "the dormant forces of inflation," leading to a new wage-price spiral and further declines in the purchasing power of the dollar.

However, Alfred Hayes, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, said he "believes the immediate dangers of recession" still outweigh" the immediate dangers of inflation.

He said although the nation "may again be faced with a problem of fighting inflation after we emerge from the current recession, I think it would have been inexcusable to let this consideration prevent our doing all that we could reasonably do to combat the recession and to provide an atmosphere . . . conducive to recovery."

There were bright spots in the news this week:

—Carloadings scored their best gain in three months. Steel production inched higher again this week and now is at its best level since January. Construction activity scored another sharp increase and now is only slightly behind last year's pace. Auto output held steady. Retail sales remained at a high level. Copper prices firmed following a spurt in demand. General Electric reported an increase in new orders. Labor Secretary Mitchell said unemployment will swing upward this fall.

On the debit side, living costs increased again in April with food costs again leading the rise.

Down Drift Of Cotton Continues

NEW YORK (AP)—The cotton futures market continued its downward drift this week.

Active futures contracts on the New York Cotton Exchange took losses ranged from $1.40 to $2.20 a bale.

The week started out on a firm note with trade price fixing and short covering acting as a prop. Prices soon crumbled, however, under the impact of a new batch of favorable weather reports, trader uncertainty concerning the outlook for new price support legislation, and government reports showing a decline in consumption of the staple last month.

Uncovering of stop-loss orders hastened the decline.

Toward's week end the market was bolstered by resumption of mill price fixing and indications of a stronger underlying demand.

Attention of traders was drawn to an official U. S. government report showing that mills in this country consumed cotton at the rate of 29,200 bales a day in April.

This compares with a daily consumption rate of 31,600 bales in March and 32,400 bales in April 1957.

Total domestic consumption of the staple for the first nine months of the current season came to 6,175,000 bales. This compares with a total use of 6,769,000 bales in the first nine months of the previous crop year.

Distribution of all cotton in this country (including cotton used by U. S. mills and export of the staple) was estimated at 10,525,000 bales for the current season by the New York Cotton Exchange service bureau. The figure compares with a total distribution of 12,760,000 bales in the 1956-57 crop year. This, it was pointed out, would result in a July 31 carryover of 8,800,000 bales in 1958 vs. an end-season carry-over of 11,300,000 bales last year, due to a substantially lower opening season supply.

Exports for the week ended Tuesday were estimated by the service bureau at 128,000 bales vs. 133,000 the previous week and 124,000 in the year-ago week. Total exports for the season were estimated at 4,749,000 bales vs. 6,410,000 at the same time last season.

Murder Trial Set For State Man On Tuesday

GLOBE, Ariz. (AP)—Trial will begin Tuesday for Wilmer Walter Evans, 36, a pudgy ex-pipefitter from Baton Rouge, La., charged with first degree murder in the death of his wife.

Frances Evans, 34, of Amite, La., was killed last Nov. 8 when the couple's rental car plunged about 250 feet into San Carlos Lake, about 25 miles southeast of this central Arizona city.

Mrs. Evans, mother of four children by a previous marriage, had been insured for $100,000 only the day before, said Sheriff Jack Jones. Evans told officers he escaped by leaping from the car as it rolled toward the precipice.

The victim was hospitalized a month earlier by a similar accident. Their car had plunged 200 feet into Salt River canyon northeast of Globe. Mrs. Evans was insured for $50,000 at that time and Evans was unhurt.

NAMED TO POST—Lee Truman has been named District Commercial Supervisor for Southern Bell Telephone Company in the Monroe District. This staff position is a coordinating duty. Truman comes to Monroe from position of group manager in Hopkinsville, Kentucky, where he had served since September, 1956. He has been with Southern Bell since June, 1950.

Congressional History Does Repeat On Oil

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP) — Congressional history on proposed mandatory controls over oil imports is repeating itself.

Rejection of the Ikard bill by the House Ways and Means Committee is similar to action taken on a controls proposal in April, 1955, by the Senate Finance Committee.

In preference to Ikard's quota-tariff plan, the House group has recommended a revised version of the reciprocal trade agreement act's defense amendment that authorizes the current voluntary program to curtail imports. The Senate committee in 1955 authored the defense amendment while rejecting a Neely amendment that called for a flat 10 per cent quota system.

While the committee actions are similar, the reaction from advocates of mandatory controls is in sharp contrast.

Independent oil operators in 1955 reluctantly accepted the defense amendment on grounds the intent behind the amendment was to hold petroleum imports to their 1954 relationship to domestic production.

Already displeased with the voluntary curtailment program, the independents now fear the House committee action eliminates any historical background indicating it was the intent of Congress in 1955 to hold imports to their 1954 ratio.

The independents contend the Ikard bill would maintain such a ratio. Capt. Matthew V. Carson, administrator of the voluntary program disagrees.

Carson contends imports form only one factor in the current slump in demand for crude oil and petroleum products. He lists increased production of distillates and general business conditions as other factors.

Carson last week bluntly told the San Antonio convention of the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Assn. (TIPRO) the Ikard bill alone would not restore their lost markets.

Four days later the House committee, by a reported 14-10 vote, rejected the Ikard bill as an amendment to the trade act.

The independents now are hoping for favorable action on the House floor or later in a Senate committee or by the Senate itself.

The trade act expires June 30 and the administration has asked congress for a five-year extension.

OFFICIALS NAMED

Ouachita Safety Council Revived

The Ouachita Parish Safety Council, has been reactivated with Wesley Burdine named as president of the service organization.

Other officers are R. M. Kettering, first vice president; A. S. Huffman, second vice president; Mrs. David Agnew, secretary, and Frank P. Bonner, treasurer. Serving on the pbulic relations board will be J. J. Barnes, Mac Ward, and Miss Reca Bamburg.

Mrs. Henry Mayo Sr., was named chairman of public and school safety.

Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard and West Monroe Mayor J. Allan Norris hailed the reactivation of the Safety Council as a further step toward reducing accidents in the home and on the street.

Mayor Howard added that the city officials would "cooperate in every way possible and will work the Council toward obtaining its goal."

The Safety Council has an eightfold objective. Briefly they include the following:

Objective

To build and maintain in the minds of the people of the parish an understanding of accident and associated problems and an awareness of personal responsibilities for he safety and convenience of others to reduce untimely deaths, crippling injuries and economic losses caused by accidents.

Work to facilitate, as well as safeguard, the free flow of traffic on streets and highways, recognizing that the two major aspects of the traffic problems are accidents and congestion.

Work closely and cooperatively with governmental and other responsible groups to stimulate and assist in building sound programs for accident prevention and traffic control.

Focus community attention on the principal community needs and generate public opinion in support of necessary action to meet these needs.

Provide means for voluntary coordination, planning and execution for the many groups which share responsibility for specific phases of the community programs.

Provide continuity of effective accident prevention operations.

Union Head Criticized By Rainach

BATON ROUGE (AP) — State Sen. W. M. Rainach Saturday criticized the Louisiana AFL-CIO president for keeping a Negro leader as vice president of the State Labor Council.

Rainach, chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation, said public confidence in unions will be destroyed if E. A. Bryant is continued in the post.

Bryant is president of the Shreveport chapter of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

Rainach aimed his attack at Victor Bussie, AFL-CIO state head.

Four weeks have passed since Bryant's election to the state AFL-CIO office, a Rainach statement said, "and Bussie and his clique still stubbornly maintain Bryant in office."

The statement continued: "If "Bussie is permitted to continue his policy and succeed, he will have undermined the whole state resistance to integrated schools.

"If he continues and fails, he will have maintained segregation, but he will have destroyed much of the public confidence that good union members have built up in unionism over the years."

The NAACP has led the legal attack against racial segregation in Louisiana.

Rainach was Senate floor leader in 1954 for enactment of the right to work law. He led the fight in 1956 against repeal of the law barring compulsory labor union membership.

Mississippi May Have Won Round

JACKSON, Miss., May 24 (UPI) —The state may have won the first round in the lawsuit challenging Mississippi's election laws even before the case goes to trial.

The three federal judges selected to hear the case all are Mississippians; and the state already has testimony from the plaintiff on which to base its answer.

The Rev. H. D. Darby, a Prentiss Negro minister, is bringing the suit in U. S. District Court here against the registrar of Jefferson Davis county and State Attorney General Joe Patterson. Darby charged he was refused registration because of his race and contends voter tests required by the Constitution are illegal. The NAACP is financing the suit.

State attorneys recently took testimony from Darby during a five-hour closed hearing in Prentiss. That testimony has not been made part of the record but could be used in trial of the case under certain conditions. The state can make good use of it in preparing its answer to Darby's complaint.

Jess Brown, a Vicksburg Negro attorney who is representing Darby, said he had no objection to the state questioning Darby before the answer is filed because that is part of federal court procedure.

"I don't think it weakened our case any," Brown said, "we don't have anything to hide."

Brown said he had the same right to question state principals in the case ahead of trial but had not decided whether to do so.

The state has until June 1 to answer the complaint. It probably will be filed on Monday, June 2, which is authorized procedure when the deadline falls on a Sunday.

State attorneys won two delays in filing the answer and they are not expected to beat the deadline by much.

A hearing date for the case can be set after the state's answer is filed. Brown said he would request the earliest possible date.

The case is expected to reach the U. S. Supreme Court eventually

The panel to hear it is composed of District Judges Sidney Mize of south Mississippi and Claude Clayton of north Mississippi and Ben F. Cameron, Mississippi's judge on the fifth circuit court of appeals.

Darby was refused permission to register as a voter on ground he flunked the test that requires voters to write a short essay on the duties of citizenship in a democracy and to interpret in writing any section of the state constitution. The state is expected to contend that he simply did not satisfy the requirements.

The suit, however, also challenges the procedure itself. And it is a class suit, filed in behalf of all Negroes faced with taking the test.

However, the state is expected to argue that the suit does not meet the legal requirements of a class suit and thus can apply only to Darby himself.

Violinist, Singer Achieve Career-Family Compatibility

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK, AP — Lots of famous women singers, when they tour, leave the husbands home to take care of the children.

Lots of famous men violinists, when they tour, leave the wives home ditto.

But when the singer, Irmgard Seefried, is married to the violinist, Wolfgang Schneiderhan, the best they can do is, they both said quickly and impatiently between concerts:

"Hurry home as fast as possible!"

Home is Vienna, where Schneiderhan was born and where Mme. Seefried has been Vienna State Opera star since she made her formal debut 15 years ago. And once back home, she declared with a slap, slap, slap of her hands for each repetition:

"We are paren's, parents, parents!"

Ginger and Spice

She is the emphatic one. She never just says, she declares, exclaims and cries. That is not because her command of English is a little better than her husband's but because that's her nature. Schneiderhan with his glasses, round face, high brow and severe brush of black hair has a touch of the scholar, and a certain reserve. His wife is the ginger and the spice in this combination, zestful, vivacious and irrespressible — anybody would seem solemn beside her constant bouncy exuberance.

So it is a family too often separa'ed three ways — she on concert tours and in opera, he on concert tours and conducting his own small orchestra, and the children at home. The older daughter, Barbara, born in 1950, came here once; the other child, Monika, is only a year old and still very much a stay-at-home

Merry Mix-Up

On a recent seven-weeks tour of Australia, the parents saw each other nine times. But they have just had a joint recital here, half a dozen others are scheduled, and they have commissioned some composers, among them Swiss Frank Martin, to write works specially for her soprano and his violin.

"You have to think a little bit about your life and not work always," exclaimed Mme. Seefried — who sometimes is called Mme. Schneiderhan, while he, as she pointed out with a burst of laughter, is sometimes called Mr. Seefried. It can make for awkward moments when they are registering at a hotel, she confessed.

What's a day like when they are on tour? "Packing!" according to Mme. Seefrie.d "All the time packing. We have 10 pieces of luggage because there is diffierent music for each of us, and clothes for all climates, and books to read. What we pay in overweight is almost enough to have a third person fly with us!"

A typical tour day, they said, was two hours of practice in the morning, an interview at a two - hour lunch, TV or radio or records, an hour's rest, a rehearsal and then the concert.

"And the letters to answer!" he complained.

"And who answers them?" she retorted. "Me!" — with a pat - pat on her front. "he's the strong one, he has muscle, he pulls up trees, I answer letters."

Then, recalling a task that practically every touring artist now seems to have to tackle in hotel rooms all over the world, she cried in feigned disgust:

"You should see him wash his nylon shir's! Wuh!"

She imitated him, screwing up her mouth as if to hold a cigarette in the corner of her lips, bending over and doing a leisurely scrub - wait, scrub-wait, scrub-wait. Then she showed how she herself took over the job, scrubbing furiously and making the imaginary suds fly. They both broke into lough laughs, he kissed her hand, she looked at him fondly, they settled down again, she to her coffee and he to his smoke.

A Way That Works

"People are too serious," she protested. "They don't like what they do, they are always tense and excited, they don't take time off — for their children."

"We've found a way to make it all work — music, family, touring," said Schneiderhan confidently, and he meshed his fingers together to show how it was all geared into a unity.

But they are workers. Since I saw them, they have gone to Brussels to open, between them, the world's fair pavilions of three different countries, Mme. Seefried the Austrain and German and Schneiderhan the Swiss.

He began music lessons at three, his wife at five. She is the daughter of a high school teacher, and though she had some stage experience early, in "Hansel and Gretel" at 12 and in an oratorio at 18, she planned to become a doctor. She was already registered at a medical school when she had a chance to sing the role of Eva in Wagner's "Meistersinger" in the city of Aachen with von Karajan conducting. That committed her to a vocal career.

Schneiderhan, who plays a 1704 Stradivarius, teaches master courses at Lucerne and at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, and it is in Lucerne that he conducts the Schneiderhan orchestra. He made his professional debut at five in Vienna.

ARTISTRY AT THE WASH BASIN: Soprano Irmgard Seefried happily tackles a domestic task, doing the alundry in the hotel bathroom. The man, an old hand at quick-dipping a shirt, is her husband, violinist Wolfgang Schneiderhan. While nearly every touring artist performs this chore, few are as willing as the Schneiderhans to have their picture taken while doing it.

What's Happened To High Schools

WHAT'S HAPPENED TO OUR HIGH SCHOOLS? By John F. Latimer. Public Affairs Press. $3.25.

The special committee named to study what was wrong with America's high schools was firm in its conclusions.

"The pupil," it said, "may now go through a secondary school course of a very feeble and scrappy nature — studying a little of many subjects and not much of any one, getting, perhaps, a little information in a variety of fields, but nothing which can be called a thorough training."

This sounds as if it were written yesterday by an observer shocked by Russian technical advances. Yet, a Committee of Ten appointed by the National Education Assn. reached this gloomy conclusion in 1894.

The Committee of Ten's diagnosis, and the cures recommended, seem as valid now as they did 64 years ago. At least that's the viewpoint of Dr. Latimer, professor of classics and assistant dean of faculties at George Washington University.

After four years of studying secondary schools, Latimer's conclusion is even more blunt:

"We, the American people, have failed in our educational responsibilities. We have failed ourselves, but worse than that, we have failed our children."

Latimer thinks we have wound up with a conglomeration which he labels split-level education.

Along with the traditional subjects like English, Latin, mathematics, modern foreign languages, physics and biology, high school students can take—at least in some schools such things as welding, photography, home mechanics, ceramics, aviation, driver education and cosmetology.

"Split-level education," Latimer says, "often results, not from lack of ability, but from under - estimation of a student's capacity, by himself, his parents, or his adviser, or from the very human tendency, to which even students are prone, to follow the path of least resistance."

He notes this suggestion of the Committee of Ten: "All students, to the extent of their ability, no matter what their ultimate goals might be, should be introduced to the five great realms of human thought and experience:

"English language and literature; foreign languages and literature, particularly Latin; algebra and geometry; science . . .; history, including civil government."

Possibly because he was born to be an educator, Latimer is optimistic. He thinks an awakened public, rudely jolted by the Russian scientific alarm clock, will help more youngsters live up to their potentialities.

Yet he warns that in the enthusiasm for science, other basic courses must not be folrgotten.

NOSTALGIC TRIP

Three Penny Star Goes To Berlin

By REINHOLD ENSZ

BERLIN (AP) — The famed Three Penny Opera, now beginning its fourth year on a New York stage, is due to become even more famous shortly.

Lotte Lenya came here recently from New York and helped record the entire musical in its original German. The records are scheduled for worldwide release later this year.

"I have also signed a contract with a German company to make it into a movie," Miss Lenya told an interviewer. "But I don't know when filming will start. Details still have to be worked out."

Weill's Widow

Miss Lenya is the widow of Kurt Weill, the man who wrote the music for the Three Penny Opera and numerous other musicals. He died in 1950 in New York.

For Miss Lenya, her trip back to Berlin was a nostalgic one. She was an Austrian and Weill was a German and they were married in Berlin in 1927.

One year later, the Three Penny Opera had its world premiere in Berlin's Schiffbauerdamm-Theater. Although it depicted the beggars and the underworld of 18th Century London, it was actually a powerful commentary on the social injustice in Germany during the hard years after World War I. In 1931, G. W. Pabst turned it into a German movie, now regarded by connoisseurs as a classic.

But the Nazis didn't regard it as a classic. Weill was Jewish and they banned not only the movie, but all of his music. He and Lotte went into exile, first to Paris and in 1935 to New York City.

After World War II, Weill's music made up for lost time in Germany and his popularity increased in the United States. New York's Town Hall featured a concert version of the Three Penny Opera, wit' Miss Lenya singing the role of Jenny. The performance was so popular that it was repeated four times.

In March 1955, the Three Penny Opera opened at the Theater de Lys, a small 299-seat house on Christopher Street in New York's Greenwich Village. Miss Lenya again sang the role of Jenny. The play has been running ever since, although Miss Lenya has frequently turned her role over to an understudy.

Reflective Mood

Being back in Berlin put Miss Lenya in a reflective frame of mind.

"I remember the first time I came back after the war," she said. "It was in the spring of 1955. There was still so much bomb damage and I was so horrified that I stayed in my hotel all day.

But finally I went to Luisenplatz, where Kurt and I had lived. It was Luisenplatz 3 and it was the only building in the whole area still standing. I went inside and discovered that a music student was living in our old apartment. Kurt's piano was still there. The student was using it."

LOTTE LENYA

A Salute To Lasting Love

THE QUICK YEARS. By Jean Ariss. Harper. $3.95.

"My grandparents had been married 27 years when I was nine, and five of their sons were younger than I."

With this sentence, which takes a little getting used to, the girl Sharon, granddaughter of Joseph and Sarah, begins the fiery story of the Baer clan. "This family," complains one of Joseph's daughters. "It's like living in a zoo." In fact it's a combination of zoo and goldfish bowl, for many of these people are most unconventionally uninhibited; and the grand sire himself, goatish, ribald and superbly intense, is followed from the time he wins 14-year-old Sarah till he becomes a great-grandfather.

This is a novel about a great sprawling family life, and about a sort of swashbuckling fireside patriarch who rules his brood by his invincible passions and stirs up a surpassing affection and envy in his descendants. Miss Ariss' frankness — or rather, honest Sharon's — may disturb some readers. It should not. This moving story eloquently salutes the fine full everlasting love of the heart.

Grazing Rights On Soil Bank Acreage Cut

Rep. Otto E. Passman yesterday reminded district livestock producers that laws governing the soil bank program places rigid limitations on grazing soil bank reserves.

He pointed out that in some cases limited grazing rights would be permitted on soil bank land, when an emergency is officially declared. Thirteen parishes in the fifth district have been declared an emergency area due to high-water. All parishes except Jackson have been included in the emergency declaration.

The law permits a farmer to graze his own cattle the rest of the season on his soil bank acreage during an emergency if he pays a charge of $6 per acre.

Grazing for a limited period on soil bank land is permitted when involving intermingled stock or under conditions where stock ownership is in doubt. There is no charge for these limited grazing rights.

Soil bank land that has been under reserve for less than three years will not be eligible for emergency grazing under the law and violation will subject the farmer to the loss of soil bank payments.

Passman said he had conferred in Washington with high authority of the agriculture department to determine what grazing rights on soil bank land might be available to flood ravaged district livestock men.

"The law permits a producer the right to graze on his own soil bank land when normal pasturage is under water," Passman said. "Of course certain regulations must be followed even in these cases."

Individuals who may benefit from using bank acreage for grazing due to the present emergency were advised to apply with their ASC office. Special forms are required for filing such application.

Passman also announced that an official survey would be made by the government to determine what assistance is needed to stem the current flood emergency. The U. S. State Agricultural Disaster Committee has adopted a resolution asking assistance for thirteen flood - stricken parishes as follows: emergency credit, ASC assistance, grazing, and feed for livestock.

About Tumbrils And Guillotine

THE WAY OF THE TUMBRILS. By John Elliot. Reynal $3.95.

"A restless interest in the French Revolution," says this English author, sent him back time and again to find its traces in present - day Paris —one excuse is as good as another if only it gets you there. This book, the first on this particular matter in three-quarters of a century, tells of his success.

Probably the most conspicuous and best known revolutionary relict is the great Place de la Concorde, in the 1790s named the Place de la Revolution. You can stand now in the windows of the Ministry of Marine and the Hotel Crillon, on the north, and look over the vast square where Louis XVI, Marie Antoinette, Charlotte Corday and thousands of others perished on the guillotine to the mad cheers of a vengeful populace. You could have stood in the same windows and watched the actual executions.

The tumbrils rattled into the square down the last few hundred feet of the Rue Royale. The old farmers' carts had started from the ancient Conciergerie, crossed the northern branch of the Seine to the rue Saint Honore and followed it past the Palais Royal garden to the last rendezvous with Madame Guillotine.

For Left Bank habitues, the Place de l'Odeon, on the edge of the student quarter, is rich in terrible memories. The statue of Danton stands about where he lived, along the Blvd. St. Germain. A section of the old covered passageway, Cour du Commerce, still exists; Marat was assassinated near here; Desmoulins was a neighbor; farther up, on the rue de Vaugirard, is the old Carmelite convent where more than 100 priests were slaughtered after farcical trials before the unspeakable Maillard.

There are small details in abundance, too — the table on which Robespierre with his shattered jaw passed his last wretched night on earth; the last letter written by the condemned Queen, and Danton's last, too; David's unforgetable drawing of Marie Antoinette in the tumbril.

I have two words of caution: When Elliot says first floor, he means our second, and his book is not very professional. But in compensation, he has all the eagerness and enthusiasm of the amateur.

Two Top Novels About Travel, And Adventure

GIVE ME THE WORLD. By Leila Hadley. Simon & Schuster. $5. AS FAR AS YOU'LL TAKE ME. By Lorna Whishaw. Dodd, Mead. $3.50.

Leila and Lorna in seven-league boots set out boldly on their own. One took the high road, to Alaska, and one the low road, New York all the way around to New York again. Leila, who'd accept nothing less than the world, just about got it, and plenty of people were happy to take Lorna as far as she wanted. But the oddest coincidence of all is that each is married to a geologist, Mrs. Whishaw married all along with Miss Hadley getting her man on the very last page.

Since Mrs. Whishaw's husband was called away repeatedly from their home near Edmonton and sometimes for a month or two, she decided to light out on her own. With a bedding roll, a dish or two, and $36, she left her children with a neighbor woman and thumbed her way clear to Anchorage and Fairbanks and back — cold, brown bears and wolves notwithstanding.

Miss Hadley, married young and divorced and bringing up a son, suddenly felt she could not stand her New York office job a minute longer, successful though she was. So she, with the boy, took a ship across the Pacific and there ran into four young men sailing a 60-foot schooner around the world on something even less than $36. They were very difficult about letting mother and child join them, though she waved her checkbook under their noses, but it will not surprise you, especially after a look at her photo, to learn she wore down their resistance.

These are reassuring and salutary stories. If you read many novels, you sometimes get the idea that man, woman and child think of nothing but sex from morning to night and do nothing but from night to morning. Here are true experiences and they're frank and warm, yes, but wholesome, too. You'll be sorry you didn't go along.

Violinist, Singer Achieve Career-Family Compatibility

By W. G. ROGERS
Associated Press Arts Editor

NEW YORK, (AP) — Lots of famous women singers, when they tour, leave the husbands home to take care of the children.

Lots of famous men violinists, when they tour, leave the wives home ditto.

But when the singer, Irmgard Seefried, is married to the violinist, Wolfgang Schneiderhan, the best they can do is, they both said quickly and impatiently between concerts:

"Hurry home as fast as possible!"

Home is Vienna, where Schneiderhan was born and where Mme. Seefried has been Vienna State Opera star since she made her formal debut 15 years ago. And once back home, she declared with a slap, slap, slap of her hands for each repetition:

"We are paren's, parents, parents!"

Ginger and Spice

She is the emphatic one. She never just says, she declares, exclaims and cries. That is not because her command of English is a little better than her husband's but because that's her nature, Schneiderhan with his glasses, round face, high brow and severe brush of black hair has a touch of the scholar, and a certain reserve. His wife is the ginger and the spice in this combination, zestful, vivacious and irrespressible — anybody would seem solemn beside her constant bouncy exuberance.

So it is a family too often separated three ways — she on concert tours and in opera, he on concert tours and conducting his own small orchestra, and the children at home. The older daughter, Barbara, born in 1950, came here once; the other child, Monika, is only a year old and still very much a stay-at-home

Merry Mix-Up

On a recent seven-weeks tour of Australia, the parents saw each other nine times. But they have just had a joint recital here, half a dozen others are scheduled, and they have commissioned some composers, among them Swiss Frank Martin, to write works specially for her soprano and his violin.

"You have to think a little bit about your life and not work always," , exclaimed Mme. Seefried — who sometimes is called Mme. Schneiderhan, while he, as she pointed out with a burst of laughter, is sometimes called Mr. Seefried. It can make for awkward moments when they are registering at a hotel, she confessed.

What's a day like when they are on tour? "Packing!" according to Mme. Seefried. "All the time packing. We have 10 pieces of luggage because there is diffierent music for each of us, and clothes for all climates, and books to read. What we pay in overweight is almost enough to have a third person fly with us!"

A typical tour day, they said, was two hours of practice in the morning, an interview at a two - hour lunch, TV or radio or records, an hour's rest, a rehearsal and then the concert.

"And the letters to answer!" he complained.

"And who answers them?" she retorted. "Me!" — with a pat - pat on her front. "he's the strong one, he has muscle, he pulls up trees, I answer letters."

Then, recalling a task that practically every touring artist now seems to have to tackle in hotel rooms all over the world, she cried in feigned disgust:

"You should see him wash his nylon shir's! Wuh!"

She imitated him, screwing up her mouth as if to hold a cigarette in the corner of her lips, bending over and doing a leisurely scrub - wait, scrub-wait, scrub-wait. Then she showed how she herself took over the job, scrubbing furiously and making the imaginary suds fly. They both broke into lough laughs, he kissed her hand, she looked at him fondly, they settled down again, she to her coffee and he to his smoke.

A Way That Works

"People are too serious," she protested. "They don't like what they do, they are always tense and excited, they don't take time off — for their children."

"We've found a way to make it all work — music, family, touring," said Schneiderhan confidently, and he meshed his fingers together to show how it was all geared into a unity.

But they are workers. Since I saw them, they have gone to Brussels to open, between them, the world's fair pavilions of three different countries, Mme. Seefried the Austrain and German and Schneiderhan the Swiss.

He began music lessons at three, his wife at five. She is the daughter of a high school teacher, and though she had some stage experience early, in "Hansel and Gretel" at 12 and in an oratorio at 18, she planned to become a doctor. She was already registered at a medical school when she had a chance to sing the role of Eva in Wagner's "Meistersinger" in the city of Aachen with von Karajan conducting. That committed her to a vocal career.

Schneiderhan, who plays a 1704 Stradivarius, teaches master courses at Lucerne and at the Mozarteum in Salzburg, and it is in Lucerne that he conducts the Schneiderhan orchestra. He made his professional debut at five in Vienna.

ARTISTRY AT THE WASH BASIN: Soprano Irmgard Seefried happily tackles a domestic task, doing the alundry in the hotel bathroom. The man, an old hand at quick-dipping a shirt, is her husband, violinist Wolfgang Schneiderhan. While nearly every touring artist performs this chore, few are as willing as the Schneiderhans to have their picture taken while doing it.

What's Happened To High Schools

WHAT'S HAPPENED TO OUR HIGH SCHOOLS? By John F. Latimer. Public Affairs Press. $3.25.

The special committee named to study what was wrong with America's high schools was firm in its conclusions.

"The pupil," it said, "may now go through a secondary school course of a very feeble and scrappy nature — studying a little of many subjects and not much of any one, getting, perhaps, a little information in a variety of fields, but nothing which can be called a thorough training."

This sounds as if it were written yesterday by an observer shocked by Russian technical advances. Yet, a Committee of Ten appointed by the National Education Assn. reached this gloomy conclusion in 1894.

The Committee of Ten's diagnosis, and the cures recommended, seem as valid now as they did 64 years ago. At least that's the viewpoint of Dr. Latimer, professor of classics and assistant dean of faculties at George Washington University.

After four years of studying secondary schools, Latimer's conclusion is even more blunt:

"We, the American people, have failed in our educational responsibilities. We have failed ourselves, but worse than that, we have failed our children."

Latimer thinks we have wound up with a conglomeration which he labels split-level education.

Along with the traditional subjects like English, Latin, mathematics, modern foreign languages, physics and biology, high school students can take—at least in some schools such things as welding, photography, home mechanics, ceramics, aviation, driver education and cosmetology.

"Split-level education," Latimer says, "often results, not from lack of ability, but from under - estimation of a student's capacity, by himself, his parents, or his adviser, or from the very human tendency, to which even students are prone, to follow the path of least resistance."

He notes this suggestion of the Committee of Ten: "All students, to the extent of their ability, no matter what their ultimate goals might be, should be introduced to the five great realms of human thought and experience:

"English language and literature; foreign languages and literature, particularly Latin; algebra and geometry; science . . .; history, including civil government."

Possibly because he was born to be an educator, Latimer is optimistic. He thinks an awakened public, rudely jolted by the Russian scientific alarm clock, will help more youngsters live up to their potentialities.

Yet he warns that in the enthusiasm for science, other basic courses must not be folrgotten.

NOSTALGIC TRIP

Three Penny Star Goes To Berlin

By REINHOLD ENSZ

BERLIN (AP) — The famed Three Penny Opera, now beginning its fourth year on a New York stage, is due to become even more famous shortly.

Lotte Lenya came here recently from New York and helped record the entire musical in its original German. The records are scheduled for worldwide release later this year.

"I have also signed a contract with a German company to make it into a movie," Miss Lenya told an interviewer. "But I don't know when filming will start. Details still have to be worked out."

Weill's Widow

Miss Lenya is the widow of Kurt Weill, the man who wrote the music for the Three Penny Opera and numerous other musicals. He died in 1950 in New York.

For Miss Lenya, her trip back to Berlin was a nostalgic one. She was an Austrian and Weill was a German and they were married in Berlin in 1927.

One year later, the Three Penny Opera had its world premiere in Berlin's Schiffbauerdamm-Theater. Although it depicted the beggars and the underworld of 18th Century London, it was actually a powerful commentary on the social injustice in Germany during the hard years after World War I. In 1931, G. W. Pabst turned it into a German movie, now regarded by connoisseurs as a classic.

But the Nazis didn't regard it as a classic. Weill was Jewish and they banned not only the movie, but all of his music. He and Lotte went into exile, first to Paris and in 1935 to New York City.

After World War II, Weill's music made up for lost time in Germany and his popularity increased in the United States. New York's Town Hall featured a concert version of the Three Penny Opera, wit' Miss Lenya singing the role of Jenny. The performance was so popular that it was repeated four times.

In March 1955, the Three Penny Opera opened at the Theater de Lys, a small 299-seat house on Christopher Street in New York's Greenwich Village. Miss Lenya again sang the role of Jenny. The play has been running ever since, although Miss Lenya has frequently turned her role over to an understudy.

Reflective Mood

Being back in Berlin put Miss Lenya in a reflective frame of mind.

"I remember the first time I came back after the war," she said. "It was in the spring of 1955. There was still so much bomb damage and I was so horrified that I stayed in my hotel all day.

But finally I went to Luisenplatz, where Kurt and I had lived. It was Luisenplatz 3 and it was the only building in the whole area still standing. I went inside and discovered that a music student was living in our old apartment. Kurt's piano was still there. The student was using it."

A Salute To Lasting Love

"My grandparents had been married 27 years when I was nine, and five of their sons were younger than I."

With this sentence, which takes a little getting used to, the girl Sharon, granddaughter of Joseph and Sarah, begins the fiery story of the Baer clan. "This family," complains one of Joseph's daughters. "It's like living in a zoo." In fact it's a combination of zoo and goldfish bowl, for many of these people are most unconventionally uninhibited; and the grand sire himself, goatish, ribald and superbly intense, is followed from the time he wins 14-year-old Sarah till he becomes a great-grandfather.

This is a novel about a great sprawling family life, and about a sort of swashbuckling fireside patriarch who rules his brood by his invincible passions and stirs up a surpassing affection and envy in his descendants. Miss Ariss' frankness — or rather, honest Sharon's — may disturb some readers. It should not. This moving story eloquently salutes the fine full everlasting love of the heart.

Grazing Rights On Soil Bank Acreage Cut

Rep. Otto E. Passman yesterday reminded district livestock producers that laws governing the soil bank program places rigid limitations on grazing soil bank reserves.

He pointed out that in some cases limited grazing rights would be permitted on soil bank land, when an emergency is officially declared. Thirteen parishes in the fifth district have been declared an emergency area due to high-water. All parishes except Jackson have been included in the emergency declaration.

The law permits a farmer to graze his own cattle the rest of the season on his soil bank acreage during an emergency if he pays a charge of $6 per acre.

Grazing for a limited period on soil bank land is permitted when involving intermingled stock or under conditions where stock ownership is in doubt. There is no charge for these limited grazing rights.

Soil bank land that has been under reserve for less than three years will not be eligible for emergency grazing under the law and violation will subject the farmer to the loss of soil bank payments.

Passman said he had conferred in Washington with high authority of the agriculture department to determine what grazing rights on soil bank land might be available to flood ravaged district livestock men.

"The law permits a producer the right to graze on his own soil bank land when normal pasturage is under water," Passman said. "Of course certain regulations must be followed even in these cases."

Individuals who may benefit from using bank acreage for grazing due to the present emergency were advised to apply with their ASC office. Special forms are required for filing such application.

Passman also announced that an official survey would be made by the government to determine what assistance is needed to stem the current flood emergency. The U. S. State Agricultural Disaster Committee has adopted a resolution asking assistance for thirteen flood - stricken parishes as follows: emergency credit, ASC assistance, grazing, and feed for livestock.

About Tumbrils And Guillotine

THE WAY OF THE TUMBRILS. By John Elliot. Reynal $3.95.

"A restless interest in the French Revolution," says this English author, sent him back time and again to find its traces in present - day Paris —one excuse is as good as another if only it gets you there. This book, the first on this particular matter in three-quarters of a century, tells of his success.

Probably the most conspicuous and best known revolutionary relict is the great Place de la Concorde, in the 1790s named the Place de la Revolution. You can stand now in the windows of the Ministry of Marine and the Hotel Crillon, on the north, and look over the vast square where Louis XVI, Marie Antoinette, Charlotte Corday and thousands of others perished on the guillotine to the mad cheers of a vengeful populace. You could have stood in the same windows and watched the actual executions.

The tumbrils rattled into the square down the last few hundred feet of the Rue Royale. The old farmers' carts had started from the ancient Conciergerie, crossed the northern branch of the Seine to the rue Saint Honore and followed it past the Palais Royal garden to the last rendezvous with Madame Guillotine.

For Left Bank habitues, the Place de l'Odeon, on the edge of the student quarter, is rich in terrible memories. The statue of Danton stands about where he lived, along the Blvd. St. Germain. A section of the old covered passageway, Cour du Commerce, still exists; Marat was assassinated near here; Desmoulins was a neighbor; farther up, on the rue de Vaugirard, is the old Carmelite convent where more than 100 priests were slaughtered after farcical trials before the unspeakable Maillard.

There are small details in abundance, too — the table on which Robespierre with his shattered jaw passed his last wretched night on earth; the last letter written by the condemned Queen, and Danton's last, too; David's unforgetable drawing of Marie Antoinette in the tumbril.

I have two words of caution: When Elliot says first floor, he means our second, and his book is not very professional. But in compensation, he has all the eagerness and enthusiasm of the amateur.

Two Top Novels About Travel, And Adventure

GIVE ME THE WORLD. By Leila Hadley. Simon & Schuster. $5. AS FAR AS YOU'LL TAKE ME. By Lorna Whishaw. Dodd, Mead. $3.50.

Leila and Lorna in seven-league boots set out boldly on their own. One took the high road, to Alaska, and one the low road, New York all the way around to New York again. Leila, who'd accept nothing less than the world, just about got it, and plenty of people were happy to take Lorna as far as she wanted. But the oddest coincidence of all is that each is married to a geologist, Mrs. Whishaw married all along with Miss Hadley getting her man on the very last page.

Since Mrs. Whishaw's husband was called away repeatedly from their home near Edmonton and sometimes for a month or two, she decided to light out on her own. With a bedding roll, a dish or two, and $36, she left her children with a neighbor woman and thumbed her way clear to Anchorage and Fairbanks and back — cold, brown bears and wolves notwithstanding.

Miss Hadley, married young and divorced and bringing up a son, suddenly felt she could not stand her New York office job a minute longer, successful though she was. So she, with the boy, took a ship across the Pacific and there ran into four young men sailing a 60-foot schooner around the world on something even less than $36. They were very difficult about letting mother and child join them, though she waved her checkbook under their noses, but it will not surprise you, especially after a look at her photo, to learn she wore down their resistance.

These are reassuring and salutary stories. If you read many novels, you sometimes get the idea that man, woman and and child think of nothing but sex from morning to night and do nothing but from night to morning. Here are true experiences and they're frank and warm, yes, but wholesome, too. You'll be sorry you didn't go along.

OUTDOOR ACTION

'Saddle The Wind' At Jim Theatre

Spectacular scenic backgrounds in CinemaScope and color and outdoor action mark "Saddle the Wind" the new M-G-M drama starring Robert Taylor, Julie London and John Cassavetes. The movie is presently showing at the Jim Theatre.

Co-starring in the motion picture are Donald Crisp and Charles McGraw.

The picture's exteriors were filmed at 10,000 - foot level in the Sangre de Cristo Range of the Colorado Rockies and at Rosita, once a roaring Colorado silver mining town of the 1870's, which was partially restored by studio workers for sequences in "Saddle the Wind." The studio location trek entailed 14 trucks, plus a camera car, sound truck, a 20,000-ton electric generator and three horse - trailers.

The story tells of two brothers who come into conflict on two scores: first, when the older brother (Robert Taylor) attempts to suppress the trigger - happy violence of John Cassavetes in running off squatters on their cattle ranch; second, when both brothers fall in love with dance - hall girl Julie London.

Robert Taylor comes to "Saddle the Wind" from his recent role in "Tip on a Dead Jockey." Versatile Julie London has scored as a recording star, night club favorite and film actress. John Cassavetes, one of the screen's most arresting new stars, received critical kudos for his work in "Crime in the Streets" and "Edge of the City." Veteran Donald Crisp completes his 50th year in show business with his role in "Saddle the Wind." Charles McGraw's recent pictures are "The Bridges at Toko-Ri" and "Joe Butterfly."

Man Accused In A Threat Is Captured

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The FBI early yesterday captured a man it accused of threatening to dynamite a passenger train in a half-million-dollar extortion plot.

FBI Special Agent D. K. Brown said the extortion attempt was directed against the Southern Pacific Co.

Agents arrested Ira Paul Loux, 35, a dye finisher of Compton, Calif., as he crawled through weeds near raiload tacks 19 miles east of Los Angeles.

Brown said a package had been thrown from the tarin upon a signal from a flashing light as demanded in an extortion letter.

The letter, Brown said, was received by J. H. Pruitt Jr., Los Angeles passenger traffic and public relations manager of Southern Pacific.

Brown said the letter writer threatened to dynamite Southern Pacific's streamliner Sunset Limited No. 2 unless $500,000 in $20 bills was paid.

The letter directed that a box of money be placed in a mail bag and thrown from the Sunset Limited by a member of the crew when he saw a flashing light at a designated point Friday night.

Loux is married and the father of two children.

FRAULEIN — Dana Wynter is shown in a scene from "Fraulein" with Mel Ferrer. The film is in CinemaScope and Color and opens today at the Paramount. Also in the case is Dolores Michaels. The film is based on a book of the same name that deals with the behavior patterns in Germany during wartime.

Bangkok Draws Many Visitors

By MURRAY FROMSON

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Anything can happen among Bangkok's hundreds of green-topped canals and golden-spired Buddhist temples.

In this strangely exotic land of 22 million, including 250,000 monks, a military dictatorship has reigned almost continuously for 25 years with only a few face changes, primarily because it has been responsive to public opinion.

Despite the generally high cost of living, Thailand continues to be a favorite stop for foreigners. Almost 75,000 people visited Bangkok last year. Airline and travel agents expect the influx to double or triple with the introduction of jet commercial airliners in 1960.

The Thais so far have done little to prepare for the anticipated increase of visitors. There are only about half a dozen adequate hotels and they are usually full.

Bangkok is also a big center for diplomatic activity. Great Britain, the United States, the Soviet Union, France and Japan maintain large embassies here. Bangkok is the regional Asian headquarters for many U.N. organizations.

In Chinatown, gold shops do a thriving business in earrings, rings and bracelets, primarily because the Thais and Chinese still believe it is wiser to put their savings in gold than in banks.

Buying in Bangkok goes hand-in-hand with music appreciation. The Thais and Chinese believe there is nothing like good, loud music to lure the customers into their shops.

If it's precious stones you're looking for, you may have to wade through the first movement of Tchaikovsky's piano concerto blaring from the shop front. But if you want ivory, leather goods manufactured from crocodile or snake skin, bronze or sterling, you may have to fight off a couple of choruses of "Get my Blue Suede Shoes."

Some slickly combed lad may sidle up and offer to be your guide for the day. More than likely he will want to introduce you to the brassy cabarets, the smoky opium dens—or perhaps if you haven't seen an unexpurgated copy of "Lady Chatterly's Lover" lately.

Is Woman's Love Worth $490,000?

CHICAGO (AP) — An attorney's plea to a woman-dominated jury that "you may wonder if any woman's love is worth $490,000" helped win the case Friday for his client, a Chicago physician.

A Circuit Court panel deliberated less than an hour, and awarded the $490,000 to Dr. Lester Odell, 47. Odell had sued Dr. Emerson McVey, 46, a life-long friend and best man at his wedding, for alienation of his wife's affections.

Court observers called the award by the panel of seven women and five men the highest ever returned by an Illinois jury in such a case.

"You may not think a woman's love is worth $490,000, but it genuinely was to the doctor. This other man (McVey) was his best friend . . . and betrayed him," attorney Sol Friedman said.

"I ask you members of the jury to serve notice to the world that the commandment, 'Thou Shalt not Covet Thy Neighbor's Wife,' is a commandment to be kept."

Dr. McVey, now an obstetrician residing in Reno, Nev., entered no defense in the case. He did not appear in court Friday.

Odell testified McVey frequently visited him and his wife, Elaine, 30, and sometimes took her to plush night spots.

Friedman said a daughter was born to Mrs. Odell April 5 and that a blood test showed Odell was not the father.

McVey was divorced from his wife in 1956. Odell's wife has filed a divorce suit charging cruelty and desertion. Odell, in a cross bill, charges her with adultery and names McVey as correspondent.

Sen. Rainach Blasts Negro Labor Head

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Sen. W. M. Rainach said today continuation of an NAACP official as vice president of the state labor council would destroy public confidence in unions.

The Homer legislator, chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation, attacked state AFL-CIO President Victor Bussie for his support of E. A. Bryant, Shreveport NAACP chapter president.

In a statement, Rainach said, "four weeks have passed since the NAACP president's election to high office in the AFL-CIO in Louisiana and Bussie and his clique still stubbornly maintain Bryant in office. . . .

"If Bussie is permitted to continue his policy and succeed, he will have undermined the whole state resistance to integrated schools.

"If he continues and fails, he will have maintained segregation, but he will have destroyed much of the public confidence that good union members have built up in unionism over the years," he concluded.

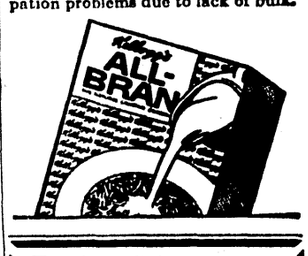

The NAACP has led the legal attack against racial segregation in Louisiana.

In 1954, Rainach was Senate floor leader for enactment of the right to work law and led the fight in 1956 against repeal of the law banning compulsory labor union membership.

'Saddle The Wind' At Jim Theatre

Spectacular scenic backgrounds in CinemaScope and color and outdoor action mark "Saddle the Wind" the new M-G-M drama starring Robert Taylor, Julie London and John Cassavetes. The movie is presently showing at the Jim Theatre.

Co-starring in the motion picture are Donald Crisp and Charles McGraw.

The picture's exteriors were filmed at 10,000 - foot level in the Sangre de Cristo Range of the Colorado Rockies and at Rosita, once a roaring Colorado silver mining town of the 1870's, which was partially restored by studio workers for sequences in "Saddle the Wind." The studio location trek entailed 14 trucks, plus a camera car, sound truck, a 20,000-ton electric generator and three horse - trailers.

The story tells of two brothers who come into conflict on two scores: first, when the older brother (Robert Taylor) attempts to suppress the trigger - happy violence of John Cassavetes in running off squatters on their cattle ranch; second, when both brothers fall in love with dance - hall girl Julie London.

Robert Taylor comes to "Saddle the Wind" from his recent role in "Tip on a Dead Jockey." Versatile Julie London has scored as a recording star, night club favorite and film actress. John Cassavetes, one of the screen's most arresting new stars, received critical kudos for his work in "Crime in the Streets" and "Edge of the City." Veteran Donald Crisp completes his 50th year in show business with his role in "Saddle the Wind." Charles McGraw's recent pictures are "The Bridges at Toko-Ri" and "Joe Butterfly."

SADDLE THE WIND — Robert Taylor, angered at the trouble-making activities of his trigger-happy younger brother, John Cassavetes, snatches the six-shooter from his hand in "Saddle The Wind," now showing at the Jim Theatre. The M-G-M outdoor action-drama also stars Julie London.

Good Samaritan Squadron Ready To Go Any Time

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Soft - spoken Maj. John Henry Mork put it simply: "Anywhere professional rescue assistance is needed, we go."

He made it sound easy. But "anywhere" could mean the tropics or the arctic; the Arizona desert or the turbulent Pacific halfway to Hawaii.

And Maj. Mork's flying "Good Samaritans" are not given to tarrying by the wayside. When they get a call for help — night or day — they're airborne within 15 minutes.

These skilled professionals at rescue, and their counterparts in other air rescue squadrons in the United States and abroad, are as ready to save civilian lives as military. Maj. Mork's 41st Air Rescue Squadron covers a tremendous area including 11 Western states and a vast expanse of the Pacific from its home at Hamilton Air Force Base north of San Francisco.

The 41st has to its credit paramedic jumps into inaccessible mountain areas to bring quick assistance to the sick or injured, food and medical supply drops to stranded flood victims, helicopter rescues and searches for lost or missing persons.

Active Crews

The squadron flies about four rescue missions every three days, a large percentage of them intercepts of planes in trouble. Sometimes these "intercepts" mean meeting a limping plane near the distant "point of no return" halfway to Hawaii and tailing it into a safe landing.

Two other squadrons operating from U. S. airbases—the 48th at Eglin in Florida and the 46th at Otis in Massachusetts — also cover tremendous land and ocean areas.

To handle its life - savings assignments, the 41st employs five versatile Albatross SA16B triphibians (capable of operating on land, water or snow) plus three big Sikorsky helicopters. The SA-16B's have a range of 3,000 miles and can stay in the air 18½ hours without refueling.

Life rafts, snowshoes, skis, mosquito nets, canned water, food, compact radios, medical supplies, heavily padded "tree suits" for dangerous parachute jumps in timber or rugged terrain, desalting kits, clothing, almost any kind of emergency gear —name it, and the rescue squadrons have it packed and ready to go.

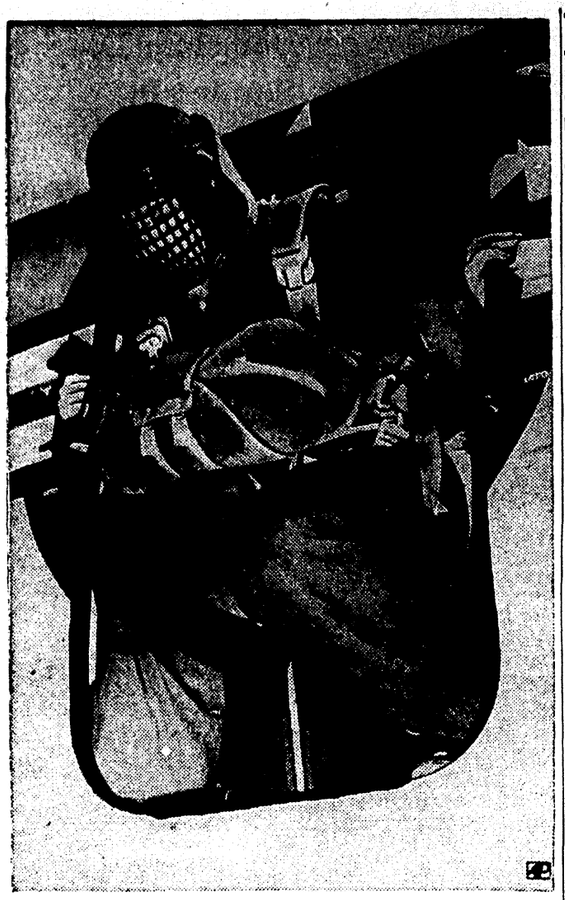

"In a disaster situation where the entire squadron would be required to shift base quickly, even overseas, we are so mobile that the whole outfit could be airborne in less than 14 hours," Maj. Mork says.

This high degree of efficiency has earned the squadron a distinguished unit citation for its life saving feats during the 1955 Feather River flood disaster at Yuba City, Calif., and numerous commendations.

Rescue missions are assigned by the Air Force's search and rescue coordination centers, which have direct telephone contact with all military bases, major civilian air terminals and can reach almost any civilian agency in a matter of minutes.

In a plane crash, if casualties can be reached by plane or helicopter, aid is rushed directly, for speed is vital in saving lives. If helicopters can't reach the site, the squadron's paramedic teams —medically trained parachutists aptly described as "past masters of improvision" — are dropped.

The paramedics find their reward in praise from doctors who, after they get an injured person safely hospitalized, often tell them: "If you hadn't reached him, he surely would have died."

DRESSED TO LIVE: Paramedic Sgt. Carl Buehler of the 41st Air Rescue Squadron wears a tree jump suit with special gear to protect face and neck on jumps into rough terrain.

Paper Says Sub Attacked Was American

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) —A Communist newspaper Saturday claimed the submarine attacked Wednesday by the Argentine navy was either American or British.

Argentine navy sources have indicated the submarine most likely was Russian. They described it as a high speed craft. President Arturo Frondizi said it was either sunk or damaged.

La Hora, chief organ of the Argentine Communist party, said it couldn't have been Russian.

The paper gave no details to substantiate its claim that the submarine was American or British.

U.S., British and Soviet embassies all have insisted the submarine was not theirs.

The only Latin-American countries with submarines are Peru, Brazil, Argentina and Chile. Chile's subs are not in operating condition and the only active one of Argentina's three is in dry dock.

Tito Celebrates 66th Birthday

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — President Tito celebrates his 66th birthday Sunday and it is not likely the Kremlin will be whipping up any fancy cakes.

As a matter of fact, there was a Communist-bloc summit meeting going on all week in Moscow, in all probability deciding what should be done about Tito's insistence on independence from the Kremlin.

Tito gave no indication he was worried about what went on in Moscow. Smiling and in high spirits he received many delegations of well-wishers. Hundreds of birthday messages poured in.

Contract Signed For Motor Hotel

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Pelican State Hotels Corp. Saturday signed a contract with Blount Brothers Construction of Montgomery, Ala., for the first phase of a 5 million dollar motor hotel.

Fontainebleau Motor Hotel will be built on the site of the former Pecan Stadium. The New Orleans Pelicans moved out last year after the stadium was sold. They are playing in City Park Stadium.

Warren A. Rose, president of Pelican State Hotels, said the first phase of the construction calls for 200 of the expected 400 rooms.

The short cupped wings of the pheasant allow for a very fast take-off but not for sustained flight.

Impressive Ceremony Unites Miss Simmons And Charles Puckett

The First Baptist Church was the scene of an impressive ceremony, which united in marriage Miss Patricia Ann Simmons and Charles Gilbert Puckett. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Simmons and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Puckett. The vows were repeated before an altar banked with white gladioli, southern smilax, flanked by tree ferns and twin branched candelabra burning slender white tapers. The Rev. James T. Horton officiated at the double ring ceremony.

A program of traditional nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Dorothy Zeigler, organist, and Mrs. Dorman Clayton, soloist. Among the selections were "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in a gown of tulle with wide embroidered chantilly lace panels featured on the wide skirt, which fell into a chapel train. Her shoulder length veil of illusion was held by a tiara of seed pearls. She wore a single strand of pearls with tiny matching earrings. The bridal bouquet of tube roses and stephanotis encircling a white orchid was mounted on a white prayer book.

Miss Sue Simmons of Monticello, Miss., attended the bride as maid of honor. Her waltz - length gown was of pale pink embroidered organdy, fashioned with a matching cummerbund. Her headpiece was of pink carnations and she carried a fan bouquet of matching carnations. Miss Laura Louise Bowles and Miss Jane Puckett, sister to the groom, were the maids. They wore gowns identical to that of the maid of honor with deeper hued carnations.

Mr. Puckett served his son as best man with Sam McGough, Joe Funderburk, Gayle English and Lytle Matkins as ushers.

Mrs. Simmons chose for her daughter's wedding a pink lace with a matching hat enhanced with pastel flowers. Her accessories were white and she wore a white carnation corsage.

Mrs. Puckett was attired in beige lace with a flowered hat. Her accessories were also white with a corsage identical to the bride's mother.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride's parents. The reception rooms of the home were graced with lovely white gladioli and standing fern. The bride's table, overlaid with a white linen cut work cloth, was also centered with white gladioli. Placed at one end of the table was the crystal punch service with the large three - tiered wedding confection at the opposite end.

Included in the houseparty were Mrs. Morgan Drew, Mrs. Auddie Readmon, Mrs. Mattie Lou Roper, Mrs. Eddie Bowles, Mrs. Marvin Simmons, Mrs. J. D. Wink, and Mrs. Sam McGough. Tea girls were Mesdames Patsy Garnto, Rita Prophit, and Billye Faye Counts. Mrs. E. B. Todd presided in the gift room.

The bride chose for travel a white sheath with matching hat and accessories. She wore the orchid from her bridal corsage. The young couple traveled to Pensacola, Florida for their wedding trip and are now at home in Monroe.

Physician Hits Food Fadism

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Are you a victim of "food fadism?"

"Food fads are potentially dangerous," Dr. Lucia said, "because they may lead to nutritional disturbances which pave the way to loss of energy and disease."

The doctor said that those most likely to become victims of "food fadism" are the overweight chronically ill psychoneurotics, and persons who have vague signs of "real or feigned" illness.

He is opposed to the growing consumption of calorie-less foods.

"We are the only country in the world fighting obesity — most others are fighting starvation," said Dr. Lucia. "We eat indiscriminately, often impelled by psychic disorders, and then buy medicines to decrease the appetite and take up the slack with bulky calorieless foods."

This doesn't solve any problems.

Lucia suggested that all professional personnel connected with health education — including school teachers, social workers, nurses, dentists and pharmacists —get a sound training in the basic principles of human nutrition and dietetics.

Physician Hits Food Fadism

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Are you a victim of "food fadism?"

"Food fads are potentially dangerous," Dr. Lucia said, "because they may lead to nutritional disturbances which pave the way to loss of energy and disease."

The doctor said that those most likely to become victims of "food fadism" are the overweight chronically ill psychoneurotics, and persons who have vague signs of "real or feigned" illness.

He is opposed to the growing consumption of calorie-less foods.

"We are the only country in the world fighting obesity — most others are fighting starvation," said Dr. Lucia. "We eat indiscriminately, often impelled by psychic disorders, and then buy medicines to decrease the appetite and take up the slack with bulky calorieless foods."

This doesn't solve any problems.

Lucia suggested that all professional personnel connected with health education — including school teachers, social workers, nurses, dentists and pharmacists —get a sound training in the basic principles of human nutrition and dietetics.

The social pace is gathering momentum, what with all the graduation parties and the comings and goings of late spring travellers.

Leaving Saturday on the trip of a lifetime will be KATHERINE HILBURN. She is flying to Frankfurt, Germany, where she will be the guest of M-SGT. and MRS. S. W. CHRISTIANSEN and children, KAREN, HEIDE, and WILL. Mrs. Christiansen will be remembered as Nell Hilburn, formerly of Monroe. The Christiansens have spent nine years in Europe since World War II. The family will make a number of trips to places of interest during the two months that Katherine will be there — first on the schedule is the Brussels Fair.

Guests in the M. H. COLLET home on Deborah drive last week end were DR. and MRS. RUSSELL G. MEANS of Columbus, Ohio, and MRS. ELOISE DOIRTY of Toledo, Ohio . . . Arriving this Friday for a visit with the Collets was MRS. GEORGE F. GOURLEY of Steubenville, Ohio.

KURL and EARL STEVENSON have been visiting their parents, the W. C. STEVENSONS. Kurl left by plane last Sunday to return to his home in Charlotte, N. C. Earl, who now lives in Columbus, Ohio, left Thursday for London, England, on government business for an undetermined interval.

The Nelson Abels and their three children, NELS, HUGHES, and DIXON, left this week end for a month's trip along the West Coast, with stopovers in Washington state and British Columbia. Motoring out with them is Bennie's mother, MRS. LUCIUS HUGHES, who will fly home about the middle of June.

As part of their graduation celebration, four West Monroe High seniors went to New Orleans last week end, returning Wednesday. PAT DAVIS, SONDRA ENETE, CAMILLE CAMP, and LINDA STEELE made the trip, accompanied by Pat's parents, the F. B. DAVISES, SR.

DR. and MRS. H. L. JOHNS, former Monroyans, are guests of the ROY JOHNS this week end. Dr. Johns is en route to the Louisiana - Arkansas Methodist conference in Shreveport next week.

Making her first trip by air was MRS. J. R. WOOTEN, who flew to Aurora, Ohio this week for a visit with her daughter and family, the M. C. VAUGHANS.

With graduation only days away, parties are scheduled daily for the young people. . . . Last Saturday ANN LANDRY, FRANCES JONES, and SUE GROWER hosted a luncheon at the Holiday Inn. A black and gold fan, carrying out the Neville colors, was used with day lilies in a straw hat for the centerpiece. Day lilies were also used on the two side tables, and tiny black and gold fans were the placecards. Twenty-six girls enjoyed the meal at noon, with swimming later in the day.

Twenty prospective Neville graduates hosted a dance at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club last Friday night. Sugar Boy played for what is said to be the bset dance held hereabouts in years. Giving the party were: DUNCAN BUIE, CAROLYN CUMMINGS, GERALD DEAN, LINDA EBY, LOUISE GRAY, TOMMY GRANT, BETTY HEMPHILL, BISH JOHNSON, JR., JOHN JORDAN, JACKIE MASUR, ANN M'DONALD, TRAVIS OLIVER III, SALLY RYAN, MARY LYN SCOGIN, JIMMY SPARKS, WARREN TAYLOR, JOYCE TURPIN, RON and DON UPDEGRAF, and SUSAN WILSON.

Seniors at West Monroe High were honored Friday night with a banquet in the school cafeteria. Bouquets of mixed spring flowers were used the length of the tables, but the prettiest things in sight were the girls in their summer dresses . . . CHERRY CHAPMAN's white silk organza featured white lace trimming the square neckline and forming the short cap sleeves. Her flowers were blue split carnations . . . White snowflakes were sprinkled over BRENDA BAYLES' pink nylon organdy, with a solid pink bertha around the shoulders . . . DIANA COBB's black silk organza was fashioned with a full swirling skirt. The close fitting bodice was embroidered with white beaded flowers . . . With her white lace sheath, LANA BERLIN wore a matching jacket, white lace shoes and bag, and blue carnations . . . NANCY CALHOUN's blue floral chiffon was made with a fitted bodice and a balloon skirt. Her shoes were dyed - to-match imported linen . . . CAMILLE CAMP wore embroidered-in-red white organdy over a layer of red organdy with a red and white corsage . . . Valedictorian THEDA PETTIGREW chose black and white silk organza with a modified halter neckline accented by a large bow of the same material, and a very-very full skirt. She wore black patent accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

CLYDE HOLLOWAY and ALICE SILVERSTEIN carried out a pink and white theme when they honored JACKIE MASUR with a conversational hour on Monday. Pink daisies and white stock centered the pink - covered table. Pink and green ribbon sandwiches were served, along with patty shells filled with tuna salad, cookies, and other finger food.

KING TROUSDALE and ANN M'DONALD were guests of honor at a conversational hour hosted by KITTY OLIVER and her daughter SALLIE on Tuesday. Mixed bouquets were used throughout the house, while on the dining table were white carnations in a silver basket. Chicken salad sandwiches, cheese straws, and hot doughnuts were served to about thirty guests.

Wednesday afternoon DOTTIE DAWSON was honoree at a patio party given by PEARL BEASLEY at her home on Lakeshore Drive. Supper of hot dogs, baked beans, cole slaw, and relishes was served to sixty young people.

Mothers of PEGGY PIERCE, ANN YOUNGBLOOD, DONNA M'DONALD, MALISE MAPP, and BARBARA MITTELL invited forty girls to luncheon at the Highland Park country club on Thursday. Two mortarboards filled with gold diplomas and yellow day lilies were used as a centerpiece, and gold ivy ran the length of the table. Each place was marked with a pipecleaner figurine dressed in cap and gown and an individual candy dish shaped like a tiny book. Following the meal, the girls read the gold diplomas, which made a prophecy for each guest. Later the group went swimming.

Following class day activities at Neville Friday, the senior girls were invited to a conversational hour hosted by ANN and BETTY STONE. Guest of honor was BETTY HEMPHILL, looking lovely in a spring green gingham. Magnolias and oleanders were used for decorations. Straw and wicker serving pieces were used to pass assorted sandwiches, kisses, and pecan crisps.

KING TROUSDALE is being honored with a house party on Lake St. John this week end. Sixteen boys and girls, members of the Neville senior class, are enjoying a week end of such water sports as are permitted by the flood situation.

Out of towners who are here for the Cerebral Palsy drive were entertained Friday afternoon and night with a patio party at the home of RUBY and BOBBY PAPPAS on Loop road. Guests of honor were CORINNE CALVET, JEFFRY STONE, the WARREN HULLS, MYRNA FOX, PAT CONWAY, and JACKIE SUZANNE. The dining table which was set up in the play room, was centered with Bird of Paradise flowers used with grapes of the same color. Conversation piece was the large lobster served whole on a decorated platter. In the chafing dish was lobster in a hot wine sauce. Fifty guests attended.

Memorial Day is Friday, and here are two verses of "I Have A Rendezvous with Death," written by Alan Seeger shortly before he was killed in action in World War I.

I have a rendezvous with Death
At some disputed barricade
When spring comes round with rustling shade
And apple blossoms fill the air.
I have a rendezvous with Death
When Spring brings back blue days and fair.
God knows 'twere better to be deep
Pillowed in silk and scented down,
Where love throbs out in blissful sleep,
Pulse nigh to pulse, and breath to breath,
Where hushed awakenings are dear . . .
But I've a rendezvous with Death
At midnight in some flaming town
When spring trips north again this year,
And I to my pledged word am true,
I shall not fail that rendezvous.

Study Shows Girls Marrying Much Younger

NEW YORK — Brides generally are younger today, but they take life more seriously.

That's the conclusion of a study made.

Today's typical bride is about 20 years old, and her bridegroom 23. In spite of their youth, more couples now start life insurance programs before marriage, the survey reported. Young married couples with children are insurance companies' best customers.

The social pace is gathering momentum, what with all the graduation parties and the comings and goings of late spring travellers.

Leaving Saturday on the trip of a lifetime will be KATHERINE HILBURN. She is flying to Frankfurt, Germany, where she will be the guest of M-SGT. and MRS. S. W. CHRISTIANSEN and children, KAREN, HEIDE, and WILL. Mrs. Christiansen will be remembered as Nell Hilburn, formerly of Monroe. The Christiansens have spent nine years in Europe since World War II. The family will make a number of trips to places of interest during the two months that Katherine will be there — first on the schedule is the Brussels Fair.

Guests in the M. H. COLLET home on Deborah drive last week end were DR. and MRS. RUSSELL G. MEANS of Columbus, Ohio, and MRS. ELOISE DOIRTY of Toledo, Ohio . . . Arriving this Friday for a visit with the Collets was MRS. GEORGE F. GOURLEY of Steubenville, Ohio.

KURL and EARL STEVENSON have been visiting their parents, the W. C. STEVENSONS. Kurl left by plane last Sunday to return to his home in Charlotte, N. C. Earl, who now lives in Columbus, Ohio, left Thursday for London, England, on government business for an undetermined interval.

The Nelson Abels and their three children, NELS, HUGHES, and DIXON, left this week end for a month's trip along the West Coast, with stopovers in Washington state and British Columbia. Motoring out with them is Bennie's mother, MRS. LUCIUS HUGHES, who will fly home about the middle of June.

As part of their graduation celebration, four West Monroe High seniors went to New Orleans last week end, returning Wednesday. PAT DAVIS, SONDRA ENETE, CAMILLE CAMP, and LINDA STEELE made the trip, accompanied by Pat's parents, the F. B. DAVISES, SR.

DR. and MRS. H. L. JOHNS, former Monroyans, are guests of the ROY JOHNS this week end. Dr. Johns is en route to the Louisiana - Arkansas Methodist conference in Shreveport next week.

Making her first trip by air was MRS. J. R. WOOTEN, who flew to Aurora, Ohio this week for a visit with her daughter and family, the M. C. VAUGHANS.

With graduation only days away, parties are scheduled daily for the young people. . . . Last Saturday ANN LANDRY, FRANCES JONES, and SUE GROWER hosted a luncheon at the Holiday Inn. A black and gold fan, carrying out the Neville colors, was used with day lilies in a straw hat for the centerpiece. Day lilies were also used on the two side tables, and tiny black and gold fans were the placecards. Twenty-six girls enjoyed the meal at noon, with swimming later in the day.

Twenty prospective Neville graduates hosted a dance at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club last Friday night. Sugar Boy played for what is said to be the bset dance held hereabouts in years. Giving the party were: DUNCAN BUIE, CAROLYN CUMMINGS, GERALD DEAN, LINDA EBY, LOUISE GRAY, TOMMY GRANT, BETTY HEMPHILL, BISH JOHNSON, JR., JOHN JORDAN, JACKIE MASUR, ANN M'DONALD, TRAVIS OLIVER III, SALLY RYAN, MARY LYN SCOGIN, JIMMY SPARKS, WARREN TAYLOR, JOYCE TURPIN, RON and DON UPDEGRAF, and SUSAN WILSON.

Seniors at West Monroe High were honored Friday night with a banquet in the school cafeteria. Bouquets of mixed spring flowers were used the length of the tables, but the prettiest things in sight were the girls in their summer dresses . . . CHERRY CHAPMAN's white silk organza featured white lace trimming the square neckline and forming the short cap sleeves. Her flowers were blue split carnations . . . White snowflakes were sprinkled over BRENDA BAYLES' pink nylon organdy, with a solid pink bertha around the shoulders . . . DIANA COBB's black silk organza was fashioned with a full swirling skirt. The close fitting bodice was embroidered with white beaded flowers . . . With her white lace sheath, LANA BERLIN wore a matching jacket, white lace shoes and bag, and blue carnations . . . NANCY CALHOUN's blue floral chiffon was made with a fitted bodice and a balloon skirt. Her shoes were dyed - to-match imported linen . . . CAMILLE CAMP wore embroidered-in-red white organdy over a layer of red organdy with a red and white corsage . . . Valedictorian THEDA PETTIGREW chose black and white silk organza with a modified halter neckline accented by a large bow of the same material, and a very-very full skirt. She wore black patent accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

CLYDE HOLLOWAY and ALICE SILVERSTEIN carried out a pink and white theme when they honored JACKIE MASUR with a conversational hour on Monday. Pink daisies and white stock centered the pink - covered table. Pink and green ribbon sandwiches were served, along with patty shells filled with tuna salad, cookies, and other finger food.

KING TROUSDALE and ANN M'DONALD were guests of honor at a conversational hour hosted by KITTY OLIVER and her daughter SALLIE on Tuesday. Mixed bouquets were used throughout the house, while on the dining table were white carnations in a silver basket. Chicken salad sandwiches, cheese straws, and hot doughnuts were served to about thirty guests.

Wednesday afternoon DOTTIE DAWSON was honoree at a patio party given by PEARL BEASLEY at her home on Lakeshore Drive. Supper of hot dogs, baked beans, cole slaw, and relishes was served to sixty young people.

Mothers of PEGGY PIERCE, ANN YOUNGBLOOD, DONNA M'DONALD, MALISE MAPP, and BARBARA MITTELL invited forty girls to luncheon at the Highland Park country club on Thursday. Two mortarboards filled with gold diplomas and yellow day lilies were used as a centerpiece, and gold ivy ran the length of the table. Each place was marked with a pipecleaner figurine dressed in cap and gown and an individual candy dish shaped like a tiny book. Following the meal, the girls read the gold diplomas, which made a prophecy for each guest. Later the group went swimming.

Following class day activities at Neville Friday, the senior girls were invited to a conversational hour hosted by ANN and BETTY STONE. Guest of honor was BETTY HEMPHILL, looking lovely in a spring green gingham. Magnolias and oleanders were used for decorations. Straw and wicker serving pieces were used to pass assorted sandwiches, kisses, and pecan crisps.

KING TROUSDALE is being honored with a house party on Lake St. John this week end. Sixteen boys and girls, members of the Neville senior class, are enjoying a week end of such water sports as are permitted by the flood situation.

Out of towners who are here for the Cerebral Palsy drive were entertained Friday afternoon and night with a patio party at the home of RUBY and BOBBY PAPPAS on Loop road. Guests of honor were CORINNE CALVET, JEFFRY STONE, the WARREN HULLS, MYRNA FOX, PAT CONWAY, and JACKIE SUZANNE. The buffet supper was made up of continental food, including such specialties as Swedish meatballs, Turkish miniature shish kabob, and French pastries. About sixty attended.

The IVY JORDANS and the ED MARCHMANS honored the ED SEYMOURS, JR., with a patio party at the Jordan home Saturday night. Anna Claire wore white mousseline de soie exquisitely embroidered with turquoise beads. . . Guests enjoyed the garden and the patio, where hurricane lamps were used with arrangements of white calladium and magnolias. . . . The dining table which was set up in the play room, was centered with Bird of Paradise flowers used with grapes of the same color. Conversation piece was the large lobster served whole on a decorated platter. In the chafing dish was lobster in a hot wine sauce. Fifty guests attended.

Thirty guests went skating on MARK THARPE's seventh birthday Saturday. Favors consisting of miniature toy dogs and sacks of penny candy were given to each child.

Memorial Day is Friday, and here are two verses of "I Have A Rendezvous with Death," written by Alan Seeger shortly before he was killed in action in World War I.

I have a rendezvous with Death
At some disputed barricade
When spring comes round with rustling shade
And apple blossoms fill the air,
I have a rendezvous with Death
When Spring brings back blue days and fair.
God knows 'twere better to be deep
Pillowed in silk and scented down,
Where love throbs out in blissful sleep,
Pulse nigh to pulse, and breath to breath,
Where hushed awakenings are dear . . .
But I've a rendezvous with Death
At midnight in some flaming town
When spring trips north again this year,
And I to my pledged word am true,
I shall not fail that rendezvous.

An Impressive Ceremony Unites Miss Godfrey And S. Futrell In Marriage

In a candlelight ceremony on Saturday evening, May 10, 1958, at the Central Baptist Church, Miss Evelyn Godfrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Godfrey of London, England and Mr. Sterling Futrell, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Futrell Sr., were united in holy matrimony.

Preceeding the lighting of the candles by A. D. Futrell, Jr., brother of the groom, and John W. Foster, the organist, Miss Beverly Strom, played appropriate organ music, as the guests were being seated.

The church was decorated with tall Cathedral baskets of white gladioli and palm leaves placed before tall candelabra. While the candles were being lighted, the organist played a soft organ solo of "Oh Promise Me."

To the strains of the traditional wedding march the bride was escorted to the altar by the groom's father. She was radiant in a gown of white satin faille. Her gown was designed and made for her in England. It featured a fitted bodice fashioned with a high neckline and long sleeves ending with points on the hands. Her short veil was held in place by a circle of tiny seed pearls and orange blossoms which were sown into place by the bride. She carried a white Prayer Book topped with a bouquet of white carnations.

Mrs. Lawrence Bingham, sister of the groom, was matron-of-honor. Her dress was of mauve pois-de-sois, over taffeta accented with a mauve satin sash which formed large streamers to the hemline in the back. Try A Child Size Shower Head In Bath

If the younger members of your family enjoy their daily ablution in the form of a shower, try installing a child-sized shower head. This can be done by tapping into the regular shower standpipe about half way from the top and putting in a cut-off valve at the top shower head. If it's a shower stall, the floor should be surfaced with unglazed, slip-proof ceramic tile. It's a good idea, too, to have a ceramic grab bar installed about three to four feet from the floor.

Two Expansion Areas Are The Basement-Attic

Two areas most likely to produce added living space in your home are the attic and the basement. But utilizing these areas shouldn't add to the burden of the busy homemaker, says the Tile Council of America. Materials used in creating these new living spaces should be both colorful and easy to clean, such as durable ceramic tile. Floors, walls and countertops of ceramic tile are stainproof and offer no special cleaning problems.

'Extras' In The Kitchen Are Labor-Savers

Builders who offer "extras" as an enticement to home buying have concentrated most of their efforts in the kitchen, recent surveys show. If a builder is offering extra "hardware" in the form of labor-saving devices, they will most often be found in the kitchen. One labor-saving device that is gaining widespread popularity is kitchen countertops of water-roof and stainproof ceramic tile. Top independent surveys recently placed ceramic tile tops in nearly all categories as a countertop surfacing material.

Study Shows Girls Marrying Much Younger

NEW YORK — Brides generally are younger today, but they take life more seriously.

That's the conclusion of a study made.

Today's typical bride is about 20 years old, and her bridegroom 23. In spite of their youth, more couples now start life insurance programs before marriage, the survey reported. Young married couples with children are insurance companies' best customers.

Girl Scout News

Troop news today is of two troops in the same neighborhood, Troop 24, of South Monroe Junior High, and Troop 8 of Plum Street School. These troops have a record of four and three years, respectively, of continuous leadership and membership. We think Troop 24 is mighty lucky to have Mrs. Edmond Middleton, and the Brownie troop to have Mrs. E. M. Varnado and Mrs. C. E. Leath.

Troop 24 ended its year of weekly activity with a court - of-awards. Beginning with a candlelighting ceremony in charge of Susan Benton, the program included talks on what they had enjoyed most in the year's program, given by Robbie Hicks and Verona Blackwell. Robbie, who loves to read, said that she had been particularly interested in the Magic Carpet badge. "The Most Meaningful Law to Me" by Becky Middleton emphasized the tenth law "A Girl Scout Is Clean in Thought, Word and Deed." Barbara Suomi told in her own words what Scout membership has meant to her, Michelle Varnado recalled the fun she has had through camping. Those who know Mickie know that she has had many and varied Girl Scout camping experiences all of which she thoroughly enjoys. The coming day camp season will be her fourth; she has been troop camping and to established camp when the council operated one. Mrs. Middleton presented the following badges: second class rank, Anna Margaret Miller and Jan Reagan; outdoor cook, Robbie Hicks, Becky Middleton, Anna Margaret Miller, Jan Reagan, Barbara Suomi, Michelle Varnado; magic carpet, Verona Blackwell, Anna Margaret Miller, Robbie Hicks, Becky Middleton, Jan Reagan, Barbara Suomi; star, Verona Blackwell, Anna Margaret Miller, Barbara Suomi, Michelle Varnado. The girls were assisted in their work on the star badge by Barbara Suomi's father. Congratulations to these girls, who are well on their way to first class rank!

Troop 8 held the traditional candlelighting investiture in the auditorium of Plum Street School, marking their "fly - up," or graduation from Brownie scouting into the Intermediate program. Mothers of the girls were guests for the ceremony and the tea that followed. Invested by their leaders were the following girls, who now wear shiny Girl Scout pins to remind them of their promise: Yvonne Acord, Judy Avery, Linda Bradshaw, Cynthis Chambliss, Anita Christman, Kathy Davis, Sandra Fowler, Earlynn Gewin, Mary Lou Gibson, Brenda Hale, Connie Sue Halley, Charlotte Hicks, Patsy Holloway, Judy Hunt, Linda Ann Hunt, Carol Johnson, Sherry Lasuzzo, Leslie Leath, Suzette Lindsey, Joyce Maddox, Sheila McGough, Nancy Pounds, Linda Reneau, Mary Louise Schempf, Judy Varnado, Charlotte Wiggins, Linda Kay Willard.

Homemaker Of 1958 Outlines Ideal Wife Role

DALLAS—Many girls dream of combining marriage with a career, but Aloma Qualls may be better equipped for the task than most.

The 16-year-old high - school sophomore was named "Young Homemaker of the Year" by the Girls Club of America. She competed with hundreds of girls across the country in sewing, child care, grooming and cooking.

Aloma wants to study medicine or become a laboratory technician. Whichever career she selects home still will come first, she said.

"I think a homemaker should not only be prepared to be the wife and mother in her home, but also the companion, best friend, advisor and peace-maker," she added.

Family Ties

The teen-ager, who lives in Wichita Falls, believes a homemaker should be able to prepare attractive as well as nutritious meals and, with an eye to her husband's paycheck, should know how to shop on a budget.

But economics is only a part of homemaking to this girl. She stressed the importance of families doing things together and a family worship.

"A husband and children are much better prepared to face their problems, knowing that God is with them and that their family understands," she said.

Religious convictions are important to her, she said, and must be important to the man she marries.

Played Clarinet

"I don't care whether he's good-looking, but he must have a good sense of humor and be of the same religious faith as I am."

She also wants six children.

Her tastes are not limited to homemaking. She plays the clarinet in the high-school band, likes to tap dance, and is interested in athletics. She is a rock 'n' roll fan and likes Elvis Presley. And she maintains a straight-A average.

Two Expansion Areas Are The Basement-Attic

Two areas most likely to produce added living space in your home are the attic and the basement. But utilizing these areas shouldn't add to the burden of the busy homemaker, says the Tile Council of America. Materials used in creating these new living spaces should be both colorful and easy to clean, such as durable ceramic tile. Floors, walls and countertops of ceramic tile are stainproof and offer no special cleaning problems.

Try A Child Size Shower Head In Bath

Campus Cutups Have New Fad

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) - Remember when the goldfish swallower was a big man on the campus?

His son is in college today. Junior doesn't like goldfish. so what does he do?

He watches ants.

Ant watching is catching on rapidly as the college fad of 1958, at least here at the university of michigan. College students admit they prefer ant watching to panty raids 2-1.

The ants live in plastic farms. Students purchase them in local bookshops.

MR. AND MRS. W. D. IRBY of Oak Grove, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Cherry Irby, to Lionel Berthelot, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Berthelot of Springfield. The wedding will be solemnized the latter part of June.

PRINTED PATTERN
M 129
by Philip Hulitar

PROMINENT DESIGNER — PHILIP HULITAR turns his designing genius to separates — the love of a smart woman's life — and the result is a summer wardrobe of top-couture distinction. The glamorous wife of this designer travel-tested these separates, and found them a passport to fresh and fashionable dressing anywhere, anytime. An elegant dress is created by teaming the blouse with standaway collar and the skirt — both originally in white Italian silk. The gay, flowered shirt plus the white skirt total a casual effect for day. Whether you're planning a weekend away or a trip to the Brussels World Fair (where you'll see more Hulitar Originals), plan to sew a Hulitar wardrobe.

Printed Pattern M129 is available in Misses' Sizes 10, 12, 14, 16 and 18. Size 16 blouse and skirt — each takes 1⅞ yards 39-inch fabric; shirt takes 1⅜ yards.

Send one dollar for Printed Pattern M129 to Monroe Morning World Pattern Department, P. O. Box 59, Old Chelsea Station, New York 11, N. Y. Please print plainly your name, address with zone, style number and size.

NOTHING SO NEW—NOTHING SO NICE—NEAR THE PRICE!

THE '58 CHEVROLET is the one honest-to-goodness new car in the low-price field—the only one with beautiful new gull-wing styling. And you'll find it offers the year's most rewarding advances in ride and performance.

It stands out like a newly minted coin. Its clean-etched beauty—its flashing reflexes—give it a new look . . . a new feel.

Yet, with all its styling and engineering advances, Chevrolet's priced surprisingly low. In the models most people buy it's actually the lowest priced of the low-priced three.* So any way you look at this new Chevy, you just can't make a more beautiful buy.

Every model has an all-new Body by Fisher—lower, wider and smarter all the way; an all-new Safety-Girder frame—X-built for extra rigidity; a ride that's smooth as cornsilk—with a choice of all-new Full Coil suspension as standard or a real air ride as an extra-cost option.

If you haven't yet driven a new Chevy, don't put off the pleasure any longer.

The only all-new car in the low-price field.

Girl Scout News

Troop news today is of two troops in the same neighborhood, Troop 24, of South Monroe Junior High, and Troop 8 of Plum Street School. These troops have a record of four and three years, respectively, of continuous leadership and membership. We think Troop 24 is mighty lucky to have Mrs. Edmond Middleton, and the Brownie troop to have Mrs. E. M. Varnado and Mrs. C. E. Leath.

Troop 24 ended its year of weekly activity with a court - of-awards. Beginning with a candlelighting ceremony in charge of Susan Benton, the program included talks on what they had enjoyed most in the year's program, given by Robbie Hicks and Verona Blackwell. Robbie, who loves to read, said that she had been particularly interested in the Magic Carpet badge. "The Most Meaningful Law to Me" by Becky Middleton emphasized the tenth law "A Girl Scout Is Clean in Thought, Word and Deed." Barbara Suomi told in her own words what Scout membership has meant to her, Michelle Varnado recalled the fun she has had through camping. Those who know Mickie know that she has had many and varied Girl Scout camping experiences all of which she thoroughly enjoys. The coming day camp season will be her fourth; she has been troop camping and to established camp when the council operated one. Mrs. Middleton presented the following badges: second class rank, Anna Margaret Miller and Jan Reagan; outdoor cook, Robbie Hicks, Becky Middleton, Anna Margaret Miller, Jan Reagan, Barbara Suomi, Michelle Varnado; magic carpet, Verona Blackwell, Anna Margaret Miller, Robbie Hicks, Becky Middleton, Jan Reagan, Barbara Suomi; star, Verona Blackwell, Anna Margaret Miller, Barbara Suomi, Michelle Varnado. The girls were assisted in their work on the star badge by Barbara Suomi's father. Congratulations to these girls, who are well on their way to first class rank!

Troop 8 held the traditional candlelighting investiture in the auditorium of Plum Street School, marking their "fly - up," or graduation from Brownie scouting into the Intermediate program. Mothers of the girls were guests for the ceremony and the tea that followed. Invested by their leaders were the following girls, who now wear shiny Girl Scout pins to remind them of their promise: Yvonne Acord, Judy Avery, Linda Bradshaw, Cynthis Chambliss, Anita Christman, Kathy Davis, Sandra Fowler, Earlynn Gewin, Mary Lou Gibson, Brenda Hale, Connie Sue Halley, Charlotte Hicks, Patsy Holloway, Judy Hunt, Linda Ann Hunt, Carol Johnson, Sherry Lasuzzo, Leslie Leath, Suzette Lindsey, Joyce Maddox, Sheila McGough, Nancy Pounds, Linda Reneau, Mary Louise Schempf, Judy Varnado, Charlotte Wiggins, Linda Kay Willard.

The ceremony will be performed at 4:30, Saturday, June 28th in St. Thomas Acquinas Church of Ruston with the Reverend Donald Paulas officiating.

Miss Connell graduated from Louisiana Tech, where she was affiliated with Phi Mu social sorority, the Women's League, and other campus organizations. She had done graduate work in Art Education at the University of Colorado and Southern Methodist University.

Mr. Stephenson graduated from Southern Methodist University with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Engineering. He is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers.

STAR TUBES

The "star" tubes in a decorating set are those with round saw-toothed openings that make fluted borders, stars and flowers.

Homemaker Of 1958 Outlines Ideal Wife Role

DALLAS—Many girls dream of combining marriage with a career, but Aloma Qualls may be better equipped for the task than most.

The 16-year-old high - school sophomore was named "Young Homemaker of the Year" by the Girls Club of America. She competed with hundreds of girls across the country in sewing, child care, grooming and cooking.

Aloma wants to study medicine or become a laboratory technician. Whichever career she selects home still will come first, she said.

"I think a homemaker should not only be prepared to be the wife and mother in her home, but also the companion, best friend, advisor and peace-maker," she added.

Family Ties

The teen-ager, who lives in Wichita Falls, believes a homemaker should be able to prepare attractive as well as nutritious meals and, with an eye to her husband's paycheck,should know how to shop on a budget.

But economics is only a part of homemaking to this girl. She stressed the importance of families doing things together and a family worship.

"A husband and children are much better prepared to face their problems, knowing that God is with them and that their family understands," she said.

Religious convictions are important to her, she said, and must be important to the man she marries.

Played Clarinet

"I don't care whether he's good-looking, but he must have a good sense of humor and be of the same religious faith as I am."

She also wants six children.

Her tastes are not limited to homemaking. She plays the clarinet in the high-school band, likes to tap dance, and is interested in athletics. She is a rock 'n' roll fan and likes Elvis Presley. And she maintains a straight-A average.

MRS. E. L. MAGEE

Miss Williamson And E. L. Magee Exchange Vows

Miss Betty Laverne Williamson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ance Aaron Williamson of Mangham, and Esters Levan Magee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest M. Thomason of Alto were married on Wednesday, May 21.

The vows were spoken to the Rev. L. R. Joyner at 2 o'clock in the presence of members of the family and a few intimate friends at the Lone Cherry Baptist parsonage.

The bride was lovely in white and wore a corsage of white carnations. Her only attendant was Miss Lois Aline Crocker, who wore a blue and white spring model.

Serving the groom as best man was Luther Ray King.

Mrs. Williamson wore black with white accessories and Mrs. Themason wore navy blue.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Magee are graduates of Mangham High School. Mrs. Magee is a member of the 1958 graduating classs.

Following a honeymoon to an undisclosed destination, the young couple will make their home in Archibald.

THE ENGAGEMENT and approaching marriage of Miss Peggy Gilmore to Johnny Lee Moreland, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Moreland of Bastrop, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Miles Gilmore of Sterlington. The wedding is planned for early June.

DATE LOAF

Bake a couple of quick breads —such as date loaf—and use one soon after baking. Wrap the other loaf tightly in foil and store in the refrigerator. Sliced thin, toasted and buttered, the bread will be delicious.

Fort Miro Chapter DAR Holds May Meeting

The May meeting of Fort Miro Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution was held at the Chapter House with Mrs. S. C. Strausser hostess chairman. Others on the hostess committee were Mrs. John R. Humble, Mrs. Lela L. Herndon, Miss Frances Flanders, Mrs. J. Floyd Taylor, Mrs. M. M. Tabb, Mrs. B. W. Biedenharn, Mrs. H. R. Hayes, Mrs. Marvin M. Hill, Miss Nancy Johnson, Mrs. W. L. Husted, Sr., Mrs. Ernest Richard, Mrs. J. W. Standley, Sr., Mrs. C. P. Gray, Sr., Mrs. Harry Lemert, and Mrs. W. C. Oliver.

Report from the State Conference in Alexandria was given by Mrs. R. L. Carson, who served as delegate. Mrs. Carson said that Fort Miro Chapter was honored at the state conference by receiving a State Honor Roll ribbon, a prize from the state membership chairman for having enrolled the most kinswomen, and a prize from the state chairman of the D. A. R. magazine for having the second largest number of subscriptions.

Mrs. Milling Bernstein, delegate to the National Conference in Washington, submitted a report which was read by Mrs. G. I. Hemphill. Mrs. Duncan Cook also reported on the National Conference stating that Louisiana had received four national awards. First Place throughout the nation was won by the State Press Book, second place throughout the nation in increase of magazine subscriptions, first place in southwest division for the James Monroe Essay Contest which was won by the Fort Miro entry, and an award for a tape recording, "Behind the Scenes in Philadelphia" submitted by Abram Morehouse Chapter, was also received. In addition to Mrs. Bernstein and Mrs. Cook, Fort Miro was represented at the National Conference by Mrs. Montie Cone, Mrs. S. W. McLean and Mrs. C. U. Johnson. Fort Miro was one of the twelve chapters in the State of Louisiana to receive a Gold Honor Roll ribbon presented by the National Society.

Announcement was made of a Memorial Service to be held on May 11th at 4:00 p.m. honoring Mrs. Christine Kellogg Moore, Mrs. Martha R. Troy, Mrs Mary Lee Engstrom, Mrs. Hilda Mitchell Hair and Mrs. Lela Coon Guyton.

A talk on National Defense was made by Mrs. W. B. Inabnet who stressed the importance of a sound foreign policy based on the principles set forth in the Monroe Doctrine. Quoting from the president general's message, Mrs. Inabnet said: "April 28 of this year marked the bicentenary of the birth of the man who defined our country's traditional foreign policy so clearly and fearlessly. A resolution passed by our 66th Continental Congress urged the Chapters of the National Society to promote proper observance of this date and of December 2nd, the date of the enunciation of the Monroe Doctrine. We have good reason to remember and observe these dates with respect and gratitude. The joint occupation of the Northwest and the famous declaration that has come to be known as the Monroe Doctrine are two of the outstanding achievements of the Monroe administration. But there were other important issues, such as the agreement for the limitation of armaments on the Great Lakes, the agreement on Labrador and Newfoundland fisheries, and the acquisition of Florida, which were successfully concluded. In all these issues, and throughout his long career of public service James Monroe displayed untiring application and indomitable perseverance."

Mrs. S. W. McLean reported on the National Conference of the Children of the American Revolution held in Washington April 18 through 20. Mrs. McLean was installed in Washington as Senior State President of the Louisiana Society of the C. A. R.

Mrs. Shelby Meek gave the report from the nominating committee. Officers elected to serve for a two year term were as follows: First Vice-Regent, Mrs. Herbert Steed; second vice-regent, Miss Edith Gunby; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. L. Alexander; treasurer, Mrs. A. Milling Bernstein; registrar, Mrs. Richard D. Kellogg; historian, Mrs. C. P. Gray, Sr.; librarian, Miss Carrie Dee Drew; counselors, Mrs. A.E. Montgomery and Mrs. Shelby Meek.

The meeting was closed with a prayer by the chaplain, Mrs. C. E. Slade.

New members present were Mrs. James W. Moore and Mrs. John E. Middleton. Other members present were: Mrs. G. I. Hemphill, Mrs. Lela L. Herndon, Mrs. J. Floyd Taylor, Mrs. H. M. Campus Cutups Have New Fad

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) - Remember when the goldfish swallower was a big man on the campus?

His son is in college today. Junior doesn't like goldfish. so what does he do?

He watches ants.

Ant watching is catching on rapidly as the college fad of 1958, at least here at the university of michigan. College students admit they prefer ant watching to panty raids 2-1.

The ants live in plastic farms. Students purchase them in local bookshops.

MR. AND MRS. W. D. IRBY of Oak Grove, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Cherry Irby, to Lionel Berthelot, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Berthelot of Springfield. The wedding will be solemnized the latter part of June.

Scientists Profess God In Atomic Age

"Is there a God for this Atomic Age?" A book that answers this question will be published in a forthcoming book. "The Evidence of God in an Expanding Universe," and subtitled "Forty American Scientists Declare Their Affirmative Views on Religion" combats the popular error that science undermines faith.

For many years vast numbers of parents have been worried about the lack of religion in the secondary schools and colleges their young people attended. In thousands of schools, in the U. S. A. and many other countries, both students and faculty members have been "on the fence" with reference to the very existence of God. Education in many public institutions was, at best, neutral with reference to God and religion, and in many cases it was neither covertly or openly "anti."

Then, recently, three things happened that brought the whole unfortunate situation to a head.

First, there were the world-wide operations of the International Geophysical Year, drawing people's attention to "this mysterious universe" of which they are an infinitesimally small part.

Second, there were the Russian "sputniks" and the American earth satellites, rousing widespread interest and excitement.

Third, there is the current nation - wide powerful movement to put a new stress on essential subjects in education and to eliminate a lot of "educationist folderol" — a movement backed by newspapers and magazines of enormous circulation.

All of this has led to a revival of the age - old question: Back of this universe and its countless natural phenomena, is there a God? And, in keeping with the scientific demands of this ultra-scientific modern day, another vital question is being added: Are there scientific grounds for a belief in His existence?

John Clover Monsma, author and journalist, has invited forty American scientists — all men in responsible positions and many of them of high prominence — to write a brief answer to those questions, and the answers are now being published in "The Evidence of God in an Expanding Universe."

"The Evidence of God" promises to be an effective antidote against atheistic communism. It has been called "an epic achievement" by one of the front rank Christian scholars in the country who examined an advance copy. A world - wide stir is expected, not only in school circles but also among the vast ranks of the intelligent general public. The book combines, so it is announced, the latest in scholarships with simplicity of presentation.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: The teacher in my school keeps making fun of religious people. I want to speak up every time, but then she would just make fun of me. Besides, I can't answer her arguments. Is there anything I can do in such a situation? M. L. C.

ANSWER: Unfortunately, the true American idea of the public school with freedom of religion has been abused. Your teacher is being as intolerant in her way as if some religion were forced upon students. The religious beliefs of others must be respected. The proper thing for you to do is to avoid any argument with the teacher, but rather talk it over with your pastor. As a minister of the gospel and a man of some influence in the community, he should then know what steps to take. As a student, you cannot very well challenge the teacher.

Every Christian is sometimes in a hard place where there is opposition to a true faith in God Every place gives an opportunity for our witness. Your personal witness for Christ coupled with a consistent li will be more convincing to your classmates than your teacher's attitude. After all, you do not have to prove you are right, but you do have to be an ambassador. Jesus once said, "I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves: be ye therefore wise as serpents and harmless as doves." (Matthew 10:16).

Fort Miro Chapter DAR Holds May Meeting

The May meeting of Fort Miro Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution was held at the Chapter House with Mrs. S. C. Strausser hostess chairman. Others on the hostess committee were Mrs. John R. Humble, Mrs. Lela L. Herndon, Miss Frances Flanders, Mrs. J. Floyd Taylor, Mrs. M. M. Tabb, Mrs. B. W. Biedenharn, Mrs. H. R. Hayes, Mrs. Marvin M. Hill, Miss Nancy Johnson, Mrs. W. L. Husted, Sr., Mrs. Ernest Richard, Mrs. J. W. Standley, Sr., Mrs. C. P. Gray, Sr., Mrs. Harry Lemert, and Mrs. W. C. Oliver.

Report from the State Conference in Alexandria was given by Mrs. R. L. Carson, who served as delegate. Mrs. Carson said that Fort Miro Chapter was honored at the state conference by receiving a State Honor Roll ribbon, a prize from the state membership chairman for having enrolled the most kinswomen, and a prize from the state chairman of the D. A. R. magazine for having the second largest number of subscriptions.

Mrs. Milling Bernstein, delegate to the National Conference in Washington, submitted a report which was read by Mrs. G. I. Hemphill. Mrs. Duncan Cook also reported on the National Conference stating that Louisiana had received four national awards. First Place throughout the nation was won by the State Press Book, second place throughout the nation in increase of magazine subscriptions, first place in southwest division for the James Monroe Essay Contest which was won by the Fort Miro entry, and an award for a tape recording, "Behind the Scenes in Philadelphia" submitted by Abram Morehouse Chapter, was also received. In addition to Mrs. Bernstein and Mrs. Cook, Fort Miro was represented at the National Conference by Mrs. Montie Cone, Mrs. S. W. McLean and Mrs. C. U. Johnson. Fort Miro was one of the twelve chapters in the State of Louisiana to receive a Gold Honor Roll ribbon presented by the National Society.

Announcement was made of a Memorial Service to be held on May 11th at 4:00 p.m. honoring Mrs. Christine Kellogg Moore, Mrs. Martha R. Troy, Mrs Mary Lee Engstrom, Mrs. Hilda Mitchell Hair and Mrs. Lela Coon Guyton.

A talk on National Defense was made by Mrs. W. B. Inabnet who stressed the importance of a sound foreign policy based on the principles set forth in the Monroe Doctrine. Quoting from the president general's message, Mrs. Inabnet said: "April 28 of this year marked the bicentenary of the birth of the man who defined our country's traditional foreign policy so clearly and fearlessly. A resolution passed by our 66th Continental Congress urged the Chapters of the National Society to promote proper observance of this date and of December 2nd, the date of the enunciation of the Monroe Doctrine. We have good reason to remember and observe these dates with respect and gratitude. The joint occupation of the Northwest and the famous declaration that has come to be known as the Monroe Doctrine are two of the outstanding achievements of the Monroe administration. But there were other important issues, such as the agreement for the limitation of armaments on the Great Lakes, the agreement on Labrador and Newfoundland fisheries, and the acquisition of Florida, which were successfully concluded. In all these issues, and throughout his long career of public service James Monroe displayed untiring application and indomitable perseverance."

Mrs. S. W. McLean reported on the National Conference of the Children of the American Revolution held in Washington April 18 through 20. Mrs. McLean was installed in Washington as Senior State President of the Louisiana Society of the C. A. R.

Mrs. Shelby Meek gave the report from the nominating committee. Officers elected to serve for a two year term were as follows: First Vice-Regent, Mrs. Herbert Steed; second vice-regent, Miss Edith Gunby; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. L. Alexander; treasurer, Mrs. A. Milling Bernstein; registrar, Mrs. Richard D. Kellogg; historian, Mrs. C. P. Gray, Sr.; librarian, Miss Carrie Dee Drew; counselors, Mrs. A.E. Montgomery and Mrs. Shelby Meek.

The meeting was closed with a prayer by the chaplain, Mrs. C. E. Slade.

New members present were Mrs. James W. Moore and Mrs. John E. Middleton. Other members present were: Mrs. G. I. Hemphill, Mrs. Lela L. Herndon, Mrs. J. Floyd Taylor, Mrs. H. M. Butler, Miss Mary Buckner, Mrs. C. E. Buckley, Mrs. A. E. Montgomery, Mrs. Emma Alexander, Mrs. M. M. Tabb, Mrs. John R. Humble, Mrs. Shelby Meek, Mrs. R. L. Carson, Mrs. Fred Amman, Mrs. W. B. Words Of Advice Given To Graduates

By AUDREY DAWSON

Graduation sometimes brings a tiny word into sudden prominence —one of the smallest words in the English language, "If." So if you who are graduates do your best with what you have. If you will not be ruled by yesterday's regrets and tomorrow's forebodings, you can say with sincerity and wisdom and freedom, if I can't be an oak on the brow of the hill, I'll be the best blade of grass in the valley. You Mr. and Miss Graduate, your challenge is always to do your best, "if" you accept it.

Azalea

We have been getting calls about thick gall - like leaves on azaleas. This disease is caused by a fungus. Bordeaux mixture will control the disease if applied soon enough. Damaged leaves should be removed and burned. The other calls on azaleas have been on rust, mites and red spider. These may be controlled with malathion. Dusting sulphur is also good for red spider.

Hints for Homemakers

A tablespoon of margarine in water will help keep macaroni, rice or spaghetti from boiling over while cooking.

If you need a drinking tube, use a piece of macaroni.

Before attaching the food chopper to the table, insert a piece of sandpaper with the rough side to the table — will hold firmer.

Starch which has stuck to an iron can be removed by spreading salt on a newspaper and rubbing the iron over it while hot.

Feather pillows should be aired on a cloudy, windy day rather than in the sun because sun rays draw the natural oil out of the feathers and destroy their elasticity.

4-H Leaders Trained

Seven Home Demonstration women spent 2 days training this past week getting up to date on the use of the sewing machine. These leaders will each teach eight 4-H beginners in using the machine. Thank you leaders for helping make the 4-H clothing program in Ouachita parish. Leaders who took part were: Mrs. E. W. Earl, Colony; Mrs. James B. Terrel, McGuire; Mrs. H. C. Deil, Lamkin; Mrs. Hilton Tolbird, McGuire; Mrs. T. R. Wright, Woodlawn; Mrs. E. E. White, Lakeview; Mrs. E. D. McGrew, Lakeview.

More About Sewing

For those of you who dislike working the eyelet for your belts there is a new attachment on the market now that is called an eyelet template and is used with your buttonhole attachment. Just another step in helping homemakers make a better job of dressmaking.

Dental Check Up

I had a communication last week from Mrs. Abington, our family life and health specialist, of which I think you will be interested. A recent study showed that dentists spend 5 times more time on patients who go for treatments only. Therefore, those who go for regular check ups pay less for dental bills and endure less suffering. The study showed that the average 3 year old has stained teeth and 3 cavities. He needs fillings, an application of sodium flouride and a lesson in proper brushing. The average 9 year old has stained teeth, 4 cavities and one abscessed tooth. The average 13 year old who has not had regular dental care has stained teeth, 5 cavities, one abscessed tooth and one missing tooth.

The 38 year old mother has an average of 3 cavities, five missing teeth and 2 that need extracting. The average man of 42 without the regular check up habit, has 2 cavities and 10 missing teeth. He needs seven extractions, one filling and one gold inlay and a gum treatment, the study showed.

A THOUGHT — The past cannot be changed, the future is still in your power.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Arcadia Lady Lectures On Iris

By MARY M. JARDINE

One of north Louisiana's outstanding gardeners, Mrs. W. E. Conger, Arcadia, recently gave a wonderful talk on iris twelve months of the year. For those of you who were unable to attend the lecture I am passing along my notes. Most of the iris mentioned today are available from area iris growers and nursery men.

In January we have the native iris stylosa Alba, a low and beautiful white flower which is lovely planted in the rock garden. The dwarf blue is especially lovely by gray rocks. A new variety is Carl Starker which is a delightful pink. Another bloomer at this time is Iris Reticulata. This is a handsome violet-flowered early spring bulb. When reticulata finishes blooming in Louisiana it should be potted up and placed in the shade (under the house) and allowed to dry out. Replant in late fall.

In March we have the Dutch iris, they bloom over a period of six weeks. The first to bloom is Wedgewood Blue, Blue Horizon, King of the Blue. Many other fine varieties are listed in reliable catalogs. These bloom with the azaleas and make a very beautiful contrast, especially the yellow ones, as yellow is the heart of the garden. Native yellow jasmine vine to plant with azaleas is a nice complement to the azaleas and relieves the monotony of the color scheme. The lovely iris Cristate blooms in March. It could be considered as a ground cover as it is dwarf. Nice for borders with azaleas, and will grow literally on top of rocks. This is very pretty when planted with ajuga, a blue flowering ground cover. Iris Verna is the next of the low growing types. It comes from the piney wet woods, so give it a moist place.

Bearded Iris

April is the month for bearded iris and there are many fine varieties available locally that do well in this section. Note! Bearded iris should never be mulched.

The Louisiana native iris begin to bloom in April and continue into May. This is a good time to mulch all native iris. The Society for Louisiana irises is seeking to improve on our native beauties. Hybridizers are striving for the following desirable characteristics: Shorter rhizomes, floriferousness, wider floral parts, those that hold water in the center, and overlapping petals. Excellent examples to date are Dixie Deb, Bayou Glory, La Reve and Caroginia.

Also blooming in April is the Spuria iris which is often mistaken for native iris, but is not. This has tall stems and good foliage. The form resembles the Dutch Iris. They have three or four pairs of flowers to each stalk instead of one. Two good varieties are Fairy and Wadi-Zem-Zem, a large creamy yellow. There are many new varieties listed in the catalogs. These like plenty of water.

Native Iris

The four species of Louisiana Native Iris from which our fine hybrids derive are: 1. tall blue giganticaerulea, blooming along the coast, 2. russet fulva, found in North Louisiana, 3. The low foliosa, mostly blues and white and a yellow sport, found along the Mississippi River. The giant Abbeville reds from which the magnificent Haile Selassie has been developed. Blooming now in many north Louisiana gardens is the lovely Cameron Blue which makes an excellent cut flower.

Iris virginica not a true native but included in this group is distinguished by tall dark green foliage which has a decided midrib. This characteristic is not found in any other Louisiana native iris. This has a yellow bloom and grows well in water. Suitable for a bayou bank or low pasture. Also in this class is Calcasieu White. These multiply very rapidly and should be given a lot of space. Do not plant near your fine Louisiana iris as the virginica will crowd them out. In April the graceful Siberian iris bloom also, these like moist soil and the intriguing Japanese roof iris (tectorum, which is lavender.

In May we have the dwarf foliosas with a color range from blue shades to white. In June we have the Japanese iris (kaempferi). The flowers are almost flat, measure four to twelve inches in diameter and are unbelievably feminine looking, soft, fluffy, billowing like clouds of beautiful costly silk. The Japanese spent five hundred years hybridizing these flowers and more recently American breeders have given us the magnificent Japanese iris of today. They require good solid on the acid side rich in organic matter such as barnyard fertilizer or leaf mold, plus plenty of water during the pre-bloom season.

During July and August and September we have the Vesper iris. These can easily be grown from seed and treated as a biennial. The true name is dichotoma. Color is cornflower blue. There are several varieties of fall blooming bearded iris. A beautiful yellow one is Autumn Queen. Southland, which blooms in spring is another. These iris continue to bloom until the stylosas begin again in January.

Jan De Graf

On display at the Garden Center this week was a beautiful Jan de Graf hybrid lily "Enchantment" grown by Mrs. R. R. Piggott, West Monroe. There are 18 blooms on the stalk. They open three or four at a time and stay fresh for a week or ten days. The color is a nasturtium orange-red.

Also on display is a branch of the Shadbush or service berry that Lanier Hunt mentions in his column. We have it in our garden in the shrub form and it is planted as a hedge about six feet high. The rosy purple juicy berries, almost like tiny apples, are delicious in pies if you can beat the birds to the bush. A fairyland of white blooms in the early spring, as the flowers open in advance of the unfolding of the leaves. This is a wonderful shrub to plant if you want to invite the birds to your garden.

Mulch Secret Of Gardener's Green Thumb

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

CHAPPAQUA, N. Y. — The famous old gardener, the one whose perennial beds and mass plantings of annuals were the collective dream of the local garden club, had died. He had told his heirs that he had put down his precious secret in manuscript form, and that it would be revealed only upon his demise.

When other gardens were drooping from lack of water, Uncle Henry's was rich and green. His vegetables were always bigger and tasted better. His flowers were larger, smelled nicer, their colors more vibrant. When other gardeners were hoeing and slaving, Uncle Henry sat in the shade of the great mulberry tree, watching birds and reading Thoreau.

What was Uncle Henry's secret? The heirs were sure the world would pay a lot of money to share it. Finally, from Uncle Henry's safe deposit box an envelope marked "Garden Secret" was produced. The heirs held their breath as the envelope was opened. A single slip of paper was removed. It contained but a single word: MULCH.

The heirs had a right to be disappointed — mulching isn't that much of a secret any more. It is, however, a wonderful aid and worksaver.

There are many different materials which can and are used as mulchs, which are one or another of the materials spread on the soil around growing plants to keep down weeds, hold moisture in the soil and sometimes to add to the fertility or to improve the condition of the earth.

Peat moss, buckwheat hulls, tobacco stems, saw dust, leaves, grass clippings — all these are widely used as mulches, first spread upon the ground and later dug into the soil to decay and improve it. Salt hay and straw are often used too, but not to be dug into the soil later.

Recently manufacturers have been putting out polyethylene plastic in long black strips which has been with great success by commercial growers to cover the ground, putting the plants through slits in the strips. The opaque plastic excludes sunshine from the soil and prohibits weeds, and the cover conserves moisture. Recently it has been put on the market for the benefit of home gardeners.

Sets Time Table For Flower Trees That Bloom Early

The home owner can set his own time - table for flowering trees that will bloom from early Spring right through the summer. Early flowering kinds, like dogwood, Japanese cherry, redbud and crabapple are justly popular. Drawback here is they show their beauty in spring when nature is most lavish.

Tree floral displays can be arranged to brighten the midsummer and early fall landscape, too.

Week - end gardeners who have the planting space and a hankering for a progression of arboreal blooms can achieve attractive results.

For early June, there is the Japanese dogwood (Cornus kousa), with creamy white flowers that bloom for several weeks after those of our native dogwood. For mid-June, the Amur lilac (Syringa amurensis), a small spreading tree or a large shrub, also offers a profusion of fine, creamy white blooms. Later in the summer, the panicled goldenraintree (Koelreuteria paniculata) is a color spectacle all its own. It puts out upright clusters of yellow flowers and follows these with attractive yellowish to brown seed clusters.

A late summer charmer is the Japanese pagodatree (Sophora japonica), with conspicuous white pealike flowers. For late summer or early fall, the versatile Franklinia tree (alatamaha) offers large waxy white flowers with gold centers and later displays brilliant orange - red autumn foliage, often coinciding with the last blooms.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Helpful Results From Winter

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Along with the damage it did, the cold winter we had this year had some beneficial results. If you recall now, those balmy little warm spells we usually have from January on did not occur this year. The result was that buds on tree and shrubs remained dormant and came out on many plants "late" after all danger of frost. As a consequence, we have had the most wonderful rose season anyone ever remembers. The flowering shrubs have been heavy with bloom and the growth on everything is lush indeed.

Opportunity

This is your big opportunity to develop some fine large rose bushes. Ordinarily roses are cut back from one to five inches between Christmas and Easter nearly every year. Warm spells followed by freezes take off a few inches at a time till the bushes are smaller than they started off in the fall. This year, however, they were not damaged, so we have the bushes we started off with last fall. With a little pruning, we can build up some fine bushes between now and the autumn.

Blue Flowered Shrub

A big surprise of the cold winter's results is that vitex bushes were not killed to the ground. These powder blue flowers are some of the finest plants we can grow. They can be kept down to a small shrub by cutting them to the ground or at least way back each year, or they can be allowed to grow into very large shrubs. Vitex will usually bloom just once—along with the orange daylilies—when they are not cut back. Bushes that are cut back after the first bloom will usually flower again if they are given a good feeding at the time they are pruned. In some gardens, large specimens are left alone to bloom once a year and the pruned ones are counted upon for their spikes of blue - lavender off and on all summer.

There is a pink and a white form of vitex. If you plant seeds of this shrub, you will get a small percentage of pink ones and white ones along with the blue forms. They grow quickly from seeds and can be grown in the garden to flower in a row till you see them bloom. Then you can use the brightest colors and burn up the dingy ones.

Do not be afraid to cut large vitex bushes back to the large trunks. They will burst out with new growth and renew themselves at once. Vitex is our largest blue-flowered summer shrub and can be used with telling effect in Southern gardens. You can move it around at almost any time just by cutting it way back and keeping the new growth shaded when it starts out again.

THE HOME SHIFT

Sees More Palms In South Louisiana

By MILDRED SWIFT

It's interesting to note the landscaping in different cities. I drove around Baton Rouge a number of times to make a comparison. Home owners there are taking to the "new" look faster than we in north Louisiana. I saw few beds, and those used were straight, in most cases.

More Ideas

Bottle brush is used lots in the capital city. We had an idea that this plant would not survive our winters. The pointed leaf variety does well here, though. One planting I noticed used five bottle brush with the purple leaf plum on the same side of the garden. The roof of the house was the same color as the plum, the bottle brush bloom was a brighter red. By the way — there's a new yellow blooming bottle brush the nurseries will have in a few years. Also a ground cover bottle brush whose blooms are red.

Also, the gardeners in Baton Rouge use more palms — not many of the palmetto type except for large buildings, but lots of the drooping frond types. The nurseries here carry the variety that will stand our winters. Palms get away from the monotony of too many leafy plants.

Also, the yucca was extensively used, and believe me when you go into this family you begin to run into difficulties. There are so many different varieties. For small homes the bear grass was used in groups of three. The pointed foliage of this plant grows close to the ground and sends up a spectacular white bloom on a long stalk.

These plants grow native in pastures in north Louisiana. If you start to dig one you'll pretty soon decide the root grows straight through the earth and must come out in China.

The Spanish dagger was stripped in contemporary fashion. This is the yucca that grows very tall, some as high as ten feet. The landscape people were stripping all but about the top foot of foliage. That left th large green trunk which was very beautiful. The young plants were the only ones I noticed stripped.

I've told you before about the junipers used in south Louisiana, stripped of all foliage except at the end of each branch. When you find an old plant with gnarled old limbs this is an unusual and interesting treatment.

Garden Jobs

The nurseries still have plenty of imperial candle trees. They're in buckets and this is a good time to plant. These tropical plants are not going to do any growing until the weather gets warmer, anyhow. The nights are too cool, yet.

The same is true of banana plants and elephant ears. Fire dragon plants are available. Mr. Roach says this is the poor man's croton. The plant grows about two feet tall, is red and looks like the croton.

craton.

You can still plant caladiums. Try some of the strap varieties with long pointed leaves and gorgeous colors.

Plants of Joseph's coat of all colors are available. This little plant gives color to the summer garden. It it not too late to plant hibiscus.

Rose Troubles

Had you noticed that gardeners who take their roses seriously seem to be spraying all the time? The most serious threat to roses is black spot and it seems we're talking about that all the time.

Black spot is a fungus disease so say our Extension Specialists. The organism gets into the tissues of the plant and once there can't be ejected. An infected leaf will remain infected for its entire life.

The remedy is to prevent this black spot. It's important to spray roses immediately after every rain, because the rain tends to wash the fungicide off and it must be there at all times to do a job of prevention. There are a number of effective controls on the market. Captan seems to be a favorite. Others are manzate and Dithane Z-78. All three are used, 1 tablespoon to a gallon of water.

Sulphur was once popular, but it turns the foliage in hot weather and is acid in reaction. Continuous use causes the soil to become too acid. Sulphur seems to be the best material for the control of mildew. Remember that this disease thrives best in damp, dark places. Therefore, some sun is needed and plants should not be crowded. Call 3-2251 for a copy of the rose bulletin.

St. Augustine Trouble

Man! and didn't we have them last year. I saw entire lawns turn brown and die. The trouble was either brown patch or chinch bug. They're easily distinguished because brown patch shows up in a brown circle in the lawn while the chinch bug follows no definite pattern, but just kills the grass over entire areas.

While in Baton Rouge I talked to Donald Spurlock, Extension horticulturist, about their new recommendation for brown patch. The chemical is terrachlor. Several seed stores are carrying this. Spurlock said use one pound of wettable 75 per cent terrachlor in 25 gallons of water. This covers, 1,000 square feet. The specialist said if we are to expect best results, the entire lawn must be sprayed. If you had brown patch troubles last year, be sure to spray at once.

WIVES

Enjoy Safer Outdoor Week - Ends This Summer

One way to help cut down on the appalling rate of summer week-end traffic accidents, is to plan back-yard supper parties.

Most wives think outdoor entertaining is more trouble than indoor entertaining. Actually, it needn't be because such jobs as lawn-mowing and watering, flower bed cleanup, etc., can be delegated to various members of the family. Odds are, Dad will volunteer for the barbecuing job—so you spend a minimum of time slaving over that hot stove—and more time with your guests. The family can be quickly tempted into "at-home" picnics if you mention one of these mouth-watering menus: Plantation-barbecued chicken with tossed green salad and roast corn-on-the-cob; or barbecued pork chops with scalloped corn and tomatoes; or the more orthodox barbecued steaks, spareribs or franks.

You can tell your guests when you invite them, that they won't be bothered by a single ant or fly at your picnic! This is the reason most people shy away from outdoor parties . . . fighting off insects spoils all the fun.

But if you volunteer to use ORTHO Fly Killer Dry Bait as your part of the yard preparation — you get off with an easy five-minute chore. You can control house flies in the entire outdoor area with no more work than it takes to walk, and to shake the container as you would a salt shaker. There's no fussing with mixing, measuring or spraying, and this fly killer dry bait leaves no tell-tale odor. "Salting down" the patio and yard can be done well ahead of guest arrival time—and those innocent-looking granules of malathion-impregnated bait will keep house flies from bothering your party for hours on end.

Why not try this outdoor party idea? Pick up your supply of ORTHO Fly Killer Dry Bait today.

Scientists Profess God In Atomic Age

"Is there a God for this Atomic Age?" A book that answers this question will be published in a forthcoming book. "The Evidence of God in an Expanding Universe," and subtitled "Forty American Scientists Declare Their Affirmative Views on Religion" combats the popular error that science undermines faith.

For many years vast numbers of parents have been worried about the lack of religion in the secondary schools and colleges their young people attended. In thousands of schools, in the U. S. A. and many other countries, both students and faculty members have been "on the fence" with reference to the very existence of God. Education in many public institutions was, at best, neutral with reference to God and religion, and in many cases it was neither covertly or openly "anti."

Then, recently, three things happened that brought the whole unfortunate situation to a head.

First, there were the world-wide operations of the International Geophysical Year, drawing people's attention to "this mysterious universe" of which they are an infinitesimally small part.

Second, there were the Russian "sputniks" and the American earth satellites, rousing widespread interest and excitement.

Third, there is the current nation - wide powerful movement to put a new stress on essential subjects in education and to eliminate a lot of "educationist folderol" — a movement backed by newspapers and magazines of enormous circulation.

All of this has led to a revival of the age - old question: Back of this universe and its countless natural phenomena, is there a God? And, in keeping with the scientific demands of this ultra-scientific modern day, another vital question is being added: Are there scientific grounds for a belief in His existence?

John Clover Monsma, author and journalist, has invited forty American scientists — all men in responsible positions and many of them of high prominence — to write a brief answer to those questions, and the answers are now being published in "The Evidence of God in an Expanding Universe."

"The Evidence of God" promises to be an effective antidote against atheistic communism. It has been called "an epic achievement" by one of the front rank Christian scholars in the country who examined an advance copy. A world - wide stir is expected, not only in school circles but also among the vast ranks of the intelligent general public. The book combines, so it is announced, the latest in scholarships with simplicity of presentation.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

QUESTION: The teacher in my school keeps making fun of religious people. I want to speak up every time, but then she would just make fun of me. Besides, I can't answer her arguments. Is there anything I can do in such a situation? M. L. C.

ANSWER: Unfortunately, the true American idea of the public school with freedom of religion has been abused. Your teacher is being as intolerant in her way as if some religion were forced upon students. The religious beliefs of others must be respected. The proper thing for you to do is to avoid any argument with the teacher, but rather talk it over with your pastor. As a minister of the gospel and a man of some influence in the community, he should then know what steps to take. As a student, you cannot very well challenge the teacher.

Every Christian is sometimes in a hard place where there is opposition to a true faith in God Every place gives an opportunity for our witness. Your personal witness for Christ coupled with a consistent life will be more convincing to your classmates than your teacher's attitude. After all, you do not have to prove you are right, but you do have to be an ambassador. Jesus once said, "I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves: be ye therefore wise as serpents and harmless as doves." (Matthew 10:16).

Another highlight of the conference will be the service of commemoration and Holy Communion Tuesday at 3:00 p.m. The commemoration service is given annually in remembrance of those members of the conference, their wives or widows who have died during the past year. UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Two Press Associations Merge Into One: UP, INS

NEW YORK (UPI)—The United Press Associations and International News Service joined forces Saturday around the world in the creation of a single news agency named "United Press International."

This is the first dispatch of the news service which will embrace the largest number of newspapers and radio clients ever served simultaneously by an independently operated news and picture agency.

Agreements covering the consolidation of services were signed by both sides on May 16, and the announcement was delayed until the physical change over could be worked out.

Frank H. Bartholomew, of United Press, will be president of the new global agency, and Kingsbury Smith, of International News Service will be vice president and associate general manager.

The board will be enlarged by the addition of William Randolph Hearst Jr., editor-in-chief of the Hearst newspapers; J. D. Gortatowsky, chairman of the board of Hearst Consolidated Publications Inc.; and G. C. Markuson, vice president and treasurer of the Hearst Corporation.

Frank Bartholomew, president of United Press International, stated that:

"The consolidation of the two services will assure a stronger competitive news and pictorial-news report to newspapers, radio and television stations throughout the entire civilized world.

"Like the newspapers dependent upon us for news, ours will be a business organization, collecting and distributing one of the world's most perishable products, news. We believe private enterprise with a profit incentive is the best guaranty of objective coverage of world news, exactly as it is for the subsequent publishing of that news in the great independent newspapers of the world.

"The combining of the two services will guarantee broader and more efficient news and pictorial reporting on a world-wide basis.

"Economics was an important factor in the creation of the great new news network. Costs of covering the world news fronts have risen steadily with rapidly improving means of transmitting both news and pictures by leased wires and electronic processes."

Key personnel of INS will be retained and will reinforce the present UP staff, according to Earl J. Johnson, vice president and general news manager.

United Press was created in 1907 by E. W. Scripps to insure that at any time in the future any existing newspaper or any person seeking to start a newspaper could obtain an adequate national and international news service.

The INS was established in 1909 by William Randolph Hearst for reasons closely paralleling those motivating the organization of UP and since its inception has been noted for its news enterprise and exclusive feature coverage of important world-wide events.

Actual and intensive work on putting the complex global news systems of the two organizations into one effective transmission network has been under way since September of 1957. The plan was evolved by Frank H. Bartholomew and Leroy Keller from the United Press and J. D. Gortatowsky and Kingsbury Smith from the International News Service.

Union Reports Progressives Ahead In Race

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The International Typographical Union said Saturday an unofficial tabulation of incomplete vote totals showed all progressive party candidates ahead in election contests.

With nearly two-thirds of the expected vote total reported, Elmer Brown of New Hork had 29,562 to 24,426 for Howard C. Murray of Richmond, Va., for president of the ITU. The winner will succeed Woodruff Randolph of Chicago, head of the progressives.

Don Hurd of Oakland, Calif., candidate for re-election as secretary-treasurer, was leading the ticket with 32,782 to 20,919 for Francie E. Doherty of Providence, R. I.

The closest contest was that for second vice president between Sandy Beals of Vancouver, B. C., 26,856, and Glenn H. Hays of Detroit, 26,090.

The vote for first vice president showed John Pilch of Chicago with 28,769 and George Bowling of Los Angeles with 24,576.

Joe Bailey of San Francisco, seeking re-election as third vice president, led John L. Wilkin of New York, 30,617 to 22,563.

The official count will be made at ITU headquarters here May 31.

596 Seats At Stake In Italy

By JAMES M. LONG

ROME (AP) — Italian politicians rang doorbells Saturday for those individual votes could give this NATO nation a strong majority government or plunge it back into minority rule by coalition.

The Christian Democrats, who have ruled since the war, doubt the voting of the next two days will bring any change in the alignment of the current, shaky Parliament.

At stake are 596 seats in the Chamber of Deputies and 246 seats in the Senate. In 1953, the Christian Democrats won 262 seats in the Chamber and 110 in the Senate. A repeat performance seemed likely this time, leaving the Christian Democrats with the task of wooing back the disgruntled small center parties who deserted the coalition government in the past year. The center parties pulled out in disagreement over church-state issues and social reform plans.

While the Christian Democrats—backed by the Vatican—appeared doubtful of their chances for a clear majority, the nation's second strongest political force, the Kremlin-line Communists and the pro-Communist Socialists, also expressed strong doubt they could win.

Thus it seemed the center parties held the key to the next government. The question was whether the Christian Democrats will be able to woo them back.

For Italy's Western Allies, this election holds some importance.

The Communists and pro-Communist Socialists, while dreaming of no major victory, hope the balloting may weaken the Christian democrats in their already shaky hold on the government. This could endanger any prospect for missile bases in Italy and leave the country open to pressures for neutrality in East-West conflicts.

Communist boss Palmiro Togliatti, whose party won 142 Chamber and 51 Senate seats in the last election, expected big gains for his party. But he dared make no prediction of winning a majority.

About 30-million Italians are eligible to vote. Polls open at 6 a.m. Sunday and close at 2 p.m. Monday.

This year a new proportional representation law favors the smaller parties by spreading unneeded votes in any district into a national pool, so that no votes are lost. Most feel the new law will harm the Christian Democrats and the Communists.

It may mean the Christian Democrats will need close to a million votes more than the 11 million they got in 1953 to hold the 262 seats they now have in the chamber. Few think the party can muster that many votes. Even if it does, the 40 per cent in Parliament with no allies would leave the Christian Democrats with a government that could fall on any major issue.

Geckos seem to be able to defy gravity by traveling upside down on the ceilings of houses because they possess remarkable adhesive toe pads.

Opening lead: Deuce of diamonds.

There is a natural tendency in most declarers to attack the trump suit as soon as they obtain the lead. Such primary considerations as "how many possible losers have I?" and "how can I reduce them to the required number?" are ignored in favor of getting out trumps.

I have it on the authority of a colleague who happens to be an eminent psychiatrist that it has some relationship to the circumstance that they were frightened as children. They labor under the fear of having their mail addressed to some park bench, which they have been given to understand is the eventual abode of those who neglect to draw trumps.

Then there is another type — the player who sacrifices all in an effort to avoid the loss of a trump trick. Today's final contract of four hearts is exemplary.

The deuce of diamonds was opened and East's queen forced the ace. In his anxiety to win all the trump tricks, he crossed to dummy with the king of spades to take the heart finesse. This lost and another diamond lead permitted East to cash the king. A spade return drove out the ace before the club suit was established, and declarer was obliged to lose one trick in each suit.

This was negligence of the grossest kind. Declarer should have been willing to lose a heart, a diamond, and a club. If he avoided the loss of a spade trick he was home. He could ill afford to give up one of his spade stoppers in order to enjoy the luxury of a trump finesse, which might not win after all.

The best play at trick two was the ace of trumps, followed by another one. The opponents will presumably cash the diamond and attack the spades. But declarer, after exhausting the trumps, will have time to establish the club suit for discards before the second spade stopper is dislodged.

Words Of Advice Given To Graduates

By AUDREY DAWSON

Graduation sometimes brings a tiny word into sudden prominence —one of the smallest words in the English language, "If." So if you who are graduates do your best with what you have. If you will not be ruled by yesterday's regrets and tomorrow's forebodings, you can say with sincerity and wisdom and freedom, if I can't be an oak on the brow of the hill, I'll be the best blade of grass in the valley. You Mr. and Miss Graduate, your challenge is always to do your best, "if" you accept it.

Azalea

We have been getting calls about thick gall - like leaves on azaleas. This disease is caused by a fungus. Bordeaux mixture will control the disease if applied soon enough. Damaged leaves should be removed and burned. The other calls on azaleas have been on rust, mites and red spider. These may be controlled with malathion. Dusting sulphur is also good for red spider.

Hints for Homemakers

A tablespoon of margarine in water will help keep macaroni, rice or spaghetti from boiling over while cooking.

If you need a drinking tube, use a piece of macaroni.

Before attaching the food chopper to the table, insert a piece of sandpaper with the rough side to the table — will hold firmer.

Starch which has stuck to an iron can be removed by spreading salt on a newspaper and rubbing the iron over it while hot.

4-H Leaders Trained

Seven Home Demonstration women spent 2 days training this past week getting up to date on the use of the sewing machine. These leaders will each teach eight 4-H beginners in using the machine. Thank you leaders for helping make the 4-H clothing program in Ouachita parish. Leaders who took part were: Mrs. E. W. Earl, Colony; Mrs. James B. Terrel, McGuire; Mrs. H. C. Deil, Lamkin; Mrs. Hilton Tolbird, McGuire; Mrs. T. R. Wright, Woodlawn; Mrs. E. E. White, Lakeview; Mrs. E. D. McGrew, Lakeview.

More About Sewing

For those of you who dislike working the eyelet for your belts there is a new attachment on the market now that is called an eyelet template and is used with your buttonhole attachment. Just another step in helping homemakers make a better job of dressmaking.

Dental Check Up

I had a communication last week from Mrs. Abington, our family life and health specialist, of which I think you will be interested. A recent study showed that dentists spend 5 times more time on patients who go for treatments only. Therefore, those who go for regular check ups pay less for dental bills and endure less suffering. The study showed that the average 3 year old has stained teeth and 3 cavities. He needs fillings, an application of sodium flouride and a lesson in proper brushing. The average 9 year old has stained teeth, 4 cavities and one abscessed tooth. The average 13 year old who has not had regular dental care has stained teeth, 5 cavities, one abscessed tooth and one missing tooth.

The 38 year old mother has an average of 3 cavities, five missing teeth and 2 that need extracting. The average man of 42 without the regular check up habit, has 2 cavities and 10 missing teeth. He needs seven extractions, one filling and one gold inlay and a gum treatment, the study showed.

A THOUGHT — The past cannot be changed, the future is still in your power.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

By MARY M. JARDINE

One of north Louisiana's outstanding gardeners, Mrs. W. E. Conger, Arcadia, recently gave a wonderful talk on iris twelve months of the year. For those of you who were unable to attend the lecture I am passing along my notes. Most of the iris mentioned today are available from area iris growers and nursery men.

In January we have the native iris stylosa Alba, a low and beautiful white flower which is lovely planted in the rock garden. The dwarf blue is especially lovely by gray rocks. A new variety is Carl Starker which is a delightful pink. Another bloomer at this time is Iris Reticulata. This is a handsome violet-flowered early spring bulb. When reticulata finishes blooming in Louisiana it should be potted up and placed in the shade (under the house) and allowed to dry out. Replant in late fall.

In March we have the Dutch iris, they bloom over a period of six weeks. The first to bloom is Wedgewood Blue, Blue Horizon, King of the Blue. Many other fine varieties are listed in reliable catalogs. These bloom with the azaleas and make a very beautiful contrast, especially the yellow ones, as yellow is the heart of the garden. Native yellow jasmine vine to plant with azaleas is a nice complement to the azaleas and relieves the monotony of the color scheme. The lovely iris Cristate blooms in March. It could be considered as a ground cover as it is dwarf. Nice for borders with azaleas, and will grow literally on top of rocks. This is very pretty when planted with ajuga, a blue flowering ground cover. Iris Verna is the next of the low growing types. It comes from the piney wet woods, so give it a moist place.

Bearded Iris

April is the month for bearded iris and there are many fine varieties available locally that do well in this section. Note! Bearded iris should never be mulched.

The Louisiana native iris begin to bloom in April and continue into May. This is a good time to mulch all native iris. The Society for Louisiana irises is seeking to improve on our native beauties. Hybridizers are striving for the following desirable characteristics: Shorter rhizomes, floriferousness, wider floral parts, those that hold water in the center, and overlapping petals. Excellent examples to date are Dixie Deb, Bayou Glory, La Reve and Caroginia.

Also blooming in April is the Spuria iris which is often mistaken for native iris, but is not. This has tall stems and good foliage. The form resembles the Dutch Iris. They have three or four pairs of flowers to each stalk instead of one. Two good varieties are Fairy and Wadi-Zem-Zem, a large creamy yellow. There are many new varieties listed in the catalogs. These like plenty of water.

Native Iris

The four species of Louisiana Native Iris from which our fine hybrids derive are: 1. tall blue giganticaerulea, blooming along the coast, 2. russet fulva, found in North Louisiana, 3. The low foliosa, mostly blues and white and a yellow sport, found along the Mississippi River. The giant Abbeville reds from which the magnificent Haile Selassie has been developed. Blooming now in many north Louisiana gardens is the lovely Cameron Blue which makes an excellent cut flower.

Iris virginica not a true native but included in this group is distinguished by tall dark green foliage which has a decided midrib. This characteristic is not found in any other Louisiana native iris. This has a yellow bloom and grows well in water. Suitable for a bayou bank or low pasture. Also in this class is Calcasieu White. These multiply very rapidly and should be given a lot of space. Do not plant near your fine Louisiana iris as the virginica will crowd them out. In April the graceful Siberian iris bloom also, these like moist soil and the intriguing Japanese roof iris (tectorum, which is lavender.

In May we have the dwarf foliosas with a color range from blue shades to white. In June we have the Japanese iris (kaempferi). The flowers are almost flat, measure four to twelve inches in diameter and are unbelievably feminine looking, soft, fluffy, billowing like clouds of beautiful costly silk. The Japanese spent five hundred years hybridizing these flowers and more recently American breeders have given us the magnificent Japanese iris of today. They require good solid on the acid side rich in organic matter such as barnyard fertilizer or leaf mold, plus plenty of water during the pre-bloom season.

During July and August and September we have the Vesper iris. These can easily be grown from seed and treated as a biennial. The true name is dichotoma. Color is cornflower blue. There are several varieties of fall blooming bearded iris. A beautiful yellow one is Autumn Queen. Southland, which blooms in spring is another. These iris continue to bloom until the stylosas begin again in January.

Jan De Graf

On display at the Garden Center this week was a beautiful Jan de Graf hybrid lily "Enchantment" grown by Mrs. R. R. Piggott, West Monroe. There are 18 blooms on the stalk. They open three or four at a time and stay fresh for a week or ten days. The color is a nasturtium orange-red.

Also on display is a branch of the Shadbush or service berry that Lanier Hunt mentions in his column. We have it in our garden in the shrub form and it is planted as a hedge about six feet high. The rosy purple juicy berries, almost like tiny apples, are delicious in pies if you can beat the birds to the bush. A fairyland of white blooms in the early spring, as the flowers open in advance of the unfolding of the leaves. This is a wonderful shrub to plant if you want to invite the birds to your garden.

Mulch Secret Of Gardener's Green Thumb

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

CHAPPAQUA, N. Y. — The famous old gardener, the one whose perennial beds and mass plantings of annuals were the collective dream of the local garden club, had died. He had told his heirs that he had put down his precious secret in manuscript form, and that it would be revealed only upon his demise.

When other gardens were drooping from lack of water, Uncle Henry's was rich and green. His vegetables were always bigger and tasted better. His flowers were larger, smelled nicer, their colors more vibrant. When other gardeners were hoeing and slaving, Uncle Henry sat in the shade of the great mulberry tree, watching birds and reading Thoreau.

What was Uncle Henry's secret? The heirs were sure the world would pay a lot of money to share it. Finally, from Uncle Henry's safe deposit box an envelope marked "Garden Secret" was produced. The heirs held their breath as the envelope was opened. A single slip of paper was removed. It contained but a single word: MULCH.

The heirs had a right to be disappointed — mulching isn't that much of a secret any more. It is, however, a wonderful aid and worksaver.

There are many different materials which can and are used as mulchs, which are one or another of the materials spread on the soil around growing plants to keep down weeds, hold moisture in the soil and sometimes to add to the fertility or to improve the condition of the earth.

Peat moss, buckwheat hulls, tobacco stems, saw dust, leaves, grass clippings — all these are widely used as mulches, first spread upon the ground and later dug into the soil to decay and improve it. Salt hay and straw are often used too, but not to be dug into the soil later.

Recently manufacturers have been putting out polyethylene plastic in long black strips which has been with great success by commercial growers to cover the ground, putting the plants through slits in the strips. The opaque plastic excludes sunshine from the soil and prohibits weeds, and the cover conserves moisture. Recently it has been put on the market for the benefit of home gardeners.

Sets Time Table For Flower Trees That Bloom Early

The home owner can set his own time - table for flowering trees that will bloom from early Spring right through the summer. Early flowering kinds, like dogwood, Japanese cherry, redbud and crabapple are justly popular. Drawback here is they show their beauty in spring when nature is most lavish.

Tree floral displays can be arranged to brighten the midsummer and early fall landscape, too.

Week - end gardeners who have the planting space and a hankering for a progression of arboreal blooms can achieve attractive results.

For early June, there is the Japanese dogwood (Cornus kousa), with creamy white flowers that bloom for several weeks after those of our native dogwood. For mid-June, the Amur lilac (Syringa amurensis), a small spreading tree or a large shrub, also offers a profusion of fine, creamy white blooms. Later in the summer, the panicled goldenraintree (Koelreuteria paniculata) is a color spectacle all its own. It puts out upright clusters of yellow flowers and follows these with attractive yellowish to brown seed clusters.

A late summer charmer is the Japanese pagodatree (Sophora japonica), with conspicuous white pealike flowers. For late summer or early fall, the versatile Franklinia tree (alatamaha) offers large waxy white flowers with gold centers and later displays brilliant orange - red autumn foliage, often coinciding with the last blooms.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Along with the damage it did, the cold winter we had this year had some beneficial results. If you recall now, those balmy little warm spells we usually have from January on did not occur this year. The result was that buds on tree and shrubs remained dormant and came out on many plants "late" after all danger of frost. As a consequence, we have had the most wonderful rose season anyone ever remembers. The flowering shrubs have been heavy with bloom and the growth on everything is lush indeed.

Opportunity

This is your big opportunity to develop some fine large rose bushes. Ordinarily roses are cut back from one to five inches between Christmas and Easter nearly every year. Warm spells followed by freezes take off a few inches at a time till the bushes are smaller than they started off in the fall. This year, however, they were not damaged, so we have the bushes we started off with last fall. With a little pruning, we can build up some fine bushes between now and the autumn.

Blue Flowered Shrub

A big surprise of the cold winter's results is that vitex bushes were not killed to the ground. These powder blue flowers are some of the finest plants we can grow. They can be kept down to a small shrub by cutting them to the ground or at least way back each year, or they can be allowed to grow into very large shrubs. Vitex will usually bloom just once—along with the orange daylilies—when they are not cut back. Bushes that are cut back after the first bloom will usually flower again if they are given a good feeding at the time they are pruned. In some gardens, large specimens are left alone to bloom once a year and the pruned ones are counted upon for their spikes of blue - lavender off and on all summer.

There is a pink and a white form of vitex. If you plant seeds of this shrub, you will get a small percentage of pink ones and white ones along with the blue forms. They grow quickly from seeds and can be grown in the garden to flower in a row till you see them bloom. Then you can use the brightest colors and burn up the dingy ones.

Do not be afraid to cut large vitex bushes back to the large trunks. They will burst out with new growth and renew themselves at once. Vitex is our largest blue-flowered summer shrub and can be used with telling effect in Southern gardens. You can move it around at almost any time just by cutting it way back and keeping the new growth shaded when it starts out again.

THE HOME SHIFT

Sees More Palms In South Louisiana

By MILDRED SWIFT

It's interesting to note the landscaping in different cities. I drove around Baton Rouge a number of times to make a comparison. Home owners there are taking to the "new" look faster than we in north Louisiana. I saw few beds, and those used were straight, in most cases.

More Ideas

Bottle brush is used lots in the capital city. We had an idea that this plant would not survive our winters. The pointed leaf variety does well here, though. One planting I noticed used five bottle brush with the purple leaf plum on the same side of the garden. The roof of the house was the same color as the plum, the bottle brush bloom was a brighter red. By the way — there's a new yellow blooming bottle brush the nurseries will have in a few years. Also a ground cover bottle brush whose blooms are red.

Also, the gardeners in Baton Rouge use more palms — not many of the palmetto type except for large buildings, but lots of the drooping frond types. The nurseries here carry the variety that will stand our winters. Palms get away from the monotony of too many leafy plants.

Also, the yucca was extensively used, and believe me when you go into this family you begin to run into difficulties. There are so many different varieties. For small homes the bear grass was used in groups of three. The pointed foliage of this plant grows close to the ground and sends up a spectacular white bloom on a long stalk.

These plants grow native in pastures in north Louisiana. If you start to dig one you'll pretty soon decide the root grows straight through the earth and must come out in China.

The Spanish dagger was stripped in contemporary fashion. This is the yucca that grows very tall, some as high as ten feet. The landscape people were stripping all but about the top foot of foliage. That left th large green trunk which was very beautiful. The young plants were the only ones I noticed stripped.

I've told you before about the junipers used in south Louisiana, stripped of all foliage except at the end of each branch. When you find an old plant with gnarled old limbs this is an unusual and interesting treatment.

Garden Jobs

The nurseries still have plenty of imperial candle trees. They're in buckets and this is a good time to plant. These tropical plants are not going to do any growing until the weather gets warmer, anyhow. The nights are too cool, yet.

The same is true of banana plants and elephant ears. Fire dragon plants are available. Mr. Roach says this is the poor man's croton. The plant grows about two feet tall, is red and looks like the croton.

croton.

You can still plant caladiums. Try some of the strap varieties with long pointed leaves and gorgeous colors.

Plants of Joseph's coat of all colors are available. This little plant gives color to the summer garden. It it not too late to plant hibiscus.

Rose Troubles

Had you noticed that gardeners who take their roses seriously seem to be spraying all the time? The most serious threat to roses is black spot and it seems we're talking about that all the time.

Black spot is a fungus disease so say our Extension Specialists. The organism gets into the tissues of the plant and once there can't be ejected. An infected leaf will remain infected for its entire life.

The remedy is to prevent this black spot. It's important to spray roses immediately after every rain, because the rain tends to wash the fungicide off and it must be there at all times to do a job of prevention. There are a number of effective controls on the market. Captan seems to be a favorite. Others are manzate and Dithane Z-78. All three are used, 1 tablespoon to a gallon of water.

Sulphur was once popular, but it turns the foliage in hot weather and is acid in reaction. Continuous use causes the soil to become too acid. Sulphur seems to be the best material for the control of mildew. Remember that this disease thrives best in damp, dark places. Therefore, some sun is needed and plants should not be crowded. Call 3-2251 for a copy of the rose bulletin.

St. Augustine Trouble

Man! and didn't we have them last year. I saw entire lawns turn brown and die. The trouble was either brown patch or chinch bug. They're easily distinguished because brown patch shows up in a brown circle in the lawn while the chinch bug follows no definite pattern, but just kills the grass over entire areas.

While in Baton Rouge I talked to Donald Spurlock, Extension horticulturist, about their new recommendation for brown patch. The chemical is terrachlor. Several seed stores are carrying this. Spurlock said use one pound of wettable 75 per cent terrachlor in 25 gallons of water. This covers, 1,000 square feet. The specialist said if we are to expect best results, the entire lawn must be sprayed. If you had brown patch troubles last year, be sure to spray at once.

WIVES

Enjoy Safer Outdoor Week - Ends This Summer

One way to help cut down on the appalling rate of summer week-end traffic accidents, is to plan back-yard supper parties.

Most wives think outdoor entertaining is more trouble than indoor entertaining. Actually, it needn't be because such jobs as lawn-mowing and watering, flower bed cleanup, etc., can be delegated to various members of the family. Odds are, Dad will volunteer for the barbecuing job—so you spend a minimum of time slaving over that hot stove—and more time with your guests. The family can be quickly tempted into "at-home" picnics if you mention one of these mouth-watering menus: Plantation-barbecued chicken with tossed green salad and roast corn-on-the-cob; or barbecued pork chops with scalloped corn and tomatoes; or the more orthodox barbecued steaks, spareribs or franks.

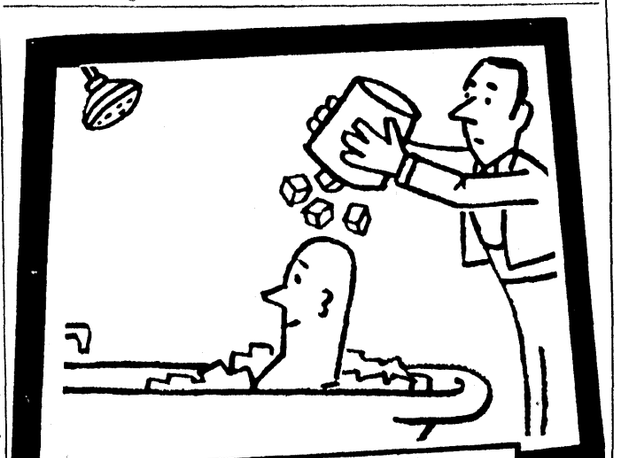

You can tell your guests when you invite them, that they won't be bothered by a single ant or fly at your picnic! This is the reason most people shy away from outdoor parties . . . fighting off insects spoils all the fun.

But if you volunteer to use ORTHO Fly Killer Dry Bait as your part of the yard preparation — you get off with an easy five-minute chore. You can control house flies in the entire outdoor area with no more work than it takes to walk, and to shake the container as you would a salt shaker. There's no fussing with mixing, measuring or spraying, and this fly killer dry bait leaves no tell-tale odor. "Salting down" the patio and yard can be done well ahead of guest arrival time—and those innocent-looking granules of malathion-impregnated bait will keep house flies from bothering your party for hours on end.

Why not try this outdoor party idea? Pick up your supply of ORTHO Fly Killer Dry Bait today.

Neville Takes The Lead In Chemistry Course

By LEON MARX

While the rest of the nation observes the progress of Russian technology, bemoans the shortcomings of American education, and wonders what can be done about it, Monroyans suddenly find that their own Neville High School has been catapulted to the forefront of educational leadership through an idea, initiative and hard work.

Its course in advanced chemistry, sponsored by Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., and its reception and resulting effect by — and on — students and faculty members, has brought national recognition and acclaim to the school and the plan — which may provide the Democratic answer to the Communist challenge.

One of the most significant things is that the Neville-Olin plan antedates Sputnik — the bombshell which set off the current wave of criticism of the American public schools. The fact that the plan originated last summer indicates that both local school and industry officials were among the earliest to recognize a need, and they provided for it before the current hysteria over American school deficiencies even began.

As the school year enters its final week, Neville pauses to evaluate this experiment in education which has brought much national publicity, recognition and acclaim to the schol

Principal Paul J. Neal says the Neville program has been an unqualified success.

Constructive Analysis

"It is gratifying to note that the public has been making a constructive critical analysis of its public schools. It is also worthwhile to note that of the 16 key scientists who produced America's first satellite at the California Institute of Technology 15 were products of America's public school systems. We will have a wholesome situation in our schools as long as our motto is 'Let's make the best school better'. It was in this spirit that we started our special chemistry project to develop a better technique of teaching the gifted students than we have had in the past.

"One of the by-products of this year's experiment has been the permeation of the entire student body with the thought of making our best efforts better. In this respect all students — the slow and the average — have benefitted as well as the gifted from our project.

William F. Leonard, director of Corporate Relations Services for Olin Mathieson, summed up the corporation's views of the results in a talk recently before the Research Managers Conference at Princeton, N. J. He said:

"From recent interviews with students, parents, the school principal, the superintendent of schools, members of the school board and local citizens in the . . . Monroe area, the following results from the operation of this plan have been noted:

(1) A new stimulus and respect for education in general.

(2) Promotion of closer ties in the Monroe area between industry and education.

(3) Direct support for school facilities. (The teacher secured an additional $3,000 for a new laboratory.)

(4) Scholarship achievement is now as popular among students there as athletic leadership.

(5) Scholarships have been secured for a number of students."

Report Record

School officials report quite a record for obtaining scholarships by members of the advanced chemistry class. Out of 16 seniors enrolled in the classes, all are going to college. Over half have been granted scholarships by some of the nation's leading colleges and universities.

Lea Hale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lealis Hale, 307 Erin Ave., will study Industrial Engineering at Cornell University on a $1,250 yearly grant.

King Trousdale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Trousdale, Jr., 206 Country Club, has a $1,500-per-year scholarship to Hollins College, Va. She will study liberal arts.

Bill Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Houston Fuller, 409 Lakeshore Drive, has been awarded a $900-a-year scholarship to Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh, Pa. He will major in Chemical Engineering.

Warren F. Taylor Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren F. Taylor, 1223 Fairview, will study physics at Tulane on a $600 annual grant.

Other students who have already been awarded scholarships, the colleges they will attend, and courses they will take, are:

Don Andrews, Tulane, $450, electrical engineering; Martha Gilleland, all expenses (legislative and Masonic Fund), Louisiana Tech, chemistry; Lyle Ferguson, Tulane, tuition, electronics; Jaroy Weber, La. College (Pineville), half-tuition, pre-med; Dickie Wright, Rice Institute; free tuition, chemical engineering.

Originated Idea

The program originated with an idea by an official of Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., Robert H. Evans, vice president and general manager of the Forest Products Division.

Evans worked out the unique plan with school officials Van D. Odom, superintendent, Paul J. Neal, Neville principal, and the city school board, and Olin Mathieson gave $10,000 to Neville High School to put it into effect.

One of the nation's outstanding teachers of chemistry was located in Pennsylvania and employed for the job. He is Lon H. Colborn, who taught chemistry at Taylor-Allderdice High School in Pittsburgh for many years before he voluntarily retired there to accept the challenge in Monroe.

Colborn's record had established him as a national figure before he took the present position, which has brought him further and much-deserved recognition. He holds a B.S. degree in chemical engineering from Pitt, and an M.S. degree in chemistry from Wisconsin. In addition he holds a unique distinction of being the only teacher, and one of only 14 persons, to ever receive an honorary degree from the famed Carnegie Tech in the history of the widely-acclaimed school. He is the only one to have received an honorary master's degree from that institution.

No finer tribute could be paid Colborn than that offered by President John C. Warner in making the conferral of the honorary degree at Carnegie Tech: "Teacher of youth, stimulator of talented minds, and intellectual father of engineers and scientists."

Basic Philosophy

Colborn's basic philosophy is to teach his pupils to think. Memorizing is a waste of time, he says. "We teach with the aim of giving the youth something to think about. We think memorizing the bush less important than learning something around the bush. The dictionary defines teaching as imparting knowledge. That should be the first aim of a teacher," Colborn says.

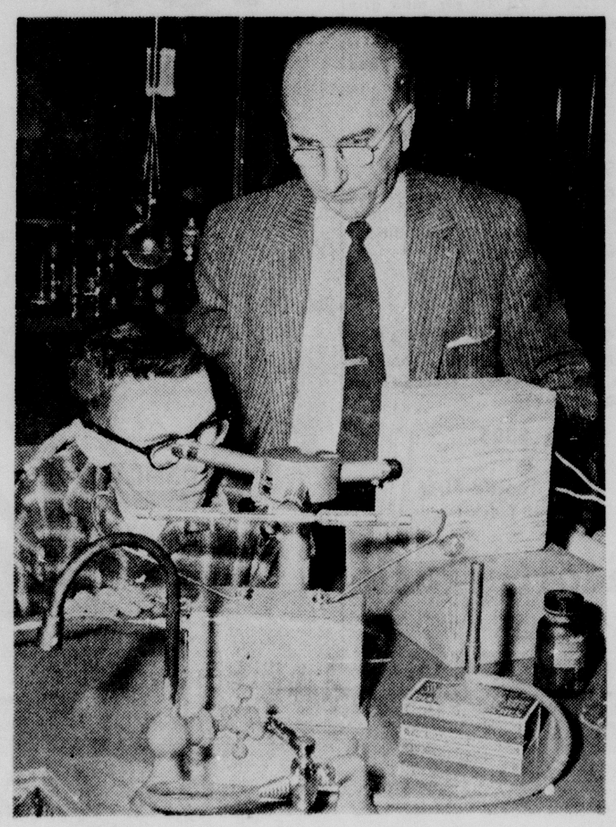

In his classroom, Colborn does considerable lecturing, maintaining free access to the question and answer at any time. Note-taking during the class periods is stressed. Many demonstrations are given — not to entertain — but to demonstrate scientific principles. Classes are twice the usual length, and each pupil is expected to spend at least an equal time — two hours — in reading on the subject of chemistry each night.

As for Colborn's record at the Pittsburgh school, it is exceptional. He has kept records of the students he taught, and followed them throughout their careers. Former students have attended 75 colleges and universities in the nation. Most attended Pitt and Carnegie Tech in their home city of Pittsburgh. Next highest was at Harvard, about six per cent. Some attended foreign schools: two Rhodes scholars at Oxford, a Marshall scholar at the University of Birmingham. Others enrolled at the universities of Paris, Zurich, Prague, Leyden, Oslo and Kaiser Wilhelm Institute to do graduate work. The special class in Pittsburgh has produced 50 Ph.D.'s, 100 engineers, and more than 50 MD's. Among them are many college professors and atomic scientists. Over all, 95 per cent of the special class has gone to college.

Olin Mathieson will continue the grant of $10,000 for the next school year. It will be divided equally between Neville High School and West Monroe, with the advanced chemistry class being continued at Neville, and an advanced physics class being offered at West Monroe High School. Both classes are open to qualified students from all of the Twin Cities' high schools.

Fire For Moon Or Moscow

By MICHAEL GREHL
Memphis Commercial Appeal

TULLAHOMA, Tenn. (AP)—This is where they shoot for the moon or Moscow.

From the ruins of an abandoned infantry camp, engineers are developing missiles for the push button war. They're also working on the vehicles that already have shot aloft the nation's first earth satellites, may later hit the moon.

At the Arnold Engineering Development Center, former site of Camp Forrest, the Air Force's Air Research and Development Command has established a vast network of wind tunnels to test missiles and aircraft. Engineers create speeds of more than 32,000 miles an hour and altitudes of 10,000 feet and up. They create temperatures hotter than the sun. All this within steel chambers where the missiles never leave the ground.

A new wind tunnel, aptly named Hotshot II, simulates speed greater than that needed to overcome the earth's gravity and escape to the moon or beyond. The nation does not have a vehicle that can move nine miles a second, but it does have the facility to test it. It can build a temperature of 40,000 degrees within test cells, far greater than the average missile can expect to encounter—now.

The nation's latest missile can get a true sampling of the frictions, temperature changes, atmospheric pressures and other stresses of outer space without ever leaving Tennessee.

Tunnel Hotshot II, creates the most extreme speeds and temperatures. No fan of any size can move air that fast. So Hotshot uses two chambers, one a vacuum and the other with air under extreme pressure. A million volt electrical charge explodes the pressurized air, causing it to expand. The rushing air blasts through a plastic seal into the vacuum chamber with a nozzle which helps beef up the speed. Duration is only a tenth of a second. That's all the heavily instrumented model in the chamber needs to record the effects.

Tullahoma has a series of wind tunnels with test sections from 12 inches across to 16 feet. Each does a different job. Speeds of flight can be varied in some test cells by opening and closing huge nozzles through which the air rushes against the model. The position of the model can be changed to simulate takeoff, level flight and landing.

The engine of a missile or aircraft can be tested in the same way. Later, in a propulsion wind tunnel, the engine may be mated with the wing or pod that will carry it; or perhaps the entire vehicle, including rocket engine.

Both the Titan and Atlas intercontinental ballistic missiles may owe their airborne lives to research at Tullahoma. Titan is the Air Force missile which should be flown this year. Its maker says it can easily hit the moon.

The Tullahoma center is dedicated to improving the quality of weapons systems in the shortest time without loss of life. Wind tunnels cannot completely replace actual test flights, but a mass of information can be gathered before the finished product is ready to fly and later more facts can be made available without endangering pilots.

BROOKLYN BRIDGE

Gracious Granite Lady Is 75 Years Old Today

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The Brooklyn Bridge, the gracious granite lady of the East River, is 75 years old Sunday. But she still is young enough to turn the hearts of poets and painters and all who thrill to the tale of two cities she made into one.

She hasn't been sold to anyone in years now, and nobody bothers any more to commit suicide from her trembling deck or jump off, as Steve Brodie may or may not have done, just for the sheer joy of jumping.

Skyscrapers and smoke stacks have robbed her of her No. 1 spot on the skyline, and the old elevated trains and trolley cars that for years made her a sightseeing favorite have rumbled off to the junkyard. So have the high wheeled bicycles and hansom cabs.

The wonder of her size and capacity has long worn off, too. For 20 years the biggest bridge in the world, the tallest, the longest and the most heavily traveled, she now barely rates a mention in the encyclopedias.

Six sister bridges, all newer and bigger, span the same river—the river they said never could be bridged—and subway and vehicle tunnels help do the job she was built to do.

Time has been fickle, but her lovers have been true.

To New Yorkers, and especially to Brooklynites, she remains affectionately The Bridge, a gray, wistful lady who manages somehow to look fresh and pretty in the daylight, with the sunlight slanting through her tangled hair and bewitching by night, whether arching ramp lights dance on the dark waters and the moon weaves shadows on her massive Gothic towers.

Hart Crane and a whole anthology of poets never seemed to tire of singing to her. From all over the world artists like Raoul Dufy and Albert Gleizes came to capture her changing moods on canvas. Playwright Maxwell Anderson and stage designer Norman Bel Geddes practically routed her from her river bed to set the mood and dominate the theme of their somber classic "Winterset." Dr. D. B. Steinman, greatest of the modern bridge builders, grew up in its shadow and found inspiration for his life work.

Today a whole new colony of artists and writers has suddenly appeared in the now fashionable, sloping streets of Brooklyn Heights, where once lived the hardy men who "spat black" to proclaim to the world that they courted death in a carbon-lit underwater vault while laying the foundation of the great bridge.

The engineers' adage "death builds bridges" seemed to haunt the men who designed and built what was to be called first the New York Bridge, then the East River Bridge and the New York & Brooklyn Bridge, but finally and simply the Brooklyn Bridge.

First to go was John Roebling, the immigrant genius who left his native Germany to found a colony at Saxonburg, Pa., invented the iron railroad coach, the steam plow and iron and later steel cable, and hung the first suspension bridges over Niagara Falls, the Allegheny River and the Ohio River.

Roebling first made up his mind to bridge the East River in 1852 while angrily pacing the deck of a ferry marooned for five hours in an ice jam. The bridge eventually drove most of the 20 competing ferry companies out of business, but they had their revenge in advance.

On a winter day in 1869 Roebling climbed a piling of the Fulton Ferry to survey the site of his Brooklyn anchorage. He was busy peeking through the transit when an incoming ferry rammed the slip, crushing his foot. Two toes were amputated, but tetanus set in and in two weeks he was dead.

The bridge was barely off the drawing board. The 13-year task of finishing it fell to his 32-year-old son, Washington, who lived to a ripe old age but never set foot on it. Directing foundation work in a compressed air chamber on the Manhattan side of the river in 1872, he was striken with caisson disease—the "bends" to sandhogs—and left a hopeless cripple for life.

Partially blind and deaf, barely able to talk, racked with nervous twitches and muscular spasms, young Roebling conducted the work by writing and drawing detailed instructions for the crews, tutored his wife Emily in higher mathematics and engineering to do his inspections and see that his orders were carried out. He kept daily watch on the progress through field glasses from an Upper Bay window of his home on Columbia Heights in Brooklyn, the same house that poet Hart Crane later occupied.

Exhibitionists and crackpots claimed Brooklyn Bridge as their personal playground as soon as a swaying, four-foot wide, wooden catwalk was strung between the anchorages and up over the towers. Before the demand became so heavy that it interfered with Construction, Master Mechanic E. F. Farrington handed out on the average 70 passes a day to brave Lotharios intent on impressing their lady friends by negotiating the giddy walkway. Some got halfway across, collapsed in fright and had to be dragged back. Others blithely hopped and skipped across, executing a bit of a jog en route. A few girls even attempted the crossing, one in rebuke to a boyfriend who was scared to try.

Opening day in 1883 brought out a million spectators, dozens of bands, a gaily pennanted flotilla that included five battleships of the North Atlantic Squadron, a $5,000 display of fireworks, booming salutes from the forts on Governors Island and the Battery, and a day long serenade of fog horns, boat whistles and sirens.

President Chester A. Arthur, Gov. Grover Cleveland, New York Mayor Franklin Edson and Brooklyn Mayor Seth Low led the first walk across and proceeded to Brooklyn Heights to pay their respects to the invalid genius and his courageous wife.

Six days after the opening, tragedy struck again. It was Memorial Day and 10,000 took advantage of the warm weather to stroll Roebling's unique raised center promenade. A woman tripped and fell on a stairway at the same moment that a detachment of soldiers was marching across to a parade. "The bridge is falling," someone hysterically shouted, echoing the then universal belief that the tread of marching feet can unhinge a suspension bridge. In the resulting panic, 12 were trampled to death and 40 injured.

The compulsion to jump off the bridge afflicted people long before the opening. Robert Donaldson tried three times in 1882 but was always restrained by workmen.

Robert E. Odlum, a Washington, D.C., swimming coach, dove off on May 19, 1885, in an attempt to raise money for a swimming pool project. He died almost instantly.

Newsboy Steve Brodie gained lasting fame as the first man to make the jump and live, but in later years the suspicion grew that a pal tossed a weight off the bridge while Brodie swam ashore from a short distance out.

Larry Donovan, a 24-year-old pressman on the Police Gazette, made the jump successfully in 1886. He died some years later in a jump off London Bridge.

After that, many tried. Some made it, most didn't. When higher and longer bridges came along, the suicides and adventurers took their business elsewhere.

Today the bridge is hale and hardy as ever, with the original four cables still intact. Engineers figure it is good for at least another 75 years and maybe 100 or more after that.

213 Seniors To Graduate At La. Tech

RUSTON (Special) — Graduating seniors at Louisiana Tech will be putting the finishing touches to their college careers during the next few days.

Those exempt from final examinations by reason of good grades have the privilege of leaving the campus at noon on Monday. Other candidates for degrees will take their finals from Monday afternoon through Thursday noon.

The list of graduates totals 213 seniors, according to the registrar's office.

Baccalaureate services will be held in Howard Auditorium at 8 p.m. Sunday, June 1, with the sermon to be delivered by Dr. Truman Aldredge, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Minden.

Commencement exercises will be held at 10 a.m. on Monday, June 2, with an alumnus of the college returning to give the address. He is Milton M. Harrison, dean of the law school of Louisiana State University.

Dr. Aldredge is a graduate of East Texas State College in commerce. He received the degree of master of theology from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth. Three years ago, Howard Payne of Brownwood, Tex., conferred upon him the degree of doctor of divinity.

Dean Harrison received his B. A. degree from Louisiana Tech and his law degree from LSU. He served as assistant to the president of LSU for seven years before being appointed law dean last summer.

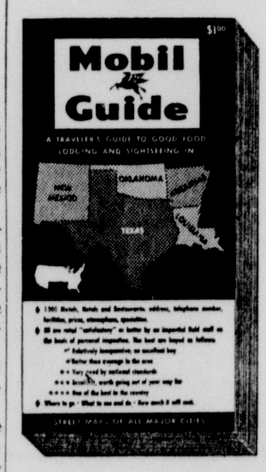

ADVICE ON STEPS

AMES, Iowa — (UP) — Uneven steps and steps that are out of proportion are the leading reasons for falls in the home, according to Norval Wardle, extension safety specialist at Iowa State College. A prime rule for safe stairways is to have a clear walkway the full length of each tread, Wardle said. Stairways of more than three steps need handrails.

BRIDGE OFFER

NEWFANE, Vt.— (UP) —Newfane selectmen voted to give the old covered bridge spanning Smith's Brook to anyone who would cart it away. They decided the structure had outlived its usefulness. It will be replaced with a steel and concrete bridge costing $40,000.

WITH COMMUNISTS

U. S. Capitalist Claims Cooperation Necessary

EDITOR'S NOTE — One of America's wealthiest capitalists says cooperation with Communists is necessary to avoid mass destruction. He backs up his belief with conferences and cash. Here's the story of the man and his method for international goodwill.

By RICHARD H. SMITH

CLEVELAND (AP) — Man's mind devised the thermonuclear bomb, and man's mind can devise a way to avoid destroying himself with that bomb.

Because he believes this, Cyrus Stephen Eaton has dipped into his millions to sponsor two international conferences of nuclear scientists and to begin preparations for a third, probably in Austria this September.

For white-haired, pink-cheeked Eaton, whose holdings in railroad, shipping, paint, rubber and electric power industries make him one of America's wealthiest men, these conferences are another form of investment—an investment in the survival of world civilization.

Scientists of all nations, including the Soviet bloc, are invited. Eaton says he was deeply impressed by the earnestness of the participants from Russia and Communist China.

And in a headline-producing television interview earlier this month, Eaton said that while the Soviet and Chinese regimes had "very objectionable qualities" there was nothing "we can do to make them give up Communism or to overthrow them."

Saying he was sure "any intelligent Russian" had given up the notion that the United States could ever become Communist, the financier blamed America for the cold war and criticized the FBI as "one of the scores of agencies in the United States engaged in . . . snooping, in informing, in creeping up on people."

The United States threatened to become a police state, Eaton said.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover declined to comment on the interview beyond calling the statements about the FBI vicious and untrue.

The soft-spoken and courtly Eaton spent his 74th birthday last December on a honeymoon. His bride was Mrs. Anne Kinder Jones a 35-year-old divorcee who is confined to a wheelchair by polio suffered 11 years ago. Eaton says they share "a great common interest in philosophy, history, poetry and literature."

He has entertained many world-famous people in the United States, visited many others abroad. His travels include frequent trips to Scotland, where the family roots of his mother are in the Rosshire Highlands.

At Perth he buys stock each year for his herds of purebred and registered Scottish shorthorn cattle.

Destruction by thermonuclear missile is no abstract threat to Eaton. When he talks of children burned by some future bomb, he thinks of the 13 grandchildren on whom he dotes. When he visualizes skyscrapers and industry pulverized in a flash, he is including Terminal Tower, with his own luxurious offices on the 39th floor, and the industrial city of Cleveland below.

"If it comes, it would be best to be the first to go," he says. But it doesn't have to come, Eaton believes, if enough people can be induced to think and make the contacts that will enable mutual understanding to flow across national boundaries and wash out suspicion and hate. He intends the international conferences of nuclear scientists to promote such thought and understanding.

"The suggestion we have a meeting of scientists was made by Albert Einstein," Eaton said. "It grew out of his desire to have scientists stress how we will all go up in smoke and flame unless we find a way to turn away from war as an instrument of policy."

The first conference, inspired by the late Dr. Einstein and Bertrand Russell, British philosopher, educator and Nobel Prize winner, was held at Eaton's birthplace, Pugwash, Nova Scotia, last July. From it came a warning to governments of the world that misuse of nuclear energy could lead to annihilation of mankind.

"Those scientists went back home and issued findings to their governments, to fellow scientists and to the press," said Eaton. They were agreed, he added, "if nuclear warfare was ever indulged in, both aggressor and the defender would perish and the devastation would be unspeakable."

The second conference, held at picturesque Manoir St. Castin at Lac Beauport, Quebec, from March 31 to April 11, sought agreement on practical suggestions to diminish dangers inherent in the present atomic arms race.

Results of this second conference were not made public. The conclusions were intended for consideration of all the principal governments of the world, Eaton said, and it was felt the scientists would talk more freely.

There were 21 scientists from eight nations at the La Beauport meeting—seven from the United States, four from Great Britain, four from the Soviet Union, two from Canada and one each from Germany, France, Australia and Communist Chin.

"In general way," he went on, "it urges an immediate move on the part of governments to abandon some of their preconceived notions and give up some of their prejudices and deal in a spirit of compromise with the other man.

"It is now clear that Russia has more deadly weapons than we ever have been able to devise, and to antagonize Russia to a point where she turns those loose on us looks to this group to be unspeakable folly."

At next September's conference, said Eaton, "we will expect to go on record."

He adds, "The scientists take this view: Intelligent men ought no longer try to wage war, but to preserve peace.

"I am an optimist, and I believe we will find a way to do it."

The "horns" of the huge South American horned frog are actually the upper eyelids. They are flexible.

UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Two Press Associations Merge Into One: UP, INS

NEW YORK (UPI)—The United Press Associations and International News Service joined forces Saturday around the world in the creation of a single news agency named "United Press International."

This is the first dispatch of the news service which will embrace the largest number of newspapers and radio clients ever served simultaneously by an independently operated news and picture agency.

Agreements covering the consolidation of services were signed by both sides on May 16, and the announcement was delayed until the physical change over could be worked out.

Frank H. Bartholomew, of United Press, will be president of the new global agency, and Kingsbury Smith, of International News Service will be vice president and associate general manager.

The board will be enlarged by the addition of William Randolph Hearst Jr., editor-in-chief of the Hearst newspapers; J. D. Gortatowsky, chairman of the board of Hearst Consolidated Publications Inc.; and G. C. Markuson, vice president and treasurer of the Hearst Corporation.

Frank Bartholomew, president of United Press International, stated that:

"The consolidation of the two services will assure a stronger competitive news and pictorial-news report to newspapers, radio and television stations throughout the entire civilized world.

"Like the newspapers dependent upon us for news, ours will be a business organization, collecting and distributing one of the world's most perishable products, news. We believe private enterprise with a profit incentive is the best guaranty of objective coverage of world news, exactly as it is for the subsequent publishing of that news in the great independent newspapers of the world.

"The combining of the two services will guarantee broader and more efficient news and pictorial reporting on a world-wide basis.

"Economics was an important factor in the creation of the great new news network. Costs of covering the world news fronts have risen steadily with rapidly improving means of transmitting both news and pictures by leased wires and electronic processes."

Key personnel of INS will be retained and will reinforce the present UP staff, according to Earl J. Johnson, vice president and general news manager.

United Press was created in 1907 by E. W. Scripps to insure that at any time in the future any existing newspaper or any person seeking to start a newspaper could obtain an adequate national and international news service.

The INS was established in 1909 by William Randolph Hearst for reasons closely paralleling those motivating the organization of UP and since its inception has been noted for its news enterprise and exclusive feature coverage of important world-wide events.

Actual and intensive work on putting the complex global news systems of the two organizations into one effective transmission network has been under way since September of 1957. The plan was evolved by Frank H. Bartholomew and Leroy Keller from the United Press and J. D. Gortatowsky and Kingsbury Smith from the International News Service.

Union Reports Progressives Ahead In Race

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The International Typographical Union said Saturday an unofficial tabulation of incomplete vote totals showed all progressive party candidates ahead in election contests.

With nearly two-thirds of the expected vote total reported, Elmer Brown of New Hork had 29,562 to 24,426 for Howard C. Murray of Richmond, Va., for president of the ITU. The winner will succeed Woodruff Randolph of Chicago, head of the progressives.

Don Hurd of Oakland, Calif., candidate for re-election as secretary-treasurer, was leading the ticket with 32,782 to 20,919 for Francie E. Doherty of Providence, R. I.

The closest contest was that for second vice president between Sandy Beals of Vancouver, B. C., 26,856, and Glenn H. Hays of Detroit, 26,090.

The vote for first vice president showed John Pilch of Chicago with 28,769 and George Bowling of Los Angeles with 24,576.

Joe Bailey of San Francisco, seeking re-election as third vice president, led John L. Wilkin of New York, 30,617 to 22,563.

The official count will be made at ITU headquarters here May 31.

596 Seats At Stake In Italy

By JAMES M. LONG

ROME (AP) — Italian politicians rang doorbells Saturday for those individual votes could give this NATO nation a strong majority government or plunge it back into minority rule by coalition.

The Christian Democrats, who have ruled since the war, doubt the voting of the next two days will bring any change in the alignment of the current, shaky Parliament.

At stake are 596 seats in the Chamber of Deputies and 246 seats in the Senate. In 1953, the Christian Democrats won 262 seats in the Chamber and 110 in the Senate. A repeat performance seemed likely this time, leaving the Christian Democrats with the task of wooing back the disgruntled small center parties who deserted the coalition government in the past year. The center parties pulled out in disagreement over church-state issues and social reform plans.

While the Christian Democrats—backed by the Vatican—appeared doubtful of their chances for a clear majority, the nation's second strongest political force, the Kremlin-line Communists and the pro-Communist Socialists, also expressed strong doubt they could win.

Thus it seemed the center parties held the key to the next government. The question was whether the Christian Democrats will be able to woo them back.

For Italy's Western Allies, this election holds some importance.

The Communists and pro-Communist Socialists, while dreaming of no major victory, hope the balloting may weaken the Christian democrats in their already shaky hold on the government. This could endanger any prospect for missile bases in Italy and leave the country open to pressures for neutrality in East-West conflicts.

Communist boss Palmiro Togliatti, whose party won 142 Chamber and 51 Senate seats in the last election, expected big gains for his party. But he dared make no prediction of winning a majority.

About 30-million Italians are eligible to vote. Polls open at 6 a.m. Sunday and close at 2 p.m. Monday.

This year a new proportional representation law favors the smaller parties by spreading unneeded votes in any district into a national pool, so that no votes are lost. Most feel the new law will harm the Christian Democrats and the Communists.

It may mean the Christian Democrats will need close to a million votes more than the 11 million they got in 1953 to hold the 262 seats they now have in the chamber. Few think the party can muster that many votes. Even if it does, the 40 per cent in Parliament with no allies would leave the Christian Democrats with a government that could fall on any major issue.

Geckos seem to be able to defy gravity by traveling upside down on the ceilings of houses because they possess remarkable adhesive toe pads.

Opening lead: Deuce of diamonds.

There is a natural tendency in most declarers to attack the trump suit as soon as they obtain the lead. Such primary considerations as "how many possible losers have I?" and "how can I reduce them to the required number?" are ignored in favor of getting out trumps.

I have it on the authority of a colleague who happens to be an eminent psychiatrist that it has some relationship to the circumstance that they were frightened as children. They labor under the fear of having their mail addressed to some park bench, which they have been given to understand is the eventual abode of those who neglect to draw trumps.

Then there is another type — the player who sacrifices all in an effort to avoid the loss of a trump trick. Today's final contract of four hearts is exemplary.

The deuce of diamonds was opened and East's queen forced the ace. In his anxiety to win all the trump tricks, he crossed to dummy with the king of spades to take the heart finesse. This lost and another diamond lead permitted East to cash the king. A spade return drove out the ace before the club suit was established, and declarer was obliged to lose one trick in each suit.

This was negligence of the grossest kind. Declarer should have been willing to lose a heart, a diamond, and a club. If he avoided the loss of a spade trick he was home. He could ill afford to give up one of his spade stoppers in order to enjoy the luxury of a trump finesse, which might not win after all.

The best play at trick two was the ace of trumps, followed by another one. The opponents will presumably cash the diamond and attack the spades. But declarer, after exhausting the trumps, will have time to establish the club suit for discards before the second spade stopper is dislodged.

Neville Takes The Lead In Chemistry Course

By LEON MARX

While the rest of the nation observes the progress of Russian technology, bemoans the shortcomings of American education, and wonders what can be done about it, Monroyans suddenly find that their own Neville High School has been catapulted to the forefront of educational leadership through an idea, initiative and hard work.

Its course in advanced chemistry, sponsored by Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., and its reception and resulting effect by — and on — students and faculty members, has brought national recognition and acclaim to the school and the plan — which may provide the Democratic answer to the Communist challenge.

One of the most significant things is that the Neville-Olin plan antedates Sputnik — the bombshell which set off the current wave of criticism of the American public schools. The fact that the plan originated last summer indicates that both local school and industry officials were among the earliest to recognize a need, and they provided for it before the current hysteria over American school deficiencies even began.

As the school year enters its final week, Neville pauses to evaluate this experiment in education which has brought much national publicity, recognition and acclaim to the schol

Principal Paul J. Neal says the Neville program has been an unqualified success.

Constructive Analysis

"It is gratifying to note that the public has been making a constructive critical analysis of its public schools. It is also worthwhile to note that of the 16 key scientists who produced America's first satellite at the California Institute of Technology 15 were products of America's public school systems. We will have a wholesome situation in our schools as long as our motto is 'Le's make the best school better'. It was in this spirit that we started our special chemistry project to develop a better technique of teaching the gifted students than we have had in the past.

"One of the by-products of this year's experiment has been the permeation of the entire student body with the thought of making our best efforts better. In this respect all students — the slow and the average — have benefitted as well as the gifted from our project.

William F. Leonard, director of Corporate Relations Services for Olin Mathieson, summed up the corporation's views of the results in a talk recently before the Research Managers Conference at Princeton, N. J. He said:

"From recent interviews with students, parents, the school principal, the superintendent of schools, members of the school board and local citizens in the . . . Monroe area, the following results from the operation of this plan have been noted:

(1) A new stimulus and respect for education in general.

(2) Promotion of closer ties in the Monroe area between industry and education.

(3) Direct support for school facilities. (The teacher secured an additional $3,000 for a new laboratory.)

(4) Scholarship achievement is now as popular among students there as athletic leadership.

(5) Scholarships have been secured for a number of students."

Report Record

School officials report quite a record for obtaining scholarships by members of the advanced chemistry class. Out of 16 seniors enrolled in the classes, all are going to college. Over half have been granted scholarships by some of the nation's leading colleges and universities.

Lea Hale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lealis Hale, 307 Erin Ave., will study Industrial Engineering at Cornell University on a $1,250 yearly grant.

King Trousdale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Trousdale, Jr., 206 Country Club, has a $1,500-per-year scholarship to Hollins College, Va. She will study liberal arts.

Bill Ellis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Houston Fuller, 409 Lakeshore Drive, has been awarded a $900-a-year scholarship to Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh, Pa. He will major in Chemical Engineering.

Warren F. Taylor Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren F. Taylor, 1223 Fairview, will study physics at Tulane on a $600 annual grant.

Other students who have already been awarded scholarships, the colleges they will attend, and courses they will take, are:

Don Andrews, Tulane, $450, electrical engineering; Martha Gilleland, all expenses (legislative and Masonic Fund), Louisiana Tech, chemistry; Lyle Ferguson, Tulane, tuition, electronics; Jaroy Weber, La. College (Pineville), half-tuition, pre-med; Dickie Wright, Rice Institute; free tuition, chemical engineering.

Originated Idea

The program originated with an idea by an official of Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp., Robert H. Evans, vice president and general manager of the Forest Products Division.

Evans worked out the unique plan with school officials Van D. Odom, superintendent, Paul J. Neal, Neville principal, and the city school board, and Olin Mathieson gave $10,000 to Neville High School to put it into effect.

One of the nation's outstanding teachers of chemistry was located in Pennsylvania and employed for the job. He is Lon H. Colborn, who taught chemistry at Taylor-Allderdice High School in Pittsburgh for many years before he voluntarily retired there to accept the challenge in Monroe.

Colborn's record had established him as a national figure before he took the present position, which has brought him further and much-deserved recognition. He holds a B.S. degree in chemical engineering from Pitt, and an M.S. degree in chemistry from Wisconsin. In addition he holds a unique distinction of being the only teacher, and one of only 14 persons, to ever receive an honorary degree from the famed Carnegie Tech in the history of the widely-acclaimed school. He is the only one to have received an honorary master's degree from that institution.

No finer tribute could be paid Colborn than that offered by President John C. Warner in making the conferral of the honorary degree at Carnegie Tech: "Teacher of youth, stimulator of talented minds, and intellectual father of engineers and scientists."

Basic Philosophy

Colborn's basic philosophy is to teach his pupils to think. Memorizing is a waste of time, he says. "We teach with the aim of giving the youth something to think about. We think memorizing the bush less important than learning something around the bush. The dictionary defines teaching as imparting knowledge. That should be the first aim of a teacher," Colborn says.

In his classroom, Colborn does considerable lecturing, maintaining free access to the question and answer at any time. Note-taking during the class periods is stressed. Many demonstrations are given — not to entertain — but to demonstrate scientific principles. Classes are twice the usual length, and each pupil is expected to spend at least an equal time — two hours —in reading on the subject of chemistry each night.

As for Colborn's record at the Pittsburgh school, it is exceptional. He has kept records of the students he taught, and followed them throughout their careers. Former students have attended 75 colleges and universities in the nation. Most attended Pitt and Carnegie Tech in their home city of Pittsburgh. Next highest was at Harvard, about six per cent. Some attended foreign schools: two Rhodes scholars at Oxford, a Marshall scholar at the University of Birmingham. Others enrolled at the universities of Paris, Zurich, Prague, Leyden, Oslo and Kaiser Wilhelm Institute to do graduate work. The special class in Pittsburgh has produced 50 Ph.D.'s, 100 engineers, and more than 50 MD's. Among them are many college professors and atomic scientists. Over all, 95 per cent of the special class has gone to college.

Olin Mathieson will continue the grant of $10,000 for the next school year. It will be divided equally between Neville High School and West Monroe, with the advanced chemistry class being continued at Neville, and an advanced physics class being offered at West Monroe High School. Both classes are open to qualified students from all of the Twin Cities' high schools.

U. S. Capitalist Claims Cooperation Necessary

EDITOR'S NOTE — One of America's wealthiest capitalists says cooperation with Communists is necessary to avoid mass destruction. He backs up his belief with conferences and cash. Here's the story of the man and his method for international goodwill.

By RICHARD H. SMITH

CLEVELAND (AP) — Man's mind devised the thermonuclear bomb, and man's mind can devise a way to avoid destroying himself with that bomb.

Because he believes this, Cyrus Stephen Eaton has dipped into his millions to sponsor two international conferences of nuclear scientists and to begin preparations for a third, probably in Austria this September.

For white-haired, pink-cheeked Eaton, whose holdings in railroad, shipping, paint, rubber and electric power industries make him one of America's wealthiest men, these conferences are another form of investment—an investment in the survival of world civilization.

Scientists of all nations, including the Soviet bloc, are invited. Eaton says he was deeply impressed by the earnestness of the participants from Russia and Communist China.

And in a headline-producing television interview earlier this month, Eaton said that while the Soviet and Chinese regimes had "very objectionable qualities" there was nothing "we can do to make them give up Communism or to overthrow them."

Saying he was sure "any intelligent Russian" had given up the notion that the United States could ever become Communist, the financier blamed America for the cold war and criticized the FBI as "one of the scores of agencies in the United States engaged in . . . snooping, in informing, in creeping up on people."

The United States threatened to become a police state, Eaton said.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover declined to comment on the interview beyond calling the statements about the FBI vicious and untrue.

The soft-spoken and courtly Eaton spent his 74th birthday last December on a honeymoon. His bride was Mrs. Anne Kinder Jones a 35-year-old divorcee who is confined to a wheelchair by polio suffered 11 years ago. Eaton says they share "a great common interest in philosophy, history, poetry and literature."

He has entertained many world-famous people in the United States, visited many others abroad. His travels include frequent trips to Scotland, where the family roots of his mother are in the Rosshire Highlands.

At Perth he buys stock each year for his herds of purebred and registered Scottish shorthorn cattle.

Destruction by thermonuclear missile is no abstract threat to Eaton. When he talks of children burned by some future bomb, he thinks of the 13 grandchildren on whom he dotes. When he visualizes skyscrapers and industry pulverized in a flash, he is including Terminal Tower, with his own luxurious offices on the 39th floor, and the industrial city of Cleveland below.

"If it comes, it would be best to be the first to go," he says. But it doesn't have to come, Eaton believes, if enough people can be induced to think and make the contacts that will enable mutual understanding to flow across national boundaries and wash out suspicion and hate. He intends the international conferences of nuclear scientists to promote such thought and understanding.

"The suggestion we have a meeting of scientists was made by Albert Einstein," Eaton said. "It grew out of his desire to have scientists stress how we will all go up in smoke and flame unless we find a way to turn away from war as an instrument of policy."

The first conference, inspired by the late Dr. Einstein and Bertrand Russell, British philosopher, educator and Nobel Prize winner, was held at Eaton's birthplace, Pugwash, Nova Scotia, last July. From it came a warning to governments of the world that misuse of nuclear energy could lead to annihilation of mankind.

"Those scientists went back home and issued findings to their governments, to fellow scientists and to the press," said Eaton. They were agreed, he added, "if nuclear warfare was ever indulged in, both aggressor and the defender would perish and the devastation would be unspeakable."

The second conference, held at picturesque Manoir St. Castin at Lac Beauport, Quebec, from March 31 to April 11, sought agreement on practical suggestions to diminish dangers inherent in the present atomic arms race.

Results of this second conference were not made public. The conclusions were intended for consideration of all the principal governments of the world, Eaton said, and it was felt the scientists would talk more freely.

There were 21 scientists from eight nations at the Le Beauport meeting—seven from the United States, four from Great Britain, four from the Soviet Union, two from Canada and one each from Germany, France, Australia and Communist Chin.

"In general way," he went on, "it urges an immediate move on the part of governments to abandon some of their preconceived notions and give up some of their prejudices and deal in a spirit of compromise with the other man.

"It is now clear that Russia has more deadly weapons than we ever have been able to devise, and to antagonize Russia to a point where she turns those loose on us looks to this group to be unspeakable folly."

At next September's conference, said Eaton, "we will expect to go on record."

He adds, "The scientists take this view: Intelligent men ought no longer try to wage war, but to preserve peace.

"I am an optimist, and I believe we will find a way to do it."

Fire For Moon Or Moscow

By MICHAEL GREHL
Memphis Commercial Appeal

TULLAHOMA, Tenn. (AP)—This is where they shoot for the moon or Moscow.

From the ruins of an abandoned infantry camp, engineers are developing missiles for the push button war. They're also working on the vehicles that already have shot aloft the nation's first earth satellites, may later hit the moon.

At the Arnold Engineering Development Center, former site of Camp Forrest, the Air Force's Air Research and Development Command has established a vast network of wind tunnels to test missiles and aircraft. Engineers create speeds of more than 32,000 miles an hour and altitudes of 10,000 feet and up. They create temperatures hotter than the sun. All this within steel chambers where the missiles never leave the ground.

A new wind tunnel, aptly named Hotshot II, simulates speed greater than that needed to overcome the earth's gravity and escape to the moon or beyond. The nation does not have a vehicle that can move nine miles a second, but it does have the facility to test it. It can build a temperature of 40,000 degrees within test cells, far greater than the average missile can expect to encounter—now.

The nation's latest missile can get a true sampling of the frictions, temperature changes, atmospheric pressures and other stresses of outer space without ever leaving Tennessee.

Tunnel Hotshot II, creates the most extreme speeds and temperatures. No fan of any size can move air that fast. So Hotshot uses two chambers, one a vacuum and the other with air under extreme pressure. A million volt electrical charge explodes the pressurized air, causing it to expand. The rushing air blasts through a plastic seal into the vacuum chamber with a nozzle which helps beef up the speed. Duration is only a tenth of a second. That's all the heavily instrumented model in the chamber needs to record the effects.

Tullahoma has a series of wind tunnels with test sections from 12 inches across to 16 feet. Each does a different job. Speeds of flight can be varied in some test cells by opening and closing huge nozzles through which the air rushes against the model. The position of the model can be changed to simulate takeoff, level flight and landing.

The engine of a missile or aircraft can be tested in the same way. Later, in a propulsion wind tunnel, the engine may be mated with the wing or pod that will carry it; or perhaps the entire vehicle, including rocket engine.

Both the Titan and Atlas intercontinental ballistic missiles may owe their airborne lives to research at Tullahoma. Titan is the Air Force missile which should be flown this year. Its maker says it can easily hit the moon.

The Tullahoma center is dedicated to improving the quality of weapons systems in the shortest time without loss of life. Wind tunnels cannot completely replace actual test flights, but a mass of information can be gathered before the finished product is ready to fly and later more facts can be made available without endangering pilots.

BROOKLYN BRIDGE

Gracious Granite Lady Is 75 Years Old Today

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The Brooklyn Bridge, the gracious granite lady of the East River, is 75 years old Sunday. But she still is young enough to turn the hearts of poets and painters and all who thrill to the tale of two cities she made into one.

She hasn't been sold to anyone in years now, and nobody bothers any more to commit suicide from her trembling deck or jump off, as Steve Brodie may or may not have done, just for the sheer joy of jumping.

Skyscrapers and smoke stacks have robbed her of her No. 1 spot on the skyline, and the old elevated trains and trolley cars that for years made her a sightseeing favorite have rumbled off to the junkyard. So have the high wheeled bicycles and hansom cabs.

The wonder of her size and capacity has long worn off, too. For 20 years the biggest bridge in the world, the tallest, the longest and the most heavily traveled, she now barely rates a mention in the encyclopedias.

Six sister bridges, all newer and bigger, span the same river—the river they said never could be bridged—and subway and vehicle tunnels help do the job she was built to do.

Time has been fickle, but her lovers have been true.

To New Yorkers, and especially to Brooklynites, she remains affectionately The Bridge, a gray, wistful lady who manages somehow to look fresh and pretty in the daylight, with the sunlight slanting through her tangled hair and bewitching by night, whether arching ramp lights dance on the dark waters and the moon weaves shadows on her massive Gothic towers.

Hart Crane and a whole anthology of poets never seemed to tire of singing to her. From all over the world artists like Raoul Dufy and Albert Gleizes came to capture her changing moods on canvas. Playwright Maxwell Anderson and stage designer Norman Bel Geddes practically routed her from her river bed to set the mood and dominate the theme of their somber classic "Winterset." Dr. D. B. Steinman, greatest of the modern bridge builders, grew up in its shadow and found inspiration for his life work.

Today a whole new colony of artists and writers has suddenly appeared in the now fashionable, sloping streets of Brooklyn Heights, where once lived the hardy men who "spat black" to proclaim to the world that they courted death in a carbon-lit underwater vault while laying the foundation of the great bridge.

The engineers' adage "death builds bridges" seemed to haunt the men who designed and built what was to be called first the New York Bridge, then the East River Bridge and the New York & Brooklyn Bridge, but finally and simply the Brooklyn Bridge.

First to go was John Roebling, the immigrant genius who left his native Germany to found a colony at Saxonburg, Pa., invented the iron railroad coach, the steam plow and iron and later steel cable, and hung the first suspension bridges over Niagara Falls, the Allegheny River and the Ohio River.

Roebling first made up his mind to bridge the East River in 1852 while angrily pacing the deck of a ferry marooned for five hours in an ice jam. The bridge eventually drove most of the 20 competing ferry companies out of business, but they had their revenge in advance.

On a winter day in 1869 Roebling climbed a piling of the Fulton Ferry to survey the site of his Brooklyn anchorage. He was busy peeking through the transit when an incoming ferry rammed the slip, crushing his foot. Two toes were amputated, but tetanus set in and in two weeks he was dead.

The bridge was barely off the drawing board. The 13-year task of finishing it fell to his 32-year-old son, Washington, who lived to a ripe old age but never set foot on it. Directing foundation work in a compressed air chamber on the Manhattan side of the river in 1872, he was striken with caisson disease—the "bends" to sandhogs —and left a hopeless cripple for life.

Partially blind and deaf, barely able to talk, racked with nervous twitches and muscular spasms, young Roebling conducted the work by writing and drawing detailed instructions for the crews, tutored his wife Emily in higher mathematics and engineering to do his inspections and see that his orders were carried out. He kept daily watch on the progress through field glasses from an Upper Bay window of his home on Columbia Heights in Brooklyn, the same house that poet Hart Crane later occupied.

Exhibitionists and crackpots claimed Brooklyn Bridge as their personal playground as soon as a swaying, four-foot wide, wooden catwalk was strung between the anchorages and up over the towers. Before the demand became so heavy that it interfered with Construction, Master Mechanic E. F. Farrington handed out on the average 70 passes a day to brave Lotharios intent on impressing their lady friends by negotiating the giddy walkway. Some got halfway across, collapsed in fright and had to be dragged back. Others blithely hopped and skipped across, executing a bit of a jog en route. A few girls even attempted the crossing, one in rebuke to a boyfriend who was scared to try.

Opening day in 1883 brought out a million spectators, dozens of bands, a gaily pennanted flotilla that included five battleships of the North Atlantic Squadron, a $5,000 display of fireworks, booming salutes from the forts on Governors Island and the Battery, and a day long serenade of fog horns, boat whistles and sirens.

President Chester A. Arthur, Gov. Grover Cleveland, New York Mayor Franklin Edson and Brooklyn Mayor Seth Low led the first walk across and proceeded to Brooklyn Heights to pay their respects to the invalid genius and his courageous wife.

Six days after the opening, tragedy struck again. It was Memorial Day and 10,000 took advantage of the warm weather to stroll Roebling's unique raised center promenade. A woman tripped and fell on a stairway at the same moment that a detachment of soldiers was marching across to a parade. "The bridge is falling," someone hysterically shouted, echoing the then universal belief that the tread of marching feet can unhinge a suspension bridge. In the resulting panic, 12 were trampled to death and 40 injured.

The compulsion to jump off the bridge afflicted people long before the opening. Robert Donaldson tried three times in 1882 but was always restrained by workmen.

Robert E. Odlum, a Washington, D.C., swimming coach, dove off on May 19, 1885, in an attempt to raise money for a swimming pool project. He died almost instantly.

Newsboy Steve Brodie gained lasting fame as the first man to make the jump and live, but in later years the suspicion grew that a pal tossed a weight off the bridge while Brodie swam ashore from a short distance out.

Larry Donovan, a 24-year-old pressman on the Police Gazette, made the jump successfully in 1886. He died some years later in a jump off London Bridge.

After that, many tried. Some made it, most didn't. When higher and longer bridges came along, the suicides and adventurers took their business elsewhere.

Today the bridge is hale and hardy as ever, with the original four cables still intact. Engineers figure it is good for at least another 75 years and maybe 100 or more after that.

213 Seniors To Graduate At La. Tech

RUSTON (Special) — Graduating seniors at Louisiana Tech will be putting the finishing touches to their college careers during the next few days.

Those exempt from final examinations by reason of good grades have the privilege of leaving the campus at noon on Monday. Other candidates for degrees will take their finals from Monday afternoon through Thursday noon.

The list of graduates totals 213 seniors, according to the registrar's office.

Baccalaureate services will be held in Howard Auditorium at 8 p.m. Sunday, June 1, with the sermon to be delivered by Dr. Truman Aldredge, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Minden.

Commencement exercises will be held at 10 a.m. on Monday, June 2, with an alumnus of the college returning to give the address. He is Milton M. Harrison, dean of the law school of Louisiana State University.

Dr. Aldredge is a graduate of East Texas State College in commerce. He received the degree of master of theology from Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth. Three years ago, Howard Payne of Brownwood, Tex., conferred upon him the degree of doctor of divinity.

Dean Harrison received his B. A. degree from Louisiana Tech and his law degree from LSU. He served as assistant to the president of LSU for seven years before being appointed law dean last summer.

ADVICE ON STEPS

AMES, Iowa — (UP) — Uneven steps and steps that are out of proportion are the leading reasons for falls in the home, according to Norval Wardle, extension safety specialist at Iowa State College. A prime rule for safe stairways is to have a clear walkway the full length of each tread, Wardle said. Stairways of more than three steps need handrails.

BRIDGE OFFER

NEWFANE, Vt.— (UP) —Newfane selectmen voted to give the old covered bridge spanning Smith's Brook to anyone who would cart it away. They decided the structure had outlived its usefulness. It will be replaced with a steel and concrete bridge costing $40,000.

Bringing Up Father

CONGRATULATIONS ON YOUR BIRTHDAY, MOTHER-

THANK YOU, DEAR! EVERYBODY TELLS ME I DON'T LOOK A DAY OLDER!

I WONDER WHAT DADDY'S GOING TO GIVE YOU--

I'VE BEEN HINTING THAT I NEED A NEW MINK COAT!

BUT YOUR FATHER ISN'T VERY GOOD AT TAKING HINTS!

HE PRETENDED NOT TO HEAR ME! I WOULDN'T EVEN BE SURPRISED IF HE FORGETS WHAT DAY IT IS!

DID YOU REMEMBER THAT TODAY'S YOUR WIFE'S BIRTHDAY, SIR?

GOLLY, THAT'S RIGHT--I'M GLAD YOU REMINDED ME!

I DON'T THINK THERE'S ANY SENSE IN BUYING MAGGIE MORE JEWELRY ---SHE HAS MORE NOW THAN SHE CAN USE!

THERE'S NO POINT IN BUYIN' HER FLOWERS--- EVERY VASE IN THE HOUSE IS FULL OF THEM NOW!

SHE'S BEEN MAKIN' NOISES ABOUT A NEW MINK COAT- BUT I CAN'T AFFORD IT! SHE'LL HAVE TO MAKE HER OLD ONE DO!

FURS

I THINK I'LL BE SENSIBLE THIS YEAR--I'LL JUST BUY HER A NICE CARD AND LET IT GO AT THAT!

HAPPY BIRTHDAY, DARLIN'!

THANK YOU, DEAR--I KNEW YOU'D REMEMBER!

---YEAH, THAT'S ALL I GOT YOU! AFTER ALL, DARLIN', IT ISN'T THE VALUE OF THE GIFT THAT COUNTS ---IT'S THE SENTIMENT!

OH, REALLY?

CAN I HELP YOU, MADAM?
